wrists so tightly that they bore circular marks of bright red and he was almost unable to use his hands. The stitches in the cuffs still remained, and the watches were found as when first placed in his hands. The rings in the post and base could not be removed, and, unlike some spiritualistic contrivances, the post had no sliding bar in the middle, although in the Commander's case it is difficult to conceive how even such an apparatus could aid him. It is really a mystery.
