Tribute to Mrs. Ringer

We regret that Rev. J. B. Harmon's first sermon had to be a funeral sermon, that of Mrs. Fannie Lominick Ringer. I have known her all my life. She was a very quiet girl and her good nature still followed her after she developed into womanhood. I never knew her to speak a harmful word to anyone. She had been ill health all her life but she endured it patiently. In spite of it all she was cheerful, making everyone enjoy her company. How thankful we ought to be to the Almighty God for giving us good health. There was a large gathering to pay last respects to Mrs. Ringer. Her body was laid to rest in St. Philips cemetery and the grave was covered with beautiful flowers.

I guess everyone had a bountiful Christmas. This weather has been very pleasant. While many homes were filled with joy, there was sadness in some.

On Christmas night it seems everyone had a jubilant time, shooting fire works and Roman candles. On Christmas morning I was awakened by the chattering of the children enjoying their fireworks.

While we are enjoying this Christmas how many of us will be here for the next one is a question we cannot answer. We all hope to see another but we realize that many will have passed on before that time.

My next topic will be "What Are You Going to do In The New Year?"

Wishing each and everyone of you a Happy New Year.

FOREST SERVICE NEWS

The efficient protection of forest land from fire ravage is dependent upon (1) constant surveillance during periods of high fire hazards, (2) the instant availability of fire fighting crews and equipment, and (3) experience and knowledge of fire control and fire fighting methods.

All the land of the Enoree Ranger District is under observation from one or more of the six steel lookout towers located in Newberry, Laurens, Chester, Union, and Fairfield counties. Telephone communication is maintained between each tower and the Central Fire Dispatchers office at CCC camp F-6.

A trained fire crew at the camp can be assembled and dispatched in less than five minutes time.

Thus the only lack is the abstract quality of experience and knowledge. Educational classes provide enrollees with much of the theory of fire control methods later put into practice. But a deficiency yet exists in this manner of training—that of unfamiliarity with the manual technique of fire tool handling and the lack of confidence, which is begot of trial under actual conditions.

From these problems arose an idea—why not rehearse our future fire fighters under the conditions patterned upon reality? Why not put tools in their hands—tell them how to use each—show them—let them ply the implements and then correct their faults? In other words, combine the admitted advantage of both theoretical and practical training.

School—an actual fire training school—with outstanding authorities from the offices of the Forest Supervisor and the Regional Forester, is held each year in this district.

The Enoree Fire Training School on December 17 and 18 encountered damp weather conditions which prevented the intended firing of a sedge field for extinction by the "pupils."

The balance of the program was completed as scheduled, with lectures in the classroom and individual instruction to approximately two hundred enrollees.

Who Gets The Cotton Mill Dollar?

The value of any public asset is measured by its service to mankind.... How much is it worth to each citizen; or, to put it more bluntly, what does each man woman and child get out of it?

It is important to revalue our public assets from time to time and determine their true worth.

The Cotton Textile Industry is generally recognized as one of South Carolina's public assets, though in reality it is financed by private capital. What then is it worth to each citizen of the state? Is it really worth while? Who gets each cotton mill dollar? Let us see.

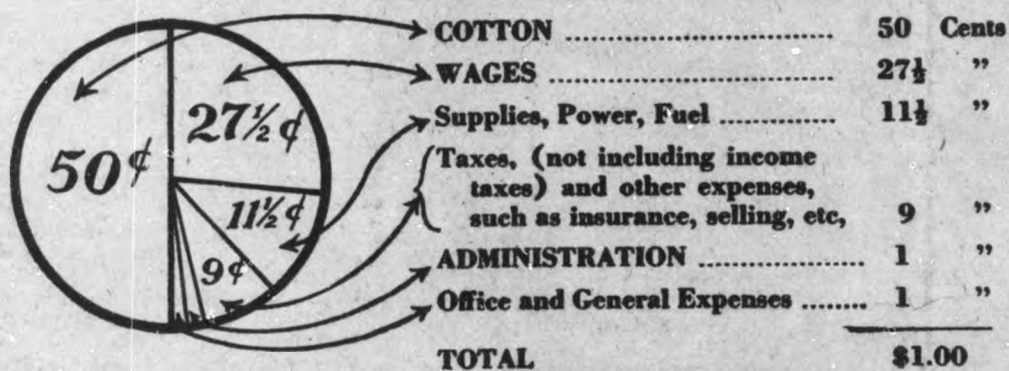

Half of each cotton mill dollar goes to the farmer for cotton, and while the farmers of South Carolina in 1936 only raised 70 per cent as much cotton as our own mills consumed, practically all of what they do raise is sold in the state. The farmer has a huge stake in our mills.

Then 27 1-2 cents goes to the operatives. Together the farmers and the mill employees got over three fourths of every dollar spent by our cotton mills in operations the first half of this year.

Of the balance, 22 1-2 cents, fully half the amount is spent in the state for taxes, power, supplies, materials and services of all kinds, repairs and general office and administrative expense.

These interesting and authentic figures are based upon the experiences of a representative group of South Carolina mills for the first six months of this year (1937).

BEACHAM-HIPP

A wedding of much interest to a number of friends was that on Sunday, December 26, of Miss Edna Frances Beacham of Newberry and John William Hipp Jr., of Whitmire at six o'clock at the home of the bride.

The home was thrown ensuite and decorated with pot plants and ferns. The couple stood before an improvised altar where the ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Holler, of Batesburg, a former pastor of the bride, in the presence of the families and intimate friends.

Prior to the ceremony the candles were lighted by Marvin Beacham, brother of the bride and Pruitt Abrams, cousin of the bridegroom.

Miss Louise Bell of Due West played two violin solos, "Perfect Day" and "La Golondrina." Mrs. Claude C. Gilliam of Whitmire sang "I Love You Truly" and "Until." Miss Lois Moody of Dillon played the accompaniments for these numbers. Miss Moody played the wedding chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered and used Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional. During the ceremony she softly rendered "Traumeri."

Miss Billie Beacham, sister of the bride was her only attendant. She wore a becoming costume of black crepe with gold accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and valley lilies. The bride entered with her father by whom she was given in marriage. She wore an advanced spring dress of beige with black accessories and a corsage of roses and valley lilies. The bridegroom had as his best man his brother, Earl Hipp of Whitmire.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Beacham entertained with a reception for the guests and members of the bridal party.

After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip after which they will make their home in Whitmire.

Mrs. Hipp is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Beacham of Newberry. She received her education in the city schools and Newberry college. For the past two years she has been a teacher in the Whitmire high school.

Mr. Hipp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John William Hipp of Whitmire. He attended the Whitmire schools and the Citadel. He is associated in business with his father.
