WINNSBORO, S. C.

Thursday, October 11, ; : : 1877.

R. MEANS DAVIS, Editor,
JNO. S. REYNOLDS, Associate Editor.

Ohio has gone Democratic by from ten to twenty thousand majority. The Democrats claim both branches of the Legislature.

The New York Tribune thinks the spectacle of an ex-United States senator in jail, and a senator evading arrest, is not calculated to fill the average American bosom with pride in his national institutions.

Senator Patterson thinks there are five more years of good stealing in South Carolina. Can it be that he proposes to pick the pockets of the penitentiary convicts?

It is said that Superintendent Parmele keeps the Penitentiary convicts clean, and conducts the affairs of that charitable institution with credit. That may be. But this is no proof that no else can be found in South Carolina who will also make a capable superintendent.

We are on the eve of another rebellion. Four hundred Mexicans in El Paso, Texas, a barren county containing twelve thousand square miles, and scarcely any square meals, have rebelled against thirty Americans, and have them besieged in a town. Reinforcements have been sent to the front, and malcontents may be able to provoke a war between Mexico and the United States. The trouble has arisen over some lands on which the Mexicans refused to allow Americans to enter.

Senator Maxwell, of Marlboro, has come to grief. He and Smalls were brought before Justice Marshall in Columbia on the charge, of accepting bribes for passing a three hundred thousand steal for the Republican printing company. Maxwell could give no bail, and he languishes in jail alongside of the oily Cardozo. He has resigned his senatorship; and as Marlboro was largely Democratic last year, he will be succeeded by a gentleman. During a heated contest once, Maxwell announced that he kept cool. He will find it pretty warm for him, soon, despite the rigor of winter.

Increasing the Army.

President Hayes will strongly urge an increase of the regular army to forty thousand men, instead of twenty thousand, as at present comprising it. What use he will put this additional force to, is not known. Under Grant's beneficent reign, the South was always solid in rebellion, and the pursuit of phantom kuklux, in those halcyon days of the Republic, amply sufficed to furnish employment to an unlimited number of the boys in blue. Several thousand at least were required in every Southern State for the simple duty of turning the crank of Landaulet Williams' outrage mill.

But times have changed. Othello's occupation in the South is gone, and even the strikers in the North have ceased their acts of incendiarism and plunder. "What will we do with them?" is the question naturally arising, on hearing of the President's call for "more troops." If he persists in having his army increased, however, there are certain tasks which we suggest may be allotted to it. One squad might be sent in quest of Butler's spoons; another in search of Morton's conscience; another might organize an expedition to the North Pole to bring back General Howard from where Chief Joseph has chased him. Still another might be be employed in drumming up the old line Whig party, while a whole host would be needed to arrest the stampede of defaulting Chicago bank presidents. We would not advise him to institute search either for the Southern Radical party or the Freedmen's bank funds; they are gone beyond recall.

We see no need of any increase in the standing army. This is a Republican measure looking to still further centralization of power, and it is hardly probable that the Democrats, seeing how Grant tricked them when he called for more troops to fight the Indians, and used them against the South, will consent to any change, other than a reduction. Let us have peace, and a plenty of it.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Turks claim to have defeated the Russians again before Plevna.

Archbishop Bailey, of Baltimore, is dead. Archbishop Gibbons has been appointed by the Pope to succeed him.

The steamer Massachusetts, between New York and Providence, went aground in a storm in Long Island Sound and is a total loss. The passengers were saved.

Governor Phelps, of Missouri, has appointed Col. David H. Armstrong to succeed Senator Bogy in the United States Senate. Armstrong, like his predecessor, is a life long Democrat.

Dr. Thompson says that Senator Morton will, he hopes, be able to take his seat in December, but he will never be able to use crutches or canes again.

Partial returns from Charter elections in Connecticut indicate that the Democrats have carried as many towns as they did last year, when they had eighty to seventy for the Republicans.

The Rev. E. T. Baird, ex-secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, under indictment for embezzling the funds of the board, has returned from Canada and surrendered himself to the authorities. He states that he had no knowledge of the indictment until quite recently.

Massachusetts has abolished the old and time honored office of coroner. The governor, hereafter, will appoint a competent physician in each county, who, in cases of death by violence, will report the case to a magistrate for legal inquiry into the case. This is an interesting change, and its results will be watched.

An Irishman, being annoyed by a howling dog in the night, jumped out of bed to dislodge the offender. It was in the month of January, when the snow was three feet deep. He not returning, his wife ran out to see what was the matter. There she found her husband in his night suit, his teeth chattering and his whole body almost paralyzed with with cold, holding the struggling dog by the tail. "Holy mother, Pat," said she, "what wud ye be after doin?" "Hush," said he, "Don't you see? I'm trying to fraze the nasty baste."

Will You Believe It?

Woman's Best Friend. That is what Dr. Bradfield's Female Regulator is doing, bringing joy where sorrow and suffering existed, and making happiness homes where the shadows of blighted hopes dwindle into utter darkness. To do this is the peculiar province of Dr. J. Bradfield's Female Regulator; which from its wonderful success it has accomplished, is appropriately styled Woman's Best Friend. That distressing complaint known as the "whites," and the various irregularities of the womb, to which woman is subject disappear like magic before a single bottle of this wonderful compound. It is prepared by J Bradfield, Atlanta, Ga., and sold at $1.50 per bottle by Dr. W. E. Aiken. Physicians prescribe it. Its action is prompt, sure and decisive.
