Neither was Mr. Conkling's swift, impressive and innocuous readiness to humanize the Senate Chamber, by wiping the floor with the little man from Georgia, characteristic of anybody or anything, except that his biceps ran his brain for just once. Probably both belligerents will be ashamed of themselves, and, in the stereotyped way, they will regret the occurrence, and feel sure that if so and so was so and so then so and so should be considered so and so. After which they would both do well to take a drink and remember so thoroughly that they are men as not hereafter to forget that they are Senators. The Senator from New York has been "running" cowed or corrupt colleagues so long that he apparently forgets he is barely in a majority, and is now confronted by men who ask and fear nothing of him. If Mr. Gordon brings him back to his manners he will have done a difficult and a good thing. But it is quite plain that his bullying will either be laid aside or that he will be forced into the ridiculous role of wanting to settle his rows in the Senate "here and now"—out of a prudent idea of not settling them on equal terms "elsewhere."

DONN PIATT'S OPINION OF THE UNPLEASANTNESS.

Washington Capital.

A lively passage-at-arms between Senator Conkling and Gordon disturbed the serenity and stupidity of that august body last Friday in the executive session. The Senator from New York said that if the Georgia Senator stated that he was "giving orders to the Vice-President" he told "what was not true." Indirectly he gave Senator Gordon the lie. The Senator from Georgia immediately put on his war paint, dropped his R's, and commenced to quote from the code. He intimated that while he would cheerfully draw a four-buttoned glove across Mr. Conkling's face, that was not the place, and the matter could be settled elsewhere. Mr. Conkling as eager and willing as a bridegroom, retorted in his finest vein that he was ready for the answer there or anywhere else. There is a fine flavor of medieval chivalry about episode which intimates that our race of heroes has not yet died out. Their wonted fires glow in the breasts of their sons, and all Canada is by this waiting to welcome the Senatorial knights with itching palms to hospitable hotels and starved surgeons. General Gordon having won the highest honors his State can confer upon its most honored citizen, and bearing on his face the scars of a gallant campaign as the best Scottish blood fought for the Stuart, would fitly crown the apex of an honorable career by meeting in a duel and shooting, or being shot, by a New York lawyer. Senator Conkling, a born leader among men, as King Agamemnon was among the Greeks, and one of the three or four great characters to whom the nation looks for counsel in trouble and perplexity, would round off the full and perfect measure of his life by "winging" or being winged by an ex-Confederate General. Since a Supreme Judge killed Senator Broderick in a duel, and Burlingame pleaded for an opportunity to shoot Preston Brooks, there has been no exhibition of Senators going down among the gladiators to amuse the populace. If it is needful for the Republic that two Senators should fight, let M. C. Butler go out with Edmunds, and let Butler kill him. Or let Othello Davis meet Iago Kellogg. Whether he kill Kellogg or Kellogg kill him, either makes our gain.

Mexican journals say that in case of a war with the United States every patriot will be willing to shed his blood. They'd shed their blood a good deal soon than they'd wash up their skins and change their skirts.

No degrading evidence is to be received in the Vanderbilt will case. There is very good reason for this, we suspect. The degrading evidence is all in.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

For Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose or St. Anthony's Fire, Eruptions and Eruptive diseases of the skin, Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhoea, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine disease, Syphilitic and Mercurial diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, General Debility, and for Purifying the Blood.

This Sarsaparilla is a combination of vegetable alteratives—Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock—with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure.

Its ingredients are so skillfully combined that the full alterative effect of each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruptions which develop into loathsome disease.

The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it proves their experience of its usefulness.

Certificates attesting its virtues have accumulated, and are constantly being received, and as many of these cases are publicly known, they furnish convincing evidence of the superiority of this Sarsaparilla over every other alterative medicine. So generally is its superiority to any other medicine known that we need do no more than to assure the public that the best qualities it has ever possessed are strictly maintained.
