

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, can be taken as easily in summer as in winter. Unlike the plain oil it is palatable, and the hypophosphites that are in it aid in digestion and at the same time tone up the system.

For sickly, delicate children, and for those whose lungs are affected, it is a mistake to leave it off in the summer months. The dose may be reduced if necessary.

We recommend the small size especially for summer use, and for children, where a smaller dose is required. It should be kept in a cool place after it is once opened.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOUTH.

Resources of That Section Are Being More Thoroughly Placed Before The People of The Whole Country.

W. W. Finley, of Washington, D. C., Second Vice President of the Southern Railway Company, recently made the following statement to a correspondent of the New York Times with regard to the industrial development of the South:

"We are, in the South, in an era of practical and successful development of our great natural advantages. There is a unanimity among the people upon the subject of development, and a general disposition to foster industrial growth. The plans and methods of placing the resources of the Southern country before the outside world are systematically arranged, and are bound to be beneficial to that section.

"Cotton manufacturers have largely increased, and have proved to be more profitable than in any other section. Many new mills have been erected, and many more greatly enlarged, as well as provided with the most modern machinery and appliances. It should not be surprising to see within a short time the cotton produced in the Carolinas and Northern Georgia taken entirely by local mills.

"A splendid beginning has also been made in wood-working, and there are many of these establishments in our territory in successful operation. The abundance of valuable timber, suitable for every branch of building materials, as well as the manufacture of wagon, carriages, railway cars, furniture and, indeed, about everything of which wood is a raw material, not only makes wood-working in all of its branches profitable as well. At no distant day the South will occupy the first rank in this important industry.

"Iron manufacturing in the South is forging ahead at a rapid rate. All the conditions are favorable for success in this line of industry. It has been demonstrated that iron can be manufactured more cheaply and of equally good quality in the South than in any other section. The South is already engaged in the exporting of iron, and the prospects are most encouraging for a largely increased foreign business from that section. It is not to be wondered at that this should be so, for all the natural advantages are on the side of the South, the only remarkable thing about it being that this foreign business was not developed sooner.

"The cultivation of tobacco and its manufacture into the various forms in which the world likes to use it is making commendable advancement. Better grades are being cultivated, enlarged areas are being planted, and the condition of this industry are exceedingly promising.

"The raising of that fruit is also commanding a good deal of attention. That the South is well adapted to fruit raising has been proven by actual experience, and all who have engaged in this branch of industry have been successful. The South has no fears of competition in this respect.

The South is convenient to the best markets, and can produce in abundance the best fruits.

"The railroads can justly lay great claim in the progress of the Southern development. They have opened up rich and new territory to settlement and added largely to the facilities for growth and development. They recognize the fact that the prosperity of the territory through which their lines run means their success, and so even from a purely selfish motive, if for no other, they desire to foster and encourage all legitimate enterprises.

"The particular railway with which I am connected is no exception to this rule, as it is maintaining an effective department, whose work is directed to the development of the agricultural and industrial interests of the section of the country tributary, to its lines. It is also expending large sums of money for betterments of its properties and in increasing the facilities necessary to give the public superior advantages for transporting the products of the mill and the farm."

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists price fifty cents and one dollar. "A License to Steal."

That must have been embarrassing information to the United States senate which Statistician Carroll D. Wright furnished that body last week concerning the labor cost of lumber in this country and in Canada. His figures showed that, while the average wages in Canadian sawmills is $1.41 and $1.71 per day here, the average labor cost of 1,000 feet of lumber is $1.28 in Canada and only 91 cents here. The decreased cost of production in this country is attributed to the superior machinery used. Of course the figures prove the free trade contention that the rate of wages paid does not indicate the cost of production—that low wages are very often more expensive to employers, and vice versa. But these hard facts furnished by an officer of the government will not dissuade the lumber barons from their purpose to get a tariff on Canadian lumber so that they can the more effectually rob American consumers. Protectionists care nothing for facts. What they want is a license to steal.—National Single Taxer.

NOW FOR NEW FINANCIAL LAWS.

McKinley Will Push the Currency Question to the Front. Message to Congress.

Washington, July 7.—After a discussion lasting over an hour, the Cabinet to-day decided that the President should send to Congress a message recommending legislation providing for a commission to adjust the currency questions of the country. It was resolved that this message should be sent to Congress to-morrow, providing that the Tariff bill is by that time passed by the Senate.

It is the expectation of the President that the subject will receive the attention of Congress during the present extra session.

The message was framed by the President himself, and, like his other special messages to Congress, states the necessity of the occasion tersely. It was prepared by him after a consultation with one or two advisers, and submitted to the Cabinet as a whole only to-day, when it was read in complete form. It recites the fact that the Tariff bill has now passed both the House and Senate, and hopes that it will soon be concurred in, by both houses. With that acted upon, a subject of equal importance, he says, demands immediate attention—that of reform in our currency. The message quotes from the President's inaugural address in which he said:

"Our financial system needs some revision; our money is all good now, but its value must not be further threatened. It should all be put on an enduring basis, not subject to easy attack nor its stability to doubt or dispute. Therefore I believe it necessary to devise a system, which without diminishing the circulating medium, or offering a premium for its contraction, will put a remedy for these arrangements, which, temporary in their nature, might well in the years of our prosperity have been displaced by wiser provisions. With adequate revenue secured, but not until then, can we enter upon such changes in our fiscal laws as will, while insuring safety and volume to our money, no longer impose upon the Government the necessity of maintaining so large a gold reserve with its attendant and inevitable temptations to speculate."

It also cites the work and recommendations of the Indianapolis Currency Convention, and says if the power is vested in the President, it is his purpose to appoint a commission, non partisan, consisting of nine prominent, well-informed citizens, who will command public confidence.

The message closes with the hope that Congress will enact legislation at this session to authorize this commission to be made up of representatives of both parties so that the President may be prepared to report to Congress when it re-assembles in the first term of the next regular session.

The President, while believing that Congress will respond to his message, is not over-confident, and there was some difference of opinion expressed by the Cabinet as to the fate the recommendation would meet at this session.
