OUT AMONG THE PEOPLE

ACCORDING TO SPECTATOR

Shall the Democrats vote for a Republican; or shall Republicans vote for a Democrat? Some days ago President Roosevelt expressed indignation because of rumors that some Republicans voted in the Democratic primaries in the West. What made the President so indignant was that the votes were cast for a Democrat who did not have the President's blessing. The President said this was immoral. But within ten days of that indignation comes the president himself expressing a preference for so-called "liberal" Republicans over Democrats, like our "Cotton Ed". Now, is it possible that a liberal is a man who agrees with and supports Mr. Roosevelt? Are all others bad and undesirable men? Again, may I ask whether this country is to be Democratic Republic or Roosevelt?

Mr. Roosevelt is so thoroughly convinced of his own righteousness that he sets himself up as a standard of measurement. Those who disagree with him are bad and should be eliminated, even though time-honored Democrats; and those who agree with him are the salt of the earth and should be elected, though Republicans.

Logically that permits only one conclusion, namely, that Mr. Roosevelt is above all parties and is the one and only hope of the nation. If we boil this down we find the President's attitude to be: It is immoral for Republicans to vote for Democrats whom the President does not want; but it is highly moral for Democrats to vote for Republicans whom the President endorses. There is no other conclusion; if you are 100 per cent Roosevelt you are sound and safe, though a Republican; but if not 100 per cent Roosevelt you are an old mossback and unworthy, even though you have been so Democratic all your life that you won't even speak to a Republican.

If the President brings together all negroes, C. I. O.'s, good Republicans, fascists and job hunters he may establish the Nation's Great New Deal, but it won't be Democracy.

MARYLAND GIVES TYDINGS VICTORY

Baltimore, Sept. 13.—Victor over the New Deal congressional purge, Senator Millard E. Tydings jubilantly watched late returns tonight pile up a popular plurality that indicated a landslide in the state nominating convention, September 23 when the people's mandate will be formally ratified.

The spare, Conservative Democrat, seeking renomination for his third term in the United States senate against the direct opposition of President Roosevelt led Representative David J. Lewis in 20 of Maryland's 23 counties and in four of Baltimore's six districts, several complete.

Overwhelms in Unit Vote On the basis of convention votes, Tydings apparently was assured of 117 to Lewis' 82, garnered in the First and Sixth Baltimore Districts, and the three westernmost counties of the state, Allegany, where he lives, Washington and Garrett.

The Eastern Shore counties, where President Roosevelt visited Labor Day in behalf of Lewis, rejected him in favor of Tydings by almost a 2 to 1 plurality.

Late reports from Georgia show the veteran Senator George well in the lead with election assured and former governor Eugene Talmadge running a good second. Lawrence Camp who had the blessing of the president and the aid of New Deal patronage was running a poor third.

Charleston Man Will Be Next Governor

Columbia, Sept. 13.—Burnet R. Maybank, mayor of Charleston, rolled up a 13,000-vote majority on the face of returns from today's Democratic run-off primary for governor but, at the request of his opponent, Wyndham M. Manning, state troops impounded the ballots cast in his home county of Charleston.

With only 21 of 1,505 precincts unreported, the unofficial vote was Maybank 160,728; Manning 147,133.

Roy A. Powell, secretary to Governor Olin D. Johnston, announced here late tonight that National Guardsmen ordered out by the governor, had taken in custody the ballot boxes of Charleston county in which Maybank was credited with 21,352 votes against only 1,265 for Manning.

Johnston telegraphed Capt. R. Johnson of a Charleston military company as follows: Requested by Manning "At the request of Hon. Wyndham Manning, I herewith instruct you to get together with the necessary troops to immediately take charge and hold in custody until final action by the state executive committee the ballots, ballot boxes, certified returns and tally sheets in the county of Charleston."

In the heated campaign since the first primary of August 30, in which six other candidates were eliminated, Manning had charged that the 39-year-old Maybank was head of a political machine in Charleston county and sought to inject what he called "machine politics" in the state government.

Several days ago he requested the Charleston county executive committee to allow him to appoint two managers at each of the polling places, a request which the committee rejected.

"Machine" Charge Denied Maybank denied in a campaign speech later the charges of machine politics.

The principal plank in his platform was a promise to give the state a "business-like administration."

In the first primary, Maybank, who is chairman of the State agency in charge of the PWA-financed $37,500,000 Santee-Cooper power and navigation project, led the field with 117,900 votes.

Manning, 48-year-old son of South Carolina's war time governor, Richard I. Manning, and a former legislator, received 74,356. Third in the race was the veteran Cole L. Blease, erstwhile governor and senator, who got 60,823 votes. In the run-off, Blease publicly endorsed Manning.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

20 YEARS AGO

London, Sept. 13.—In less than 36 hours General Pershing's First American army has wiped out the entire St. Mihiel salient, the last German wedge on the entire western front that presented any menace to the Allies . . . The number 13 figured conspicuously in Pershing's junket across the famous wedge. To begin with, it was Friday the 13th. Tonight the number of prisoners is estimated at 13,300. On their right the Americans advanced 13 miles from Fey-en-Haye to Pagny. The attack there was launched on a 13-mile front. Also there are 13 letters in the name "John J. Pershing." Vignuelles-les-Hattochates, the nerve center in the salient, more than eight miles northeast of St. Mihiel, fell to the Americans in the last phase of the attack today—the last salient of the elimination of the salient.

Washington, Sept. 13.—President Wilson announced today that a fair price for raw cotton would be fixed if that should be deemed necessary after the committee to be appointed by the war industries board has completed its inquiry into the general cotton situation. The president's statement, it was explained, was issued to avoid misinterpretation of statements by the war industries board concerning the stabilization of the cotton industry. Price fixing of cotton has been vigorously opposed by senators from Southern States who have had several conferences with Chairman Baruch of the board. They contend that the law of supply and demand should continue to govern the price.

A man in The Herald and News office says peaches grow on trees in other places, but that in Newberry they walk the streets. The force had just been speaking on the subject of pretty dresses and beautiful girls, as the reporter had just come in with the information that he had seen a lovely dress on a lovely girl. The girl was fair to see, as Longfellow would have said.

A colored individual by the name of Henry Brown blew into Newberry from Greenville and monkeyed around until he found himself before Maristate Douglas Thursday morning on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. It was a case of $50 or 30 days. Up to going to press Brown had not paid.
