

YARD & GARDEN

I went down to St. Matthews Sunday morning to see Judge Marvin Mann's Camellias, taking Doris and the Stubbhorn Half along for ballast.

The Judge, now retired, has some very fine and very rare specimens, some so rare in fact as to be classed with the Dodo bird. Most of his plants are 8 to 10 years old while a few about the premises are much older and larger. A pink with incurved petals on a 20-year bush the Judge said was Otime, adding that Pink Perfection once bore that name. It seems that the original Otime found its way from Japan to Germany where it took on the name of Pink Perfection and so it is known today wherever Camellias are grown. Determined to have an Otime the Japs set out to develop another pink of the Perfection type. They came very near doing it and in my humble judgement improved upon the original.

Another rare specimen in the Judge's garden is a five-tiered beauty which showed up unexpectedly. Unlike the petals on other Camellias which overlap each other the petals on this blossom are in tiers directly over each other, the flower being somewhat pyramidal in shape.

I regret that I did not get the name of the most beautiful white Camellia imaginable. It grows five to six inches across, has a large center bud and is enameled or marble-like in texture. I liked this best of all of the Judge's flowers.

The extent to which this Camellia business can affect people is illustrated in an incident which happened in Judge Mann's garden a few weeks back. A lady from Columbia stood gazing at a rare blossom and became so entranced that she wept openly right there in the garden.

Judge Mann is now devoting all of his time to his flowers and has hundreds of grafts in all stages of growth. He goes in for the rare varieties but freely admits that some of the old ones (and he mentioned here Mathotiana Rubra and Debutante) are hard to beat. Gardening has brought to the Judge more restful nights, a better appetite, and a new zest for living. "I would have gone crazy after quitting the bench," declared Judge Mann.

Judge Mann is one of our favorite persons and we'll be seeing him again when his Hemerocallis begin blooming, if not before.

Returning by way of Orangeburg we visited the azalea gardens there. They were in full bloom, millions of them, and there is no charge to see them. Barring severe weather they should retain their beauty for another few days and a trip there Sunday will be well worth the 80-mile drive. If you have a color camera take it along.

The City of Orangeburg is to be commended for making all this beauty free to rich and poor alike.

I guess I'm too stubborn to do things in a normal way. I should be eating with Billy while the wife sojourns in North Carolina but instead I elect to do my own cooking and was doing fairly well until Thursday morning. On that disastrous a.m., I found a batch of those half-baked rolls in the refrigerator and decided to have them for breakfast. I set the oven at 500 and turned to other housewifely duties. In due time smoke began issuing from the oven and when I yanked my rolls out I found them burned to a crisp on the bottom.

I determined to salvage something out of the mess so reasoned if I couldn't eat the bottoms I could cook them on top and eat that part. I set the oven at "broil" and when the smoke had cleared away re-introduced my rolls and turned my attention to a few strips of bacon in the skillet which had by now taken on the shape of a mess of fishing worms and looked about as appetizing.

Soon smoke again began to seep from the oven and upon hasty investigation I found my rolls were now as black on top as on the bottom. With the aid of a fork I managed to scoop out enough of the innards to make my breakfast but it was pretty soggy eatin'.

Want A Census Job?

The people who are making the big nose count in the Third district will be in Newberry at the court house Tuesday from 9 until 4 for the purpose of interviewing and giving tests to potential census takers. They have not had nearly enough applications from this county and if you are interested in counting noses at 2c a piece be sure and go to the court house Tuesday.

At 2c a nose you should be able to make $7 to $9 a day depending on how fast you can walk and talk and get answers to the questions Uncle Sam is demanding of all his nephews and nieces. You will need a high school education or its equivalent and if you work out in the county a car will be necessary. Five cents a mile is paid for car expenses. Crew leaders will be paid roughly $12 a day. Age limits are 21 to 65, men and women, black or white.

In addition to population census takers, there is also a need for men and women to take agricultural and housing census. The census job will last but a few weeks but the pay is good and the work is not unpleasant. Look in to this at the court house Tuesday morning if you want a little extra work.

Summer Camp Being Readied

Plans are being made for the opening of a summer camp for high school students enrolled in trade and industrial courses throughout the state. B. R. Turner, State Supervisor Trade and Industrial Education, announced recently.

The camp, which is the property of the State Department of Education, is located approximately ten miles northwest of Walhalla and one mile west of Oconee State Park at an elevation of approximately 2,000 feet above sea level. The camp site consists of twenty acres of land which was purchased by the citizens of Walhalla under the sponsorship of the Rotary Club and donated to the State Department of Education for the purpose of providing a recreational area for high school students taking trade and industrial courses.

Only one building has been erected thus far, but more are planned in the near future. The building, which is of concrete block construction, will accommodate about twenty men and provides sleeping, dining, cooking and shower-room facilities. The window frames and sashes were constructed by the carpentry and cabinet-making class of Walhalla high school who also did the glazing of the glass.

Most of the equipment to be used at the camp is being made or repaired by the trade and industrial high school shops throughout the state. The equipment includes metal show-er stalls, dining tables, writing tables, electric stoves, electric refrigerators, cabinets and food preparation tables.

The water plant, building and other facilities have been financed approximately half by state appropriation and half by donations from trade and industrial clubs in various schools over the state.

During the approaching summer vacation period it is estimated that the camp will be able to accommodate twenty students each week. Plans for the summer include the erection of a second building of a similar size which will raise the capacity of the camp to about fifty students each week. This summer camp will be the first in the state for trade and industrial students. Tentative plans call for at least one more camp to accommodate the large number of students enrolled in trade and industrial courses.

After the program, Mrs. Summer, assisted by associate hostesses Mrs. O. C. Phillips and Mrs. W. E. Turner, Jr., served a delicious salad course and coffee.

SEES JOHNSTON SENATE WINNER

Columbia, Feb. 21.—Rep John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville made most of the legislative news today with a county-by-county analysis of the expected U.S. senatorial contest between Olin D. Johnston, the incumbent, and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond.

Culbertson, a sharp critic of Thurmond, predicted flatly that Johnston would sweep the state.

Thurmond, he said, will "spend more money this summer than ever has been spent" in a state election "but it's not going to do him any good."

Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who has announced for governor, "is trying to shake" Thurmond off his coat-tails, Culbertson declared.

Culbertson talked to the House for more than one hour and 15 minutes. He seemed prepared to continue but the House adjourned in order to clear the hall for a big committee hearing at 3 p.m.

Culbertson launched into his long political discussion after taking the floor to speak on a resolution to require Thurmond to make public a list of honorary staff colonels he has appointed. The resolution, by Culbertson and Rep. Pollakoff of Spartanburg, has received a majority unfavorable committee report.

He first briefly mentioned the matter of the colonels and then brought up Thurmond's war record.

Thurmond won a Purple Heart when a jeep broke loose in a glider carrying him into Normandy on D-day, Culbertson said. The jeep injured Thurmond's ankle, he added.
