OUR AMONG THE PEOPLE

SYSTEM ABOUT COMPLETED

City workers began wiring the new fire alarm boxes Wednesday. By the end of this month when the boxes will be ready for use, Newberry will have completed her program of expansion to include in the local fire department all modern fire-fighting conveniences.

During the past two years the department has made more progress than at any other time during its entire history. The Nance street station, after remodeling, has been completed and is a credit to our town. It now houses three trucks and there are three drivers living on the second floor ready to answer alarms.

The new fire truck, designed to meet the specific needs of Newberry, is the pride of the department. This truck, carrying 250 gallons of water in special tanks connected with the pump, has saved thousands of dollars in property loss by fire and water since it has been on the job.

Moving steadily forward the members of the department, all volunteer, voted to put future applicants for membership into the company through a schooling before accepting them as regular members. This makes a better fireman and increases the efficiency of the department.

During the summer months of 1938, the fire department held its first drill school which covered ladder drills, hose drills, life saving, salvage and life hazards at and during fires. A list of antidotes for various gases were given each member those completing the schooling were presented certificates at a get-together supper on August 10, 1938. At this time, seven new members were admitted to the company, again increasing the efficiency of the department.

During February of this year construction started on the new fire alarm system. The boxes are on the poles and by the last of March should be in operation.

The operation of a new box was demonstrated recently at the city schools, the college, the Boy Scout cabins, and before the Rotary club. The seriousness of turning in false alarms was stressed and it is hoped the public will cooperate in giving Newberry a perfect record of no false alarms over a box. "A FALSE ALARM may cost a HUMAN LIFE. Think it over before you pull the lever."

The fire department is your fire department. Go down to the station, look over the equipment, get acquainted with the boys. You don't have to wait until you have a fire to meet them—they wouldn't have time to shake hands with you then anyhow! These boys are working for you—back them up with your support.

DR. KINARD TALKS TO SALUDANS

Just what Editor Bill Eargle was doing at a Ladies Night affair of the Saluda Lion's club is too much for us, he having thus far been able to remain single and happy. Perhaps he was there as an humble scribe and as such caught the following from an excellent address by our own Dr. Kinard:

"The high light of the happy ladies night affair was an address by Dr. Jas. C. Kinard, president of Newberry college, who was presented by the chairman. As usual, Dr. Kinard, one of the most sought-after speakers in the state, was at his best and held his hearers to rapt attention throughout by his many refreshing witticisms and anecdotes and by his eloquent and timely discourse of a more serious vein.

Dr. Kinard chose as his subject, "George Washington as a Man." It was one of the most enlightening and inspiring addresses ever delivered here on "The Father of his Country." In his opening remarks on Washington, Dr. Kinard said: "As I read his life I am convinced he was interested only in the citizenship of his countrymen."

Speaking further Dr. Kinard said: "We have come recently to a new order of things. There has emerged an entirely new social consciousness. I believe the time has come when no man can be by his own efforts amass great fortune. We are not thinking of the person anymore but of Society. George Washington first of all showed a spirit of initiative. Isn't it true today that we are too willing to let the other fellow solve our problems?"

Towards the close of his timely remarks, Dr. Kinard expressed concern over the present day tendency upon the government for a living and shun-

County Work At Standstill

Employees of Newberry county who failed of re-election did not show up for work on March first, it became known here Wednesday. Workers elected to replace them did not show up to begin their duties and at present road work is at a standstill. Rumor to the effect that Commissioners Haile and Shealy will seek an injunction to place their men on the job could not be confirmed.

Bids for 28 miles of surfacing will be let on the 15th of this month. This work includes the Bush River, County club, Whitmore to Brick House, and old Whitmore road from the CCC camp to the Brick House. Also 3 miles on the Hartford road.

It is expected that bids will be sought in Sunday papers for contracts on the Belfast road and extension on the Hartford road.

Treasurer J. C. Books is still holding the bag in the matter of the $3,775.00, which the former county attorney agreed to return to the road fund. The money had not been returned Wednesday.

ning all work. He said: "The thing that worries me today is the pronounced disinclination to anything that looks like work. It seems to me that one of the things that we are up against is the feeling that anything is all right so long as we get away with it."

High Court Slaps The Labor Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The nation's highest court denounced the sit-down strike today and ruled that workers who seize their employer's factory have placed themselves outside the protection of the Wagner Labor Relations act.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, reading a majority opinion declared that a sit-down in the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation of North Chicago, Ill., two years ago was a "high-handed proceeding without a shadow of legal right."

NLRB REVERSER

Declaring that the employer could discharge the "wrongdoers" without violating the Wagner Act, his opinion invalidated an order by the National Labor Relations board requiring the company to reinstate employees who were dismissed when they seized key buildings of the corporation.

The labor board had contended that the strike resulted from violations of the Wagner act by the employer, including refusal to bargain collectively.

Besides delivering this sharp blow to the labor board, the court set aside two other board orders for reinstatement. One involved the Sands Manufacturing Company of Cleveland, and in this case the Supreme court held that employees who strike in violation of a contract sever their relations with their employer.

FIRED STAY FIRED

The tribunal ruled also that the labor board had not substantiated a charge that the Columbian Enameling and Stamping company of Terre Haute, Ind., had refused to bargain collectively with its employees. An order for reinstatement of those discharged was set aside.

The court supported a board order that the Fansteel company withdraw recognition from the Rare Metal Workers of America, No. 1. The tribunal agreed with the NLRB that Fansteel had violated the labor act in refusing to bargain collectively with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America.

The chief justice said the strike was "illegal in its inception and prosecution."

NOT 'RIGHT TO STRIKE'

"This was not the exercise of the 'right to strike,'" he added. "It was an illegal seizure of the buildings in order to prevent their use by the employer in a lawful manner and thus by acts of force and violence to compel the employer to submit."

"When the employees resorted to that sort of compulsion they took a position outside the protection of the statute and accepted the risk of the termination of their employment upon grounds aside from the exercise of the legal rights, which the statute was designed to conserve."

Justices Reed and Black dissented in each of the three decisions against the labor board. Justice Frankfurter, a new member of the court, did not participate in these decisions.

Justice Roberts, in his majority opinion in the Sands case, upheld the company's contention that violation of a contractual provision not to strike severed the employe relation.

RIGHT TO ENGAGE OTHERS

He said that when negotiations between the company and the Mechanics Educational Society of America (MESA) broke up and the factory was closed, the "respondent rightly understood that the men were irrevocably committed not to work in accordance with their contracts."

"It was at liberty," Roberts continued, "to treat them as having severed their relations with the company because of their breach and to consummate their separation from the company's employe by hiring others to take their places."

"The act," Roberts continued, "does not prohibit an effective discharge for repudiation by the employe of his agreement, any more than it prohibits such discharge for a tort committed against the employer."

BARGAIN REFUSAL RULING

Justice Stone said in the Columbian decision that the labor board did not support its assertion that the company refused to bargain with the Enameling and Stamping mill employe union, No. 19694.

The strike was in effect prior to July 5, 1935, when the labor act was approved, Stone said, adding that it lasted until about July 31. On that date, he said, two federal labor conciliators asked the company to reopen negotiations.

"However, desirable may be the exhibition by the employer of a tolling (Continued on page eight)

NO WATER SUPPLY RESULTS IN CLUB LOSS

A spark on the shingled roof, fanned by a good breeze, led to the fire at the Country Club last Friday when the building was completely destroyed. Called to the scene, the fire department arrived about 6:15 and by that time the top of the building was falling in. The 250 gallon water supply in the booster tank of the new fire truck proved ineffective on the fast-spreading flames.

Possibly the larger part of the building could have been saved, according to the firemen, if the swimming pool had not been drained. They could have dropped suction in the pond and quenched water.

The building and furniture was covered with insurance. Already plans have been made to erect a new club building.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

20 YEARS AGO

The promenading by Fulmer Wells and Aubrey Tilley with the leading lady of "My Soldier Girl" brought down the house. Everybody enjoyed it.

The farmer has just as much right to get the cost of making the raw material, and a reasonable profit, as the manufacturer has to get the cost of manufacture and a reasonable profit. Until the farmer arranges to live at home and say to the buyer, this cotton cost so much to produce and the price for it is the cost of production plus a reasonable profit, he is going to be poor. The only thing is to plant plenty of foodstuff and reduce the acreage in cotton and then sit steady and demand a fair return for your cotton.

The direct cost of the war is estimated at $200,000,000 in a special article in the London Daily Telegraph. The author estimates the indirect cost of diminished trade and financial disturbance at an additional $250,000,000, thus putting the total cost of the war at 450 billions of dollars.

Dr. James McIntosh died at his home in this city on Wednesday morning at 2:30 o'clock, within a day of reaching his 81st year. For three years he had been afflicted with heart disease, which for the past two months had confined him to the home. After a long service to the people of the community, and when his younger years began to give way to the older, he gave up his chosen work and retired as a physician, but he took a decided interest in all the affairs of the town and county, political as well as industrial, and in all the walks of life as a prominent and leading citizen. Among the important enterprises with which he was identified was the Savings bank, of which popular institution he was made president, holding that responsible position until the bank consolidated with the Exchange bank and opened in the new building recently.
