THE CASE OF THE FISH HATCHERY

For many months now Sam Williams, Bill Turner and other sportsmen hereabout have been working faithfully to get a fish hatchery for Newberry. It was promised long, long ago but when the time to begin work would roll around there was some excuse or other; something had yet to be done before work could commence. The boys were long suffering and did everything asked them tho a lot of it seemed foolish. They went ahead however in a fine spirit of co-operation, never grumbling. Still work did not start. Excuses, promises, buck-passing is all the persistent yet withal humble sportsmen could get when they asked. Why?

Finally the other morning, a gray and raw morning at that, Bill and Sam got their dander up and determined to find out something and find out then and there.

We went into the Exchange Bank building and found them there waiting for Judge Bleese. We came out and they were still there. Later we came back and they were still waiting grim and determined. A lot of T N T would have been necessary to move these fellows right then.

Finally they reached the Judge who volunteered at once to do what he could to try to help them with his friend Lawrence Pinkney. And what he did was to put in a call for Mr. Pinkney and when that gentleman was on the other end of the wire a conversation something like this took place:

The Judge: "Lawrance, these boys are up here in my office and want me to help them out with the fish hatchery here that has been promised them. I am interested in this thing because I am a fisherman, tho a poor one."

Pinkney: "Just a moment Judge until I can get my file on that project. Business of looking up file, and Pinkney told the Judge work would begin on the project the 29th sure."

Much relieved and with proper thanks the sportsmen Bill and Sam went their respective ways, happk that at least their months of labor showed signs of bearing fruit—or fish.

Subsequent to the above incident old Ed Smith and John Taylor have fired telegrams to Sam telling him to mark the 29th on his calendar. But they were able to do so all because the Judge called his friend Pinkney and told him he was a fisherman, tho a bum one.

WPA OFFICE HERE

Applications are being taken at the newly opened WPA office here for the unemployed. Mrs. Seth Meek is in charge of the office which is open on Saturdays and Mondays of each week, and applications for work may be made to her. Mrs. Chalmers Brown is case worker or investigator for the office.

There seems to be considerable sentiment in Washington at this time for a program of renewed spending to take up the slack in unemployment. Harry Hopkins of the WPA announced several days ago that he could take on a considerable number of workers out of his present appropriation and it is supposed that the re-opening of the WPA office here is a result of that announcement.

No applications for work have been taken here is several months and the unemployed will welcome the news that a limited number can be taken care of at this time.

NEWBERRY COLLEGE CLUB

Business Men Discuss Organization

The organization of a Newberry College club among leading business men of the city was discussed by a group of 30 represented citizens of the town Thursday evening at the Newberry Hotel.

No definite action was planned at the first gathering of the group, but committees were appointed to investigate the possibility and procedure of organizing a Newberry College club.

President Kinard expressed his appreciation to the group for their cooperation with the College and stated that he would like to see such a club organized as it would draw the town and the College closer together.

WELL DONE

The re-election by city council of all cops was all right. There are better cops in the world than some of them but none of them are particularly dumb and will, or should be, better cops a year from now. It is only through experience that they can become more efficient in detecting crime. We will never have a good police force as long as cops are changed every year or so. When you know they can do their duty without political reprisals they will do it.

BIRTH OF A SON

A CHRISTMAS 4-H LETTER

Dear 4-H Club Friends:
We are three months on our way in the 1937-1938 club year. If you are able to review your club program and individual tasks in regard to it, and can check them as "complete to date," you are one of the happy successful club workers who can turn the pages of those three months—enjoy a happy Christmas of service to others and pleasant days for yourself—and then face the next new months with clean pages on which to "make the best better."

During this most glorious of all seasons, the application of the 4-H club pledge in "my part in the home" by every club girl (and boy) can help each member of the family to enjoy that "peace and good will" which generates from the Christ-like spirit of which we are especially conscious during the Christmas holidays.

So may we not all join in living the pledge together for the finest influence possible from every club member and local leader, and every extension worker.

I pledge my head to clearer thinking for wholesome personal development and in all that involves the happiness of my friends, my family, and any others who may be helped or influenced by right thinking.

I pledge my heart to the love of home, family and friends, and the same unselfish love to those who are in need of gifts or kindness from me. And I pledge my heart to the loyalty of high ideals for a useful, happy life.

I pledge my hands to larger service to any whose burdens I may make lighter, or whose days I may change from hours of drudgery to interesting tasks and pleasant leisure moments. I realize that in this pledge to serve others, I must care for my hands and train them to serve me to be a self-relying family member and citizen.

I pledge my health to better living or to the best living I can do as an able family member, a citizen of my community and country. To really live this pledge, I must practice self control in regard to personal conduct or habits which effect the security of my body—the temple of my soul!

It is the soul or the spirit which unites us in a great 4-H family as it may unite each family in our homes at Christmas.

May the joys of the season be in each home represented by the thousands of club members and their leaders of this state, and the 1,200,000 in the United States. And may each be inspired to go forward in the new year and through the future with greater service through 4-H clubs for a satisfying personal development, happy relationships, and successful living.

Sincerely yours,
Harriet F. Johnson

Deer Crates Itself

Box in Which It Is Trapped Serves as a container for Shipping

A despatch from Asheville says that the officials of the Pisgah National Forests are embarrassed by the presence of too many deer in the game reserve there and that many of the deer are being trapped and sent to other refuges. There are said to be more than 8,000 deer in the 90,000-acre tract.

Trapping adult deer has been a part of the regular deer reduction program in the preserve for several years. Formerly the deer were driven into large corrals by lines of beaters, who then caught the animals and banded them for crating and shipment. This method was spectacular but sometimes resulted in the injury or loss of deer or injury to the men handling them.

Now the deer is caught in a trap consisting of a crate with two compartments baited with apples, an irresistible lure. The deer enters the first compartment, noses the apple, and gate closes the trap. The deer moves ahead into a smaller box, a second gate falls, and the animal finds itself in a restricted crate where it cannot struggle or injure itself. Foresters then remove and ship the crate containing the deer.

By this method deer are enticed to enter their own shipping crates, without injury to themselves or to their handlers. Pisgah Forest officials expect to trap and ship more than 200 deer this winter.
