Selected Poetry.

Not as I Will. Blindfolded and alone I stand, With unknown thresholds on each hand; The darkness deepens as I grope, Afraid to fear, afraid to hope;

Selected Story.

Her Fair, False Face.

It all comes back to me now, the utter misery and despair that came to me when I knew my darling was false to me--false to every vow. When I think even now of that one great sorrow of my life, and of the woe most bitter the woman I loved brought to me--the woman whose false love made me what I am to-day, master of the stately home, owner of countless wealth, but alas! wifeless and childless--a lonely, gloomy man.

I went to pass her, but she caught my arm, and burst into tears. "O Master Guy! Master Guy!" she cried. "She has--gone without a word to me; but she left this for you."

Free Tuition and the S. C. College. A REPLY TO OBJECTIONS. [W. J. Alexander, in Baptist Courier.] There has been a good deal of one-sided discussion on this subject in the Baptist Courier during the past few months, and from the present indications it looks as if such discussion might go on indefinitely.

be well for the denomination to consider this question, and to consider it now. Nothing is ever gained by shutting one's eyes to facts; and it is a fact that the belief is taking root in the minds of some of our thoughtful and influential brethren that, however necessary denominational colleges may have been in the past, they are no longer a necessity, but rather an expensive luxury.

A Hereditary Ailment. A great big overgrown tough entered a Grand River avenue saloon recently in search of gore. He was "primed," and he asserted that he was ugly. He even acknowledged that he intended to hurt somebody before he got out, and it would be an injury requiring the united service of at least three eminent surgeons.

Pearls of Thought. Walk as if you were conscious that your body has a soul in it. If a life will bear examination in every hour of it, it is pure indeed. If any one says ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

Things Worth the Doing. To learn to think and act for yourself. To respect gray hairs, especially our own. To waste nothing, neither money, time nor talent.
