STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I heard

THEDFORD'S

BLACK-DRAUGHT

LETTER FROM MENOS ZOUBAL.

Going to Quit Whipping the Kaiser with his Mouth and Talking to the Guns.

The Advertiser is in receipt of a letter from Menos Zoubal, the affable young Greek who left Laurens over a year ago after living here for several years. Menos was a progressive and patriotic citizen when in Laurens and is keeping up his record at his present home. His friends will be interested in his letter, which is as follows:

Editor The Advertiser:

I have been drafted for the U. S. Army and passed the examination all O. K. I never filed claim for exemption. I received a notice yesterday that they were going to take me in about three weeks. I turned my business all over to my uncle. When I was in Laurens all I could do was to whip the Kaiser with my mouth, but now we are going to show those Turks and Germans that we are real fighters. I hope that I may get to meet my Laurens friends in the French trenches.

I have been away from Laurens about 14 months but I have never forgot my dear old home and friends and as soon as I settle my business I intend coming down to see and visit them all. I will close with my best wishes to all.

Yours truly,

Menos D. Zoubal.

UGH! ACID STOMACH, SOURNESS, HEARTBURN, GAS, OR INDIGESTION

The moment "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches the stomach all distress goes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into acids and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, get this down: Pape's Diapepsin helps neutralize the excessive acids in the stomach so your food won't sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is upset you usually get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it helps to regulate your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is positive in neutralizing the acidity, so the misery won't come back very quickly. You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no heaving, no eruptions of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large bottle of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, or any stomach disorder, due to acid fermentation.

CLOVER CROP PLOWED UNDER

Humus May Be Largely Saved by Plowing Under in Fall—Nitrogen Also Is Conserved.

Clover cut and allowed to remain on the surface of the ground for seven months from fall to spring loses about the same amount of organic matter as when fed to live stock, according to recent experiments at the Ohio experiment station. This amount of humus may be largely saved by plowing the crop under in the fall.

G. E. Boltz, assistant chemist, in a discussion in the station's monthly bulletin, says that only about one-third of the clover remained in the spring when the crop was left on the surface. When it was plowed under, about three-fourths of the original weight was found in the spring.

From analyses of the drainage water it was found that four times as much nitrogen was lost from the plot with clover lying on the surface as from that having clover incorporated in the soil.

SNOBBERY IN THE ARMY.

Col. James B. Allison Discusses Subject Sanelly and Sensibly. Editor Yorkville Enquirer:

I have noticed several comments in your paper on editorials in the Greenville Piedmont on snobberiness by army officers with respect to their attitude towards enlisted men, in which officers are charged with objecting to enlisted men being served in cafes before they are served, raising objections to a lady inviting enlisted men overtaken by her in her automobile to enter it when they (officers) were riding as her guests, and asking to be excused from a dinner party to which they were invited because enlisted men also were invited.

It is hard for me to believe such occurrences have taken place, but they must have taken place, otherwise the Greenville Piedmont would have hardly charged army officers with these offenses. I can only say that our profession, like other professions, as lawyers, ministers, school teachers and citizens in general, has some unreasonable members, but unfortunately for us, when they do occur the entire service is charged with the same lack of common sense. For instance, if a lawyer is found drunk on the streets, you would hardly charge the profession generally with this offense. Or, if a citizen of a town is guilty of some act of snobberiness certainly the town cannot be charged with the same fault. Yet when one or two occurrences like these appear in the army all the officers of the army are charged with snobberiness, or at least, the comments appear that way.

I am no exception to the average army officer and would like to relate a few of my acts and experiences. In going to and from town in my automobile I invariably stop and ask any enlisted man I happen to overtake to have a ride when I have a vacant seat. I am in command of the post and Mrs. Allison and myself are generally invited by the enlisted men to their parties and we always go and lead the grand march at their dances and remain for a few dances after the grand march.

I have also heard people not familiar with the service state that enlisted men felt degraded because they were required to salute officers. On the contrary, the most self-respecting and efficient soldiers I know always take great pride in rendering the proper, snappy, graceful military salute. In civil life, if "Bill" meets "Sandy" on the street, he generally greets him by the salutation of "Hello, Sandy," or a familiar wave of the hand. That is their way of speaking. In the army our way of speaking is the military salute. Manifestly, no officer could remember or learn the names of all the enlisted men with whom he comes in contact; he does not desire to pass an enlisted man and not notice him, so the regulations have prescribed for him the method in which he will be spoken to and by which he will acknowledge the salutation, which is the military salute.

I do not believe that the average army officer feels that there is any greater gulf between him and his enlisted men than exists between the head of any commercial concern and the employees of that business and the restraint that an officer exercises towards his men is simply that restraint absolutely essential for him to maintain in order to obtain respect from his men, and they all understand it so. Being a native of South Carolina, I am very anxious that the army officers be not misunderstood, and I will be very glad indeed if you will give this matter as my view in your paper and do what you can to cause the Greenville Piedmont to look at these cases in this light, and instead of charging snobberiness to army officers, that they secure the name of the guilty party and charge individual snobberiness to the man instead of to the profession.

Very truly yours,

J. A. ALLISON,

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. A. Presidio of Monterey, Cal., October 26, 1917.

The Enquirer commented as follows upon the above letter:

The letter of Col. James B. Allison is to be regarded as an important contribution to the discussion recently raised by The Greenville Piedmont on the subject of snobbery in the army. Colonel Allison is a native of Yorkville. He grew up here and is remembered by all who knew him as a thoroughgoing gentleman—that is to say, a boy and a man who understood exactly what belonged to him and who was always careful to accord to others all that belonged to them. He had a military education to start with and has seen service in Alaska, in the Philippines, as an instructor in army schools, and in active duty on the Mexican border. He is the man who transformed the national guard of the District of Columbia and the Second South Carolina regiment from rabble into sure enough soldiers, and his present position involves as much responsibility as does the position of any other army officer in the United States army of similar rank. He goes into this discussion with the polish of a gentleman and the directness of a soldier, evidently only because he deems the honor of the army involved and his plea strikes us as unanswerable. "Yes," he says in substance, "among the thousands who are professing to be soldiers, there are necessarily a few who are only cads, but please do not judge all the officers by the few cads among them." As to The Piedmont, we can hardly hope that it will ever succeed in getting rid of all the cads; but, nevertheless, it can make them pretty warm and so long as it continues to try to do that it will continue to receive our commendation.
