

Charleston Tigers Pay Fines.

Charleston special of March 7 to The State:

A record was scored today in the city court when 45 convictions were secured for violating the dispensary law, netting the city $1,225 in fines. It was red letter day. Judge Jervey sat on the bench for three hours hearing the statements of the police officers on the guilt of the accused, and their statements in reply, but the evidence of the police seemed convincing in every case, and the blind tigers who made less of fight against conviction fared the better. The cases disposed of were all by the court, without a jury, but three hours were not sufficient to hear the cases of the blind tigers, even those who were willing to leave their cases to the hands of the court, and bright and early tomorrow the docket will be again attacked.

The violators who threw themselves on the mercy of the court were given a sentence of $25 or 10 days in jail, while those who presentec witnesses in their behalf and otherwise interfered with the rapid revolving of the wheels of justice, were struck for $50 or 30 days.

Forty one blind tigers were given the smaller sentence today. Three tigers demanded jury trials, and their cases went over, for the court wanted no delay. Seventy-five cases were made out by the police, and the rest of the calendar will be taken up tomorrow, but it is likely that the jury cases will be deferred until later in the month.
