people who receive money by telegraph.

"I'm looking for five hundred dollars, from Billy Ralston," said Martin.

"No five hundred dollars to your credit here," said the banker, "but there is ten thousand to Warwick Martin."

Ten thousand? gasped Martin.

Yes; ten thousand dollars!

"Well, taint me," said Martin, sorrowfully. "It's some other Martin, taint no Billy, after all. Just my luck!" and Warwick drew his hand across his brow, and sighed with disappointment.

"If your name is Warwick Martin, you can take this ten thousand dollars," said Mr. Lees.

"By Jupiter!" said Warwick, as he narrated the incident to Mr. Gould, "I didn't think 'twas mine; but I thought of Betty—thought of the dress I promised her, and then took the money and sneaked home like a culprit. I handed it to Betty but I never smiled for two days, I was so afraid the mistake would be detected. But when I got a letter from Ralston himself," said Martin, "I tell you there was a high old celebration in our house!"

"Did Ralston have a great funeral when he died?" I asked Mr. Gould.

"Funeral, sir! I should say he did. Why, I was in that funeral procession for four hours, and never moved out of my tracks."

"How was that?"

"Why, the head came to a halt before the tail started. It was the first procession ever seen in San Francisco where the tail processed four miles without moving."

THE WOODSTOCK LABYRINTH.

WHAT THURLOW WEED THINKS ABOUT DIXIE.

The South and the Southern Policy—A Knotty Question—Much Smoke, but Little else.

A reporter of the New York Herald recently interviewed Thurlow Weed, to ask his opinion of the Blaine-Chamberlain attack on the Administration. Mr. Weed commented briefly upon the fact that Senator Blaine's speech was confined to the one question of the Mexican boundary, and dwelt at length upon Mr. Chamberlain's utterances. He referred to the ability which characterized Chamberlain's speech and said:—

"I had long watched Chamberlain's career in South Carolina. I never met him; but I had a marked impression as to his capacity and his integrity as a public official. I felt deep regret that events should make it seem that the federal government had abandoned him. I felt that he was trying to work out the great problem of good government for the people in South Carolina. But on the other hand, I had apprehensions."

Reporter—What of the apprehensions? Will there be pacification so far as the South is concerned?

Mr. Weed—A knotty question! A gentleman of great ability, a retired merchant of this city, said to me the other day, in view of President Hayes' Southern policy, "I fear that we are forgiving those who will never forgive us and who will despise us for forgiving them." I know that the time must come, sooner or later, when the federal bayonet must be withdrawn. The genius of our institutions demanded this. But it is a difficult and delicate question. It was hard to say what was for the best. On the one side was the question of the government of a State unrestrained by pressure from the general government, and on the other side were the apprehensions concerning the experiment which caused Packard's and Chamberlain's downfall. My own political opinions of Southern leaders, continued Mr. Weed, were largely formed, among other experiences, from my life in Washington. There I met many of the foremost men in the matter of Southern sentiment and policy. I knew the grandfather of the present Governor of South Carolina. The grandfather's name and title were also General Wade Hampton. I remember in 1812 his being sent to command the army then threatening the Canadian border. Somehow, and I only speak of it incidentally, the North then distrusted the Southern army leaders, and there was an expression of opinion at that time, emphatic in some quarters, that the Southern generals, Hampton and Wilkinson, did not want to take Canada and thereby increase free territory in the North. But to return to my experiences in the South. I never lived south of Washington until 1871, when for a few months, for the benefit of my health, I resided in Aiken, S. C. The feeling of the citizens, I found, was intense against the North. Judging from what I then saw, I fear the work of reconciliation between the South and the North is a matter of waiting and rather slow growth. It will come in time, however.

Reporter—Do you anticipate any split in the Republican party, as indicated by the Woodstock movement?

Mr. Weed—I am not prepared to say. I believe that the President is earnestly endeavoring to serve his country and his party, and I earnestly hope that his efforts will be successful.

Seven hundred Mormon immigrants arrived in New York last week. They were from all parts of Europe, were sturdy, healthy and industrious, and most of them had been Lutherans previous to conversion. They had not yet adopted polygamy.

VEGETINE - IS MY FAMILY - MEDICINE; I WISH NO OTHER.

PROVIDENCE, April 7, 1876. Mr. H. R. STEVENS—Dear Sir: When I was about 8 years of age a humor broke out upon me, which my mother tried to cure by giving me herb teas and all other such remedies as she knew of, but it continued to grow worse, until finally she consulted a physician and he said I had the salt rheum, and doctored me for that complaint. He relieved me some, but said I could not be permanently cured as the disease originated in the blood. I remained a great sufferer for several years, until I heard of and consulted a physician, who said I had the salt rheum humor and if I would allow him to doctor me he would cure me. I did so, and he commenced healing up my sores and succeeded in effecting an external cure, but in a short time the disease appeared again in a worse form than ever, as cancerous humor upon my lungs, throat, and head. I suffered the most terrible pain, and there seemed to be no remedy, and my friends thought I must soon die, when my attention was called, while reading a newspaper, to a VEGETINE testimonial of Mrs. Waterhouse, No. 364, Athens Street, South Boston, and I formerly residing in South Boston and being personally acquainted with her, and knowing her former feeble health, I concluded I would try the Vegetine. After I had taken a few bottles it seemed to force the sores out of my system. I had itching sores in my ears which for a time were very painful. I continued to take the Vegetine until I had taken about 25 bottles, my health improving all the time from the commencement of the first bottle, and the sores to heal. I commenced taking the Vegetine in 1872, and continued to take it for six months. At the present time my health is better than it ever has been since I was a child. The Vegetine is what helped me, and I most cordially recommend it to all sufferers, especially my friends. I had been a sufferer for over 30 years, and until I used the Vegetine, I found no remedy; now I use it as my family medicine, and wish no other.

MRS. B. C. COOPER, No. 1, Joy Street, Providence, R. I.

Vegetine. The range of disorders which yield to the influence of this medicine, and the number of defined diseases which it never fails to cure, are greater than any other single medicine that has hitherto been even recommended for by any other than the proprietors of some quack nostrum. These diseases are Scrofula and all eruptive diseases and Tumors, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia and spinal complaints, and all inflammatory system; I leers, all Syphilitic diseases, Kidney and bladder diseases, Dropsy, the whole train of painful disorders which so generally afflict American women, and which carry annually thousands of them to premature graves; Dyspepsia, that universal curse of American manhood, Heartburn, Piles, Constipation, Nervousness, Inability to sleep, and Impure blood. This is a formidable list of human ailments for any single medicine to successfully attack, and it is not probable that any one article before the public has the power to cure the quarter of them except Vegetine. It lays the axe at the root of the tree of disease by first eliminating every impurity from the blood, promoting the secretions, opening the pores—the great escape valves of the system—invigorating the liver to its full and natural action, cleansing the stomach and strengthening digestion. This much accomplished, the speedy and the permanent cure of not only the diseases we have enumerated, but likewise the whole train of chronic and constitutional disorders, is certain to follow. This is precisely what Vegetine does, and it does it so quickly, and so easily, that it is an accomplished fact almost before the patient is aware of it himself.

BEST REMEDY IN THE LAND.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 23d, 1876. Mr. H. R. STEVENS: Dear Sir—I desire to state to you that I was afflicted with a breaking out of blotches and pimples on my face and neck for several years. I have tried many remedies, but none cured the humor on my face and neck. After using two or three bottles of your Vegetine the humor was entirely cured. I do certainly believe it is the best medicine for all impurities of the blood that there is in the land, and should highly recommend it to the afflicted public. Truly yours, P. PERKINS, Architect, and builder at Little Falls, N. Y., having lived there and in the vicinity for the last thirty-three years.
