Two demure damsels, both of New Jersey, recently played a very sharp game on the officials of the Morris and Essex Railroad.

The ladies were going to the seaside, and had the usual amount of feminine baggage with them, in all seventeen trunks. When they showed their tickets to the baggage-master and desired him to check their seventeen trunks he demurred, saying that each passenger was allowed but one hundred pounds of baggage, and that the fifteen extra trunks would have to be paid for. The ladies remonstrated, but in vain; so they demanded to know the additional charges they would have to pay, and were informed that the extra trunks would cost them one dollar each. Now it so happened that a passenger is carried over the road for eighty cents, and is allowed to take one trunk. The young ladies, remembering this, went to the tickets. They showed these to the baggage man, and he checked the trunks as for fifteen passengers. The ladies saved three dollars by the operation, and have fifteen tickets, worth twelve dollars, into the bargain, for the conductor, of course, only took up two tickets, and, as these are good till used, the company may be called upon any day to transport fifteen passengers with fifteen trunks between New York and Morristown. Now, that is what we call a very neat operation, and is another argument to be added to the many already enumerated in favor of the fitness of women to vote.

Nothing—and blasted little of that.

A good story is told of old Jimmy McGill, who resided during the war in East Tennessee. Guerrillas, representing both parties, kept it so warm in that forsaken region, that it was dangerous to belong to either side. McGill had, in trying to ride both horses, got several blackjackings, first from the rebels and then from the Yankees. As they were dressed alike, he made several mistakes in trying to pass for either Union or Southern, as he thought he would suit the crowd. At last he was met by a party whose politics he couldn't even guess at, and the following conversation ensued: "Sir, are you a Union man?" "No, sir," replied McGill. "Are you a rebel, then?" "No sir." "Then what in the devil's name are you?" roared the captain. "Well, sir," hesitated McGill, "to tell the honest truth, I'm—nothing and but blasted little of that."

A Terrible Tragedy.

We find in the Atlanta Herald, of the 4th, the following account of a terrible tragedy that occurred in Burke County, Georgia, on the 28th of August, the result of a difficulty between a teacher and a young man, one of his pupils. The teacher was Mr. Alfred Alexander, aged forty years, and the student, Mr. John H. Moss, aged about twenty-one. A woman, the wife of the teacher, was at the bottom of the affair. Though not in the discharge of any regular duty, it was her custom to observe the conduct and deportment of the pupils, and when she considered them guilty of any breach of decorum to report them to her husband for reproof or other punishment. On last Friday she reported young Moss, who denied the charge made by her; and this led to animated and angry dispute.

Alexander became enraged at the young man for the part taken by him in the controversy, and, advancing towards Moss, drew a knife and stabbed him in the breast. Moss thereupon plunged a dagger into Alexander's heart, who immediately fell fatally wounded. Just then Moss turned to leave, but Mrs. Alexander, who was at the side of her husband, wrung the knife from his hand and administered one or two severe cuts to Moss in the back, near the region of the spine. The result was that both lay mortally wounded on the scene of the conflict, and expired in a short time, the one within three minutes of the other. It is not definitely known whether Moss died from the wounds received from the wife or husband as all were severe and reasonably sufficient to produce death. The whole school and entire community were thrown into the deepest consternation and excitement over the affair which though short, was so decisive and terrible.

A Sorry Compliment.

An engineer on the Pacific railroad tells the following story of himself. One night when the train stopped to wood and water, I observed two green looking countrymen in homespun, curiously inspecting the locomotive, and occasionally giving vent to expressions of astonishment. Finally one of them looked up at me and said: "Stranger, are this a locomotive? Certainly, didn't you ever see one before? No, haven't saw one afore. Me'n Bill come down to the station to-night purpose to see one. Them's the biler, ain't it?" "Yes, certainly." "What yer call that what yer in?" "We call this the cab." "And this wheel?" "That's the driving wheel." "That big thing on top is the chimney, I reckon?" "Precisely." "Be you the engineer which runs the machine?" "I am the engineer." "Bill (said the fellow to his mate, after eyeing him for a few moments), it don't take much of a man to engineer, does it?" "All aboard!"

They have a human monstrosity in Jacksonville which is called an alligator boy. It is thus described: "A boy thirteen years old, with hands and feet shaped like an alligator's his backbone all on one side of his body, his heart on the right side where the liver should be, fifteen ribs on one side and four on the other, the countenance of a bright, intelligent boy and the movements those of an alligator."

Mr. Benjamin's fee for recovering the estate in France will be $6,000; 000. The entire estate of $12,000,000 fall to the possession of Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Chambers, both ladies of Georgia. By an agreement they were to give one half of the amount obtained to their Counsel.

A big system of speculation has been found out against three officers of the Georgia Railroad. It is estimated that the road has lost $200,000 by their connivance.

"Jenny," said a Scotch minister stooping from his pulpit, "have you a pin about ye?" "Yes, minister." "Then stick it into that sleeping brute by your side."

A physician stopped at the shop of a country apothecary, and inquired for a pharmacopoea. "Sir," said the apothecary, "I know of nosuch farmer living in these parts."

Charleston Municipal election will excite great interest. The Reds are trying to get the Government reins; the citizen's party are fighting to defeat them.

An attempt, near St. Louis, to assassinate Gen. Joe Shelby, of late Confederate Army failed.

Four tons of gold were lately guarded from San Francisco to Wall St by nine men. Capt Jack of the Modoc and his confederates in the murder of Gen. Cabby, will be hung on the 3d of October.
