FLOYD ON EXHIBITION

About the bank the other day for the first time in quite a spell, having but little business of that nature. Note they tamed Floyd Bradley sufficiently to take him out of the cage and put him on exhibition. Ned Purcell there across from Hutto, "making arrangements" no doubt. The recent changes in arrangement of fixtures seem to be for the better accommodation of customers and the S. C. National is serving the field well. They have plenty of money, the only difficulty being getting hold of it. It's easy to determine the business of those waiting about the corridor of a bank. Those who want to put money in seem impatient to be gone but those who wish to take some out via a signature on the dotted line hang around as though waiting on a dentist and hoping he won't show up. But the bank is all right, all employees are courteous and accommodating, and if they would just let us run a nice overdraft up there it would be our idea of a perfect bank.

"SPEAKING OF OPERATIONS"

Acting upon the advice of our doctor friend that we consume daily a portion of sauer kraut for what ails us we ordered a batch made up. In due time it got ripe or whatever it does and we ordered a big skillet-full for supper, reasoning that if some kraut would help, a lot of kraut would help more. That kind of logic has always been our guiding principle but this time it didn't work out.

To get along with the story and skip several hours of agony we take up where we heard the whirring spindles of Moloch in the stillness of the night slow down and die in a whisper. The town clock struck 11. Another hour of staring at the ceiling and across town the brave crowing of a rooster. How fine it seemed then if I once could be a hen's husband and feel like crowing at midnight to the delight of a dozen or so wives. Anyway, sometime in the first hours of the morning I dozed in a feverish fit, my heart sputtering like an outboard motor; and of course I dreamed.

Seven little devils with pitchforks were sticking me in the tummy and I was running backward, stumbling and falling, for some strange reason I got the whole thing mixed up with those little blue filling stations Pete Coleman is erecting about town and it was a superb mess.

The seven little devils kept punching and running me backward until we came to a group of these little buildings arranged around a much larger one in the center and all surrounded by the greenest lawn I had ever seen. Instead of the usual filling station attendants about such places there were only pretty nurses and of course I wanted to stop at the first one but the little devils pushed me and before I knew what was happening I was flat on my back and the ugliest old, lantern-jawed hag I ever saw was fastening a shipping tag about my neck and preparing to write upon it. Ambling about the corridor were dozens of old doctors—just walking about and humming, and staring absent-mindedly. From the pockets of their white suits protruded screw drivers, monkey wrenches and tire tools. Presently they all lined up and began to file past me, slapping my belly with their tire tools as they passed by. One of them took out a tire pressure gauge, thought better of it and put it back in his pocket. Then he flicked from his breast pocket a polishing cloth and ran it across my face a few times, squirting a liquid from a bottle at the same time.

When the doctors finished their slapping and the old hag her writing they wheeled me into a large room with signs all over the walls. The largest of these read, "Change

Your Liver Every 1000 Miles." I now began to get an inkling of what I was in for. The old nurse who had never left me presently yelled out: "Sterilize the lug wrenches! Call Dr. Gus! Emergency! Scram!" Nurses scurried about and hell broke loose in earnest. Two large doors parted and in waddled Dr. Gus, a can of op grease in each hand. These he placed beside the tools which by now were laid out in a neat row on a gleaming white enamel table. The jovial doctor said he could fix me up with a good rebuilt liver which he could guarantee, or that he had one which had never been out of the crate which he would sell me at cost, charging only for the "installation"—$700. I explained a lot of subscribers had not paid up and that I could afford neither of them. We finally agreed upon one which had been used but on which the tread was still good.

The doctor took off his coat and slipped into a pair of overalls and went to work. By this time I was in my birthday suit and he ran a lawn mower over my tummy casting it aside with a bang and raised his sledge hammer to make the incision. The old nurse was holding the gasoline nozzle to my mouth and soon I fell into unconsciousness.

In a long enough time I came from under, just as the doctor snapped the padlock on his tool box. He explained that while he had me down he ground my valves and put in new rings. He said these had been ruined by prohibition liquor and I began to have more confidence in him. In fact I warmed up to him and when the old nurse stepped out I asked him why I had drawn such a one. "Oh, her!" he replied. "Why we always use her on T model operations. She's the only one in the house who cranks on the magneto and we can't afford to leave our tools in T model patients in case the lights fail."

That seemed reasonable and I queried him no further.

WPA IS PLANNING TO PURGE ROLLS

Washington, Nov. 21.—The works progress administration is quietly preparing to drop thousands of persons from its relief rolls so that its funds will not be exhausted before March 1, the deadline fixed by congress last year when it voted $1,500,000,000 for relief, it was learned tonight.

Administration officials said that the plan contemplates keeping the "truly needy" on the rolls and dropping those who will experience less hardship or who have good prospects of employment in areas where there has been a business pickup. They were reluctant to discuss the move but it was revealed that Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins may issue a formal statement in a few days.

The plan is the aftermath of instructions by President Roosevelt last month that the full relief appropriation must suffice until March 1, as specified by congress, regardless of burdens occasioned by the depression. Earlier, in his annual budget revision, Mr. Roosevelt estimated that an additional $500,000,000 would be required to carry the relief load from March 1 to June 30, end of the present fiscal year.

Hopkins told a house appropriations subcommittee last summer that the current program would care for 2,800,000 persons monthly. The business slump became increasingly severe, however, and since July 1 when the huge fund was made available, the rolls have swelled over the 3,000,000 mark.

On October 8 there was a record 3,186,116 on the rolls, almost a million more than for the same period in 1937, and more than half the relief appropriation had been spent.

Preliminary steps in the "painless" reduction program already are underway. In some cities where business improvement has reduced relief cases, officials have not filled vacated quotas. In other instances state and local officials have been notified informally to be prepared for the cut when it comes.

Informed officials said that the plan does not envisage a blanket cut because local conditions vary. The industrial areas where reemployment has been more noticeable, will bear the brunt of the reduction.

In the South, and other areas, where farming and seasonal occupations predominate, the ax will fall more lightly.

MRS. RUFF INJURED; OTHER ST. PHILIPS ITEMS

We regret very much to hear that Mrs. Lola Ruff suffered a fall recently and injured her knee. She is now at the Newberry county hospital and is getting along as well as can be expected.

There will be preaching Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by our pastor, Rev. Emmet Roof. Sunday school begins at 10 o'clock.

The weather seems to be getting like winter time. On Monday morning, November 21, there was a killing frost in the low lands but on the higher ground everything is green yet.

Christmas is just one month from today and it is time to think about your Christmas shopping.
On Saturday we had a good rain, the most we have had since July.

The players have been taken from the talent in and around Newberry. The Club has as its purpose the development of talents and appreciations. This being the Club's initial presentation, the proceeds will benefit the People's Hospital.

The members of the Club and cast invite your presence at the "Calvacade of Blues" to be given November 29, at the Drayton street high school at 7:30 o'clock. Admission, children, 10c, adults, 20c.

GOAL NOT YET REACHED IN RED CROSS DRIVE

The Newberry county goal of $1000 for the 1938 Red Cross roll call has not been reached as the close nears. Citizens of the city and county are requested to join immediately so that Newberry can go over the top by Thursday night.

A special appeal for contributions was made Tuesday morning at Newberry college by Mrs. J. H. Sumner, chairman of the roll call. The student council accepted the "challenge" to assist and at an early date will turn over a lump sum to Red Cross officials. Mrs. Sumner presented the cause to the boys of Camp six Monday night. This group also rallied to the call and promised to "share their little with those who have less".

PERSECUTION OLD STORY FOR THE JEWS

Charleston.—Anti-Semitic demonstrations are as old as the Jewish race, the Rev. Dr. Walter C. Davis, pastor of St. Matthews Lutheran church, said in an address here.

"The history of the Jew through the centuries is one of the most entrancing and tragic stories known to man," Dr. Davis said. "The situation in Germany today is not new. It is as old as the Jewish race".

Except for a brief period of domination in Palestine, the speaker said, the Jews from the beginning have been strangers in the earth, a people without a home, fighting for a place in the world.

"We should not be shocked by the suffering in Germany today," he said. "It is an old, old story which is not strange to the Jew".

Tracing briefly the history of the Jewish race, Dr. Davis said that Jews once became very powerful in Spain, but came to be despised.

"Every nation in Europe has at one time or another persecuted Jews," he continued. "There has never been a period of as much as fifty years when Jews were not being persecuted somewhere in Europe".

He recalled the statement of Frederick the Great of Germany: "To oppress Jews never brought prosperity to a country".

"Germany would do well to recall that," the speaker said.

Dr. Davis questioned the feasibility of a proposal to establish a country to which the Jews might emigrate. He doubted if the majority of Jews would be willing to join such a move.

"Jews bring to the world a form of much-needed discipline and brotherhood," he concluded. "Nowhere in the world has the Jews been less singled out than in the United States. Let us remember that there is one God over all and that we are all His children."

DOWN MEMORY LANE

20 YEARS AGO

Washington, Nov. 19.—President Wilson will go to France early in December to take part in the discussion and settlement of the main features of the treaty of peace. His decision to accept the invitation of the allied premiers was made known last night in a formal statement from the White House. The president plans to sail immediately after the opening of the regular session of Congress on December 2. How long he will remain abroad is not known.

Washington, Nov. 17.—President Wilson in a proclamation today designated Thursday, November 29th, as Thanksgiving Day and said this year the American people have special and moving cause to be grateful and rejoice. Complete victory, he said, has brought not only peace, but the confident promise of a new day as well, in which "justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations."

Twenty-five cents is a good price for cotton if the price of other things were on a parity with that price. But with bacon at 40 and 50 cents the pound and flour $12.00 and $15.00 the barrel, and corn $2.25 the bushel, and cotton goods out of sight, and other things the same way, cotton is too cheap below 35 cents the pound.

When our young friend surprised his friends the other day and got married there was a wedding supper at his home, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Leslie's, and it was a good one, and Grandmother Stewart did not forget the editor, but sent him a large waiter of turkey and other good things. It was fine and we enjoyed it. Thanks. So we were living some for a while. It reminded us of the good old days of newspapering when the country folk around about would remember the editor just like they do the preacher and share some of the good things with him.
