

The Delinquent Subscriber.
 One day last week, while sad and dreary,
 As we went out, weak and weary,
 Across the street, a gentle tapping,
 We heard, at first, a gentle rapping,
 Then it became an earnest rapping,
 At our sanctum door.
 "Come in!" we said; while he pondered,
 And in silence we still wondered
 For the knock was not the usual one,
 The knock of a friendly neighbor,
 In his walk, our check was burning!
 Thoughts of crimson gore.
 "Are you the man who does the writing?"
 The words that he said with this lighting,
 Quickly brought me to my feet,
 "Sit down," he said, "I have a letter
 I like your paper and will take it,
 As long as you strive to make it
 As good as it has been before."
 We jumped, we dodged, we missed him
 Or we surely would have kissed him,
 No matter if the boys did roar,
 So seldom treated in this manner!
 We felt inclined to sing hosanna!
 Only this and nothing more.

Why I Give.
 1. I give, because it does me good to do so. I am conscious of the worldliness of my nature. But giving helps to soften and break down that worldliness, and quickens somewhat the latent sympathies and emotions of my being. And this I know is in the direction of a higher tone of this earthly life.
 2. I give, because giving is the very genius and spirit of the world. The sun gives. The clouds give. The air gives. The day gives. The night gives. All nature, indeed, is a ministry, ever serving, ever giving, and shall I withhold?
 3. I give, because I am always receiving. God is giving to me every hour of every day in a thousand different ways, and forms, and surely it is a small matter, indeed, that I should give back a little again to him.
 4. I give, because in so doing I set a useful example to others. I feel that every Christian is bound to be a pattern to others around him. Liberality for Christ is a grace sadly lacking in the religious community. If, by my example, I can help to enlarge it, I am bound to do so. Therefore I give.
 5. I give, because giving brings a blessing. Even in this life it does so. The liberal soul shall be made fat. And in the life to come, who can tell the splendor of its reward?
 6. I give, because it is the injunction of the Bible. God enjoins it. Christ taught it. The apostles commended it. Let two sentences suffice: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver."
 Finally, I shall give systematically, because it is rational so to give; because it will help to secure a more intelligent estimate of the claims for which I give; and because, were systematic giving the practice of the Church, its financial operations would be vastly more easily conducted.

Heaven.
 When I was a boy I used to think of heaven as a glorious golden city, with jeweled walls and gates of pearl, with nobody in it but the angels, and they were all strangers to me. But after awhile my little brother died; then I thought of heaven as that great city, full of angels, with just one little fellow in it that I was acquainted with. He was the only one that I knew at that time. Then another brother died, and there were two in heaven that I knew. Then my acquaintances began to die, and the number of friends in heaven grew larger all the time. But it was not till one of my own little ones was taken that I began to feel that I had a personal interest in heaven. Then a second went, and a third, and a fourth; and so many of my friends and loved ones have gone there that it seems as if I know more in heaven than on earth. And now, when my thoughts turn to heaven it is not the gold, and the jewels, and the pearl that I think of but the loved ones there. It is not the place so much as the company that makes heaven seem beautiful. — Anonymous.

Zach Chapler told with great gusto how he had served four years in the United States Senate with Jeff. Davis, but, alas! that it should be that so stalwart a warrior for the party couldn't say that he had served with him in the Mexican war, or against him in the war between the States. Zach was at the first Bull Run, but in the capacity of a looker-on, and history is not quite certain whether, after that defeat, it was the London Times man or the great Michigan man who was the first to reach Washington.

Small, the colored Congressman from South Carolina, is said to have recently relieved the distress of a daughter of his old master, and appointed her son to a cadetship in the naval academy.

THE COLUMBIA REGISTER
 DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WEEKLY.
 Best Newspaper ever published at the Capital of South Carolina.
 Circulation Large and Constantly increasing.

WE RESPECTFULLY INVITE THE attention of the reading community to the excellent paper now being published in Columbia. THE REGISTER is the only paper published at the capital of South Carolina which is conducted as are the leading dailies of the principal cities of the country. We have a able and distinguished corps of editors—gentlemen well known to the State, for their learning, ability and sound Democratic principles—who have served the State and the South on every occasion when the demand arose for their services, and who may safely be trusted to give an entire and unbiassed account of the leading events of the day.
