DR. G. B. MOORE RESIGNS.

Big Row in the Baptist Convention Ends.

The row in the Baptist convention at Greenville over the Furman university trustees' action in calling for the resignation of the Rev. Dr. G. B. Moore, which threatened the disruption of the school by withdrawal on the part of the students, has ended with Dr. Moore's resignation.

Dr. Moore is well known to a number of Rock Hill people. He was one of the speakers at the Winthrop commencement last summer. A December 4 Greenville special to the News and Courier says:

A fire brand was thrown into the Baptist camp today by the board of trustees of Furman University. The resignation of Prof. Gordon B. Moore was demanded, and Lewis M. Roper, pastor of the First church of Spartanburg was elected president of the institution. The question of the election of a president of Furman has agitated the Baptists of the State for months. President Montague tendered his resignation last summer and went to Alabama. His action created the greatest flurry of any event that has occupied the attention of Baptists for years. Charges of infidelity in the faculty were made and counter charges of unfaithfulness of the president were filed. Much heated newspaper and personal controversy followed, Prof. Moore being the centre of attack. Dr. Moore and his friends denied the charges made against him, and Prof. Montague and his friends were vehement in their reiterated claims. Friends were made and lost by both sides. The fate of Furman was in the balance. The question from the Montague party finally resolved itself into, "Which is larger, Moore or Furman?" The Moore party, on the other hand, stated with emphasis that Prof. Moore was one of the best scholars and deepest thinkers of the South. Whatever the actual facts may be, the trustees were in a quandary. Dr. Montague is gone and there was clamoring for Prof. Moore's resignation, mingled with demands that he be retained. The trustees could not centre upon an entirely acceptable course of procedure, nor upon a man for president. The charges against Dr. Moore were investigated and the committee reported favorably to Dr. Moore, Mr. Roper being a member of that committee. The question was not at all settled. At today's session of the board of trustees Mr. Roper, a known friend of Prof. Moore, was unanimously elected president, and Prof. Moore's resignation was called for. A sudden thunderbolt from a clearing would not have created more consternation. Prof. Moore will refuse to resign and what the outcome will be no one can tell. The matter will come before the convention tomorrow and Prof. Moore's friends say he will be sustained and the board reversed. A meeting of Prof. Moore's friends was held tonight to decide upon a course of action for tomorrow.

When Prof. Moore was asked for a statement for The News and Courier he replied, "You can just state the facts." Lively times are ahead for the convention, with the sound of terrible breakers ahead.

HOW THE TROUBLE GREW.

The following very interesting review of the trouble between

Drs. Moore and Montague is from The State of Saturday:

The differences which have resulted in the present unfortunate situation in the Baptist denomination have been growing for several years, although it is doubtful whether any one can tell just how it all began. A word or two about the personality of Dr. Moore may be first in order.

Gordon Beverly Moore is a big man; his brain is big, his heart is big. He is a Virginian by birth and studied at Richmond college but did not graduate. His first work as a minister was in Virginia, when he was a raw, green, country lad. To this day he has not worn off the timidity and sensitiveness which were then so apparent in his make-up; near-sighted and somewhat awkward, both in the pulpit and class room he appears ill at ease, having none of the graces of the orator. But his sermons and his lectures are masterly! When Dr. Moore preaches and when he teaches you feel that you are listening to one who has communed with master minds and who has thought out for himself the problems of God and of man, the problems of the ages. Naturally, such a man is misunderstood, misjudged and misrepresented.

Before going to Furman University Dr. Moore was pastor at Darlington. He was elected professor of philosophy and political economy in Furman University on the death of the saintly James O. Furman, some 12 or 15 years ago. Since his occupancy of that chair he has grown greatly in mentality, having been a hard student all the time. He has read widely and written much in addition to his class room work. One year he spent at the University of Chicago, having leave of absence from Furman. He has for several years been associate editor of The Baptist Courier, the "heavy editorial" work of that excellent journal being his. And it was just here that Dr. Moore's trouble began.

The charge of unorthodoxy has been made the excuse for demanding Dr. Moore's resignation. Some of his learned utterances in the class room may have lead students of narrow minds to think Dr. Moore's doctrines unsound, but the real crisis came when some of Dr. Moore's editorial utterances in the Baptist Courier were attacked as unorthodox. He became involved in a long and learned controversy with another Baptist minister on a question of doctrine. Dr. Moore wields a battleaxe in debate when in fact he should use boxing gloves. He hurls sarcasm, big words and erudite quotations at his assailants. He is a fighter through and through; there is no compromise in him. Necessarily the men he hits are not pleased thereby.

That controversy was one cause of the present row. The next and perhaps most influential was the antagonism between him and President Montague. It was believed that Dr. Montague wanted to get Dr. Moore out of the institution, and while he never declared so publicly, instead expressing confidence in Dr. Moore's integrity and Christianity, it leaked out after Dr. Montague's resignation that he or Dr. Moore had to go. In a personal letter Dr. Montague said he would not stay at Furman where there were "infidel recluses" in the faculty. This was published, leading to more trouble.—Rock Hill Journal.

[Some of the statements above need considerable modification and in our next issue we will publish a more precise statement of the facts in reference to the action of the board of trustees and the convention in reference to the Dr. Moore trouble.—EDITOR ENTERPRISE.]

THREE PAPERS A WEEK

The Enterprise and the Twice-a-Week Charleston News and Courier One Year for Only $1.50.

We have completed arrangements with the Charleston News and Courier by which we are enabled to furnish the ENTERPRISE and the Twice-a-Week edition of the News and Courier for $1.50 a year, which must be paid strictly in advance. Sample copies of that paper will be sent to our subscribers, and we trust that many will take advantage of this liberal clubbing offer. The regular price of the ENTERPRISE, as you know, is $1 a year, and that of the Semi-Weekly News and Courier, an eight-page paper, is $1. But under this clubbing arrangement you get them both for $1.50.

Was Ashamed of Him.

"If you insist on breaking our engagement, Miss Fickle, I shall make your letters public."

"You are welcome to do so, Mr. Scamper; there is nothing in them that I am ashamed of except the address on the envelopes."

The Best Prescription for Malaria chills and fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, no pay. Price 50 cts.

Let it Alone.

Another endless chain letter scheme is pushing its way into York county, the proposition this time coming in the shape of an agreement on the part of the promoters to pay $20 for each 1,000 circulars sent out by home people to extend the chain. So far as a Journal representative could learn no body in Rock Hill has taken up the work. It's clearly the old cherry tree in the orange again with a new dress on.—Rock Hill Journal.

Winthrop Girl's Get a Week.

Heretofore the students at Winthrop have been accorded only one day's holiday at Christmas. Tuesday last the board of trustees met in Columbia when the question again came up and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the president be authorized to intermit all college exercises from Tuesday afternoon, December 23, 1902, to include Monday, December 29, and to grant furlough during this time to all pupils whose parents may in writing request same.

Resolved, That further consideration of a winter vacation be deferred to next annual meeting.

At the same meeting of the board the resignation of Miss Ethel Nance as music teacher was presented and accepted, and the board elected Miss Parnell Jones of Laurens, a graduate of Winthrop College, to fill the vacancy. The approaching marriage of Miss Nance has been announced.

It is Easy to Say

"Be careful," but we must all go from heated houses into chill outer air, and the change sets us coughing and wheezing. Avoiding winter colds is difficult; curing them is not hard if you take Allen's Lung Balsam. Better begin when the cold is young and not wait until it settles deep into the lungs, for then, even with Allen's Lung Balsam, complete relief will be slower.

The Doctor Found Him Dead.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Staggering to a telephone box, George W. Holloway, one of the best known druggists of Syracuse, called up his physician tonight.

"Come to my rooms, quick, Doctor," he replied. "I'm dying. Run, my life depends on it."

Without waiting to hang up the receiver, the physician dashed to the druggist's apartments, two blocks away. He found him dead on the floor. Heart failure was the cause of death.

Carrie Nation's Suit.

Carrie Nation in Rochester N. Y. last week swore to a complaint in a $25000 damage suit for libel which she has begun against Mural Halstead, author of "Illustrations of the Life of William McKinley, Our Martyred President." Mrs. Nation says that Mr. Halstead in his book quoted her as saying at Genes Island and Rochester that she hoped McKinley would die and that she was arrested and hissed in Rochester. When Mr. Halstead was asked at Cincinnati about the suit for slander, he said: "I don't know and I don't care anything about it. It may be that Mrs. Nation is about twenty years behind the times and is suing on account of some paragraph which has been published in the Commercial Tribune, thinking I wrote it."

A few days ago the wife of John Marsh, the negro condemned to death for rape, went to the jail to see her husband, and Sheriff Horn, noticing that the woman carried a small hand satchel, asked to be allowed to see its contents. The woman protested there was nothing in the satchel, but when it was opened it was found to contain two large knives. Of course the knives did not go into the jail.—Monroe Journal.

Severe Weather North.

New York, Dec. 8.—Reports from all over the state tell of deep snow, high winds and damage to telegraph wires and traffic.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—Upper Michigan is embraced in the cold wave.

Cleveland, Dec. 8.—Over six inches of snow has fallen in this section in thirty-six hours. Today the government thermometer registered twenty-two above. The forecast predicts a fall of ten inches by tonight.
