

J. S. HEYWARD, Editor.

NOTICE TO READERS.

All articles intended for publication in the Times, must be accompanied with the name of the author; not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

THE THEORY OF GOVERNMENT.

The theory of government is that the necessity of the individual is better protected by the political union, first, has its origin in the desire of the people to be established by the better protection of their rights which are better secured by a political union.

Section 36.—All property subject to tax shall be taxed in proportion to its value. Each individual of society has a right to be protected in the enjoyment of life, liberty and property, according to standing laws.

Section 37.—No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall ever be enacted.

Section 38.—The General Assembly shall provide for an annual tax sufficient to defray the expenses of the State for each year.

Section 39.—No law shall be enacted except in pursuance of a law which shall distinctly state the object of the same in a single sentence, which shall be applied to the subject.

Section 40.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 41.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 42.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 43.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 44.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 45.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 46.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 47.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 48.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 49.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 50.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 51.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 52.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 53.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 54.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 55.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 56.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 57.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 58.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 59.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 60.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

To this point of State Constitution Article 1, Section 1.—All men are born free and equal, and are entitled to certain inalienable rights, among which are the rights of enjoying and defending their lives and liberties, of acquiring, possessing and protecting property, and seeking and obtaining their safety and happiness.

Section 36.—All property subject to tax shall be taxed in proportion to its value. Each individual of society has a right to be protected in the enjoyment of life, liberty and property, according to standing laws.

Section 37.—No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall ever be enacted.

Section 38.—The General Assembly shall provide for an annual tax sufficient to defray the expenses of the State for each year.

Section 39.—No law shall be enacted except in pursuance of a law which shall distinctly state the object of the same in a single sentence, which shall be applied to the subject.

Section 40.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 41.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 42.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 43.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 44.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 45.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 46.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 47.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 48.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 49.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 50.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 51.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 52.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 53.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 54.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 55.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 56.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 57.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 58.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 59.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

Section 60.—No law shall be enacted which shall confer any special privilege or immunity on any individual or corporation.

limit to the power of taxation the power of the State. The act by which the State is to be defrayed the expenses of the State, together with the capitation tax, was enacted the same day as this license law, and is from the separate act. The Constitution requires that it shall be sufficient. What then can be the design of this general license law which demands money for the use of the State? It is already legally and constitutionally sufficiently provided for? Why discourage enterprise by fining capital and strangle success by stealing profits? Why tax the same employment differently in different localities in some instances, and in other cases, tax employments identical indifferently, under similar circumstances?

Why appropriate the pay of State officers in one act and in another, passed the same day, to tax them on their salaries? This latter we may answer from the unwritten constitution of political affairs. It is evidently an "ante" in tax "payed" in anticipation of having a "full hat" to "show" in a reckless game of political "brag" by all concerned in the struggle of the political card.

It is with great diffidence that we perform our duty in setting before our readers a few lines on this vitally important matter. We feel that it is properly the province of much older and more experienced heads than we have at our disposal to command. But we believe ourselves to be correct, and for truth are at all times willing to stand before the public. The law is usurpative in the extreme—conceived in the spirit of robbery, and enacted, we believe, mainly through ignorance on the part of the General Assembly. It should be resisted.

The Disfranchisement.

This is still the all absorbing topic of interest among the young people of the town and county. As we said last week, several names have been added to the list of parties who reside outside of the county. Other counties will also contribute a quota to the array of beauty and accomplishments, which will grace the frolic and encourage the knights to their deeds of high enterprise. Some little degree of excitement prevails among the softer sex, who are dubious as to how they may acquit themselves in the role as round dances, for he it known to the credit of this community, the prevalence of piety and a more strict observance of church doctrines has not permitted a too luxuriant growth of idle cards, and the giddy mazes of the light fantastic. Fortunately, however, for the lovers of the ball, the pleasant anticipation of Muller's Band, the natural desire of ladies to assist all man's efforts to make life happy, and the ease with which they attain all graceful combination of motion, have combined to induce them to practice in order that they shall agreeably acquit themselves even in this part of the program.

Last Wednesday, after the meeting of the knights, which was held by previous appointment, had taken place, an accident occurred by which a horse's neck was broken and the rider, Mr. George D. Sellers, it was at first feared, was seriously hurt. It appears that Mr. Sellers, not being satisfied at the time made by him during the tilt, determined to try it over, and see whether he could make the required distance in the allotted time. This he accomplished easily, but having pressed his horse to a pretty full speed, and being unacquainted with the ground, he reined him too shortly to the left. There the horse getting into soft ground under headway, and somewhat unbalanced by the short turn, was unable to recover himself, and in his effort to do so, fell forward on the side of his neck and broke it, turning completely over. Mr. Sellers came to the ground with him, and being quite a heavy man, the concussion was very severe. Fortunately, however, there was no contusion, and after suffering severely for some hours, and talking wild to the great relief of his friends, he has recovered without further serious result to himself, we hope. The case is a very remarkable one. We wish we could arrange the present was owing to Mr. Sellers' not being thorough in his study of the game. We append below a list of the knights in the order in which they will ride together with the characters, so far as decided. The order was decided by drawing:

Appomattox, S. D. Dantzer.
Crawford, Dr. M. C. Zimbley.

Lang Syne, Danl. Zimmerman
Richard XIV, John Robinson.
Yellow Plum, J. B. O. Betterton.
Southern Cross, N. M. Salley, bit bit
Los Hunter, Charles Collier.
Lost Cause, Edw. Cannon.
Old Palmetto, A. M. Salley.
Blue Plume, E. G. N. Wood.
Derrick, J. M. E. Logan.
White Star, John B. Holley.
Edisto, G. L. Salley.
Lake of Wellington, J. W. Paffek.
Dorchester, J. G. V. Insect.
Regiment, James S. Heyward.
Avonhoe, Geo. R. Sellers.
Black Plume, H. W. C. Patsch.
Down Hill, R. L. Moore.
Four Holes, D. A. Bowyer.

We are glad to see that Mr. F. Enslin has recognized the fact that his proposed enterprise was obnoxious to the community, and has suspended the erection of a store on the Court House Square.

LOCAL.

BEARD Associate Editor.

We publish for the benefit of our sporting friends, a synopsis of the recent game law.

Stop at Mcroy's Hotel when you come to Orangeburg. His tables are furnished in the best style.

W. M. Sain & Co., have just received a lot of fine Kentucky mules, which may be examined by calling at their stables.

The card of Mr. McMaster, the dry goods man, appears in this week's issue. Bargains can be had by purchasing from this house.

Persons in want of building material will find it to their advantage to call on or communicate with Capt. J. A. Hamilton, who is prepared to furnish these goods at Baltimore prices.

We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Dr. A. C. Duke, proprietor of the well-known and long established Drug House, who, as heretofore supplies all demands for choice drugs, medicines, &c. We can confidently vouch for the purity of all goods sold by him.

The secret of success in selling goods and retaining customers, is not involved in a great mystery, but is simply selling good articles at moderate prices. This is why Messrs. Bull, Seovill & Pike have received so large a share of patronage. They now have an elegant stock of goods in store for inspection.

Mr. W. T. Muller, the proprietor of the "Store around the Corner" has been and is still receiving one of the choicest stock of goods that has ever been brought to this market. He assures his patrons of his intention to continue selling the best goods at a very small profit. Don't fail to give him a call when you want anything in his line of business.

RAIN.

After a few days of warm, sultry weather, we had yesterday a fine shower of rain.

COMMUNION SERVICE.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the Presbyterian Church at this place on last Sunday, Rev. J. D. A. Brown, the pastor, presiding.

SCHEDULE ORANGEBURG POST OFFICE.
Mails are delivered at 10 o'clock A. M., and are received at 3 P. M. Up mail is closed at 4 P. M. and is opened at 11 A. M.—Daily excepting Sunday.

DEATH.

Again it becomes our sad duty to chronicle a death in the family of our esteemed townsman, Captain James T. Lzlar, making the third which has taken place in his household in the last few months. This little boy, Edgar P.

of Orangeburg, died at 3 o'clock A. M., of pneumonia, at the age of 18 months, and a few days. The deepest sympathy of the community is with the Captain and his family, in this sad affliction.

CHURCH RELIGIOUS.

Rev. W. S. DeWitt, Lutheran minister from Charleston, will preach at this place, the third Sabbath of this month. The Presbyterian Church has been kindly put at the service of the Good German Lutheran and their pastor, there being no Presbyterian service that day. The several churches of the community, in confirmation of a statement, we will send them, with a list of names, on this occasion. Those interested are requested to take notice.

THE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The opening session of the Orangeburg District Methodist Conference will be preached by Rev. J. M. Zimmerman in the Methodist Church on Thursday evening, the 11th inst.

The District Conference will convene in the church of Orangeburg at 7 o'clock on Sunday, the 11th inst. to arrive at 11 P. M., and remain until the close of the meeting.

Sabbath afternoon will be devoted to the Sunday School, and appropriate exercises and an address from the Bishop.

An inquiry into attendance at the conference was extended on last Sunday by several congregations, through their respective pastors. The exercises promise to be of unusual interest.

THE OLDEST WAGON.

Yesterday a man from New York claims to have the oldest wagon now in use, having been a cart in forty three years. Marion County dispatches the claim. It is a one who has been a wagon for years. Orange Lodge, No. 13, in his city, can have them both far behind. That Lodge has now four members, each older than the oldest mention.

Brother D. D. Dantzer, of Charleston, was raised May 1818, Dr. Samuel Henry Dickson, April 1820; Dr. St. John Phillips, August 1824; Rev. John H. Brown, June 1824.

Can any one show better record?

The above reply from the Charleston Courier, and in answer say that we are advised that Mr. Peter Rowe, who lives within five miles of our village, is made a Mason in 1809, and has consequently been a Mason 62 to 63 years. Further, if he survives till 1880, he will have completed 100 years of age. He is believed to be a fine old man.

Can any one show better record?

ORANGE.

We call attention to the change made in school advertisement of Mr. J. S. Heyward. The results are changed, from what they have heretofore been. The school and Classical is now under the management of Mr. J. S. Heyward. The exercises of his school will commence on Monday next, and begs a continuation of patronage at the hands of his many friends, who desire to have their sons carefully instructed for business or professional pursuits. He hopes to have a fine show of youthful intelligence at the summer examination, which will be public, and at the end of the season.

Booth opened last Monday evening at the Charleston Academy of Music for a brief season.