

YARD & GARDEN

We don't often sit in the parlor at our house. What with a bunch of grandkids who unquestionably take after their grand-daddy, it would soon be a shambles. However this week has been an exception. With four beautiful blossoms floating in a vase I just had to be where I could admire them—a Pink Perfection, a Hermes, a Governor Mouton and a huge variegated variety, the name of which I missed (possibly a Donckleari). I didn't get one of the Mathotiana Rubra from the big bush in front of the Arthur Wehling home but I'm a persistent cuss and it still has lots of buds.

You of course know by now that Arthur and his gracious missus (daughter of my old friend Ben Dorrity) gave me the aforesaid blooms. The Wellings must have 50 or 75 Camellia plants in almost as many varieties. A very delicate pink there reminding one of apple blossoms is particularly lovely.

The Wellings grounds will be lovely this spring and summer. Rosebuds have been arranged near the new street in front of the home which will be in use before long. A lily pond is also next to this street. Lovers of beauty will want to go that way a little later.

With the aid of a yard man who had no previous experience the Wellings have made their place in just a few years into a place of beauty. Some foundation plantings have not come to full growth, and this is true of some of the camellias and azaleas but size does not detract from the loveliness of the general scene.

Doctor Senn is happy! He has secured the Camellia which puts his plants over the 100 mark. I haven't learned the variety but without doubt it is a rare one. Maybe he got it from Dave Caldwell who has 250 varieties in his 500 plants. I hear that Dave has the largest number as well as the largest variety in the up-country.

Camellia growers I have found are always glad to have flower lovers view their plants. I stopped by Mrs. Pope Buford's home Wednesday to view of a bloom the pink coloring of which I had never seen. It is a very deep pink with flaring petals and ruffled petals. A big flower and a beauty. The bush is loaded with blossoms and many buds. Mrs. Buford said the plant was 18 or 20 years old and was sent to her by a friend in Georgia. No one so far has been able to identify it. You are welcome to see it.

Incidentally Mrs. Buford has a unique method of rooting camellias. She simply sticks the cuttings into the ground close up beside the brick wall and forgets them. They root and root well she says.

And don't miss that burst of color in the yard of the Aubrey Harleys. It is one of the prettiest and best formed magnolias I have seen. I have not been able to get such form in this plant. Can it be pruned?

Got a pamphlet in the mail the other morning telling me how to edit the news in this sheet pertaining to Negroes. It said I should not employ circuitous trickery in an attempt to avoid using "Miss" or "Mrs." in a news item. I could dispense with "Mr." they said because it was superfluous anyway. Pete Doe is a man. Mr. Pete Doe doesn't make him any more so, "Miss" however denotes that the gal is single; "Mrs." that she has hooked or been hooked, rooked or been rooked. Certainly there is nothing complimentary in either of the titles nor do I see any reason why they should not be applied when writing of Negroes. But just as presenting I'm not blazng my trails.

Newspapers have long wrestled with that "Mr. and Mrs." business in all copy. It takes up the linotyper's time and in a string of personal items certainly becomes monotonous. M-M has been suggested, also M-M-M. Doesn't sound like much improvement.

The only solution I know is for everybody to get a degree. A degree in every trade would supply variety no end. The filling station boy would be John Bloke FEU (fill 'er up). Johnnie Jones would become J. Jones FBFP (funny books and papers). The editor would become Horace Greely Ffztz DDD (doctor dubious dribble). Certainly would give the old person column a new look, wouldn't it?

Of local interest I might mention that my intellectual but withal orthodox friend Alice Spearman's name appears as a trustee or something of the Association publishing the above mentioned pamphlet but

SCURRY WRITES SHORT SKETCH HELENA CHURCH

Leonhirth Memorial Chapel, at Helena, is the outgrowth of a Sunday School organized and sponsored by Aveleigh Presbyterian Church, of Newberry, under the able leadership of Rev. Claude A. Calcote, pastor. Members of various denominations, became interested and had a very active part in the Sunday School, which had its birth in an old deserted house which many years ago had been the home of the Leonhirth Family. This property was in charge of Miss Henrietta Leonhirth, a saintly woman of the Lutheran faith and was the only member of her family, that lived at Helena.

Some partitions were torn away in the old house to form an auditorium, other rooms were used for class rooms. In spite of the poor condition of building, Sunday School services were held, regularly, each Sunday, over a period of about five years, with preaching every third Sunday. Mr. Calcote had begun the organization of other outpost Sunday Schools and that was just as often as he could get around.

In 1939 Mr. Calcote and one of his elders called on Miss Leonhirth and informed her that they wanted the house and lot for a church. Without the slightest hesitation, she replied, "I made up my mind over a year ago to deed you the property, free of charge, when you start the church come around I have some money set aside for that purpose."

Almost without solicitation, cash contributions seem to come in from all sides. Belk Store donated $500. The Presbytery of South Carolina donated another $500. The balance of about $800 came from the good citizens of Newberry County, regardless of denomination.

Leonhirth Memorial Chapel was dedicated Sunday, July 21, 1940. The building committee composed of: B. M. Scurry, chairman; Miss Mary Cook, secretary and treasurer; Miss Henrietta Leonhirth, Mrs. O. Armfield, Rev. C. A. Calcote, Malcolm Cook, Derrill Smith and Ned Purcell.

The dedication consisted of an all day service, with dinner being served on the ground. Rev. Calcote was the principal speaker with several other visiting ministers taking part.

COMMITTEE HAS 2900 PAIR QUAIL

The Newberry County Wild Life Conservation Committee with T. B. Arnick, President, C. E. Saint-Amand, Secretary, H. E. Martin, O. P. Suber, Herman Wise, Paul W. Ezell and J. T. McCrackin, Jr., announce that 2910 pairs of quail were hatched from 4,207 eggs set last year, and will be given to anyone qualified and making application with P. B. Ezell, County Agent. The birds will be given out according to application, said Mr. Ezell, and are to be released in Newberry County at the proper time.

From 50 pairs of quail which were purchased by the Committee last year, 4,207 eggs were set which hatched out 2910 quail. The South Carolina Game and Fish Department helped in defraying the expense of the birds by returning a portion of the Newberry County hunting license fees to the Committee.

The Committee with the aid of the S. C. Game and Fish Department and the Soil Conservation, obtained a sand bicolor lespedeza plants last year, and this year were able to get 90 thousand plants, which came in last Wednesday, January 15, and are now ready for those who want them. Bicolor lespedeza is a natural bird feed, and is very important because it is an all-year-round food, being plentiful when other foods are scarce.

The Committee whose services are free, are working hard to get a large supply of quail in the county, and with the help of sportsmen and others, by protecting wild life said president Arnick, "we hope to have plenty of quail in a few years."

and Mrs. J. A. Sease Sunday. Miss Ellen Wheller will leave today for Charlotte for a few days' visit with her sister, Mrs. Charles Cox. From Charlotte she will go to Jacksonville, Fla., to visit Mrs. John Lynch.

The Clemson cadets at home for the week were James Ray Dawkins, Quay Fellers, Fred Lovelace, Clarkson Wise, Bonny Ray Stockman.

I doubt if she has seen it. Gals of Alice's liberal and lucid outlook are much sought to enhance the directorate of this and that movement.

And speaking of smart gals I have yet to make up my mind whether Alice or Ex-Librarian Eleanor Driscoll wins top place in my estimation of smart women. Both simply scintillate and almost persuade me that women can be as smart as men. I might resolve the issue by favoring the one who can make the best flap jacks.

Picked up a ride to town the other morning with Mrs. Collier Neel. "I'm on my way to college," she said, adding that she gets up at five or six o'clock in the morning to do her studying. "Pretty rough going at times," said this housewife and mother of two "but I think I'll make it." She will, too. She is in the junior class this year.

I have long wanted to do just what Mrs. Neel had the nerve to undertake, but pre-occupation with the business of keeping the wolf at bay has prevented. Maybe when the kids grow up and out of the way I'd try it, but now I have to look after the grandkids. One simply can't trust grandchildren to their parents any more. Why they even spank them!

But ignorance has its compensations. What we dumb boys don't know we don't have to worry about, besides a sophisticated intellectual wouldn't get any fun out of holding a grandbaby with a juicy bottom.

She: "The couple next door seem very devoted. He kisses her every time they meet. Why don't you do that?"

He: "I don't know her well enough."

MOUNTAIN FEAST

Messrs. Homer Linder and Horace Richardson and a few of their faithful supporters of the Little Mountain School and basketball teams honored the players, the coach and his wife and a few invited guests with a bountiful chicken supper on Saturday night, January 28.

The menu consisted of rice, chicken stew, fried chicken, sliced tomatoes, cole slaw, French fried potatoes, deviled eggs, hot rolls, tea, ice cream, and cake.

While enjoying this delicious meal the boys and girls along with the guests joked each other about the ludicrous happenings while on trips and during games.

When each had eaten all that he or she could hold, there was enough left to feed another sizable crowd.

After expressing their thanks and appreciation for the enjoyable occasion all departed in the same good spirit that they endeavor to show during all games.
