Cotton is not coming in with any alarming degree of celerity, and our coffers are still empty.

Communion services were held at Lebanon Presbyterian church on Sunday.

Bethel Presbytery will meet at Concord church near Woodward's during the second week in October.

The culture of sorghum is being revived. Mr. Butler Pettigrew has made a large quantity of syrup for himself and his neighbors.

Colored people report that two or three dogs have gone mad on upper Little River recently. One is said to have gnawed and lacerated his own forelegs before he was killed. No person was bitten.

"Our House," the popular restaurant kept by Mr. Jno. D. McCarley, will be opened for the season to-morrow. Fresh oysters, prepared in every style, may be had on Saturday.

There was a mistake in the county treasurer's notice, published in the last issue of THE NEWS AND HERALD. The penalty for non-payment of taxes at the proper time is fifteen per cent., and not twenty, as stated in the advertisement. The mistake was ours, and not the treasurer's.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—O. F. Weiters, of Charleston, publishes his card.

Sol. Wolfe informs his friends that he has just returned from the Northern markets, with a carefully selected stock of dry goods, boots, shoes hats, clothing and notions.

J. O. Boag advertises his new stock of goods—which is such a full and varied one that people must see it for themselves to know what it is.

The Southern Cultivator for October is at hand. The following list of contents will give some idea of the reading matter this number contains: Virtue of Weeds; Fish Culture; Rotating Crops and Improving Lands; Oats vs. Clover Experiments with Corn; Preparing for Sowing Wheat; Preserving Timber; Food for Peas and Beans; Clawson Wheat; Obstacles in Experimenting; Renovating Worn-out Lands; Deep Culture and Close Planting of Corn—Applying Manures; Successive Crop Growing; Feeding Animals; Raising Jacks and Mules; Prevention of Vermin in Poultry; Scoury Legs in Fowls; Notes on Gardening, etc., etc. The Cultivator is in every respect one of the best agriculture journals in the country, and it should be liberally supported. It is published at Athens, Ga., by W. L. Jones. The subscription price is $2.10 per annum, in advance, postage paid.

When Fortune smiles, humanity overflows with humor, or, in homely language, when a man gets a bargain he grins and bears it. And it is a noteworthy fact that since J. O. Boag's new stock of goods has been opened, everybody in Winnsboro looks cheerful and bright, as if they were satisfied that just what they want is to be seen at Boag's Cheap Store; and he is conscious of no exaggeration when he says that never before was such a stock opened for the inspection of the public. This stock consists of everything new and desirable in the way of Millinery, Fancy Goods, Dry Goods, Ladies' Dress Goods, Trimmings, Notions, Hats, Shoes, Family Groceries, and other goods too numerous to mention—all selected with the greatest care and bought at the lowest cash prices. He is consequently able to offer his friends greater bargains than ever. Call and see for yourselves, and go away in good humor, as everybody else does, that visits Boag's establishment. You are sure to find something to please you.

PROSPECTUS.

HISTORY of South Carolina,

—BY—

REV. R. LATHAN.

SO soon as a sufficient number of subscribers are secured to warrant the enterprise, I propose publishing a

HISTORY OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

The work will embrace a complete history of the State from the first discovery of the soil; the settlement of the territory at different periods; the history of the State under the Proprietary Government, under the Royal Government, and through the Revolutionary period, or to the close of the Revolutionary war.

The movements of the several Whig military chiefs are accurately traced, and the several battles fought during the Revolution are minutely described.

The whole will make a book of more than 700 pages of the size of Stephens' History of the United States. It will be printed on good paper, with clear type, and bound in substantial cloth. To subscribers the book will be delivered for FOUR DOLLARS per copy.

Persons desiring to canvass for the work are requested to communicate with the author at Yorkville, S. C., for terms, &c. R. LATHAN.
