ORANGEBURG, S. C., NOVEMBER 7, 1879.

The Charleston Nomination.
At a recent Democratic Convention of the city, Capt. Wm. A. Courtenay was unanimously nominated for the office of Mayor of the city, and accepted it very gracefully in a letter of thanks to the Secretaries. This, we suppose, puts an end to all attempts at reconciliation between the party proper and the Sale faction. Three candidates will run the campaign through: Mr. Courtenay, the regular Democratic nominee, and a gentleman in every respect, trustworthy and honorable; Mr. Sale, who might be considered a bolter, runs from purely selfish motives and refuses to be controlled by party dictation; and Mr. Gayer, an independent candidate, who is opposed to party organization, and wishes to run in between the two contending factions. We hope the people of Charleston will see the necessity of party organization and give their support to the party's candidate. If either of the latter be elected Mayor, it will be a calamity most pernicious in its effects and especially to party unity in the city, and indirectly throughout the State. An attempt will doubtless be made to reorganize the old Radical party, and if this should be consummated, a disorganized or even divided Democracy will be helpless to resist a party opposed to our prosperity, our policy and our citizens. Indeed, Independentism, whether as a bolter or a self-constituted candidate, is worse than the most pernicious type of Radicalism, because one is an open enemy, the other an insidious foe. The true voter, who loves his country, his race and the prosperity of his people, should shun both as he would a fatal pestilence.

The Hon. Zach Chandler.
The death of this gentleman, which occurred in Chicago on the night of October 31, of congestion of the lungs, has been telegraphed throughout the county, and honors appropriate to the occasion and due the public fame of his subject have been celebrated in many sections and particularly in Washington and the Northwest. Whatever of bitterness may have been engendered by the active part Mr. Chandler took in leading the opposition to the South, or in exciting discord among the citizens of different sections, is buried with him in the grave; and we have no disposition to detract aught from the good name he won while Secretary of the Interior under Gen. Grant or Senator from Michigan in the American Congress. We can and will forgive his bloody shirt policy, his religious hatred of our institutions and his expressed desire to hang our citizens to make treason odious; but it is not in the human heart to forget the bitter enemy that would have a brave people to "bow down and kiss the rod of the oppressor," or like a fondled dog "to lick" the hand of its master. These are matters of record, and the South hates them, because they constitute an unjust misrepresentation of her character and motives. Whilst our disposition toward the dead is charitable and our desire to perpetuate the memory of the great, yet Mr. Chandler, and others of his day, will ever be known as implacable foes to Democratic institutions and civil liberty conceived by the founders of the government and transmitted through the intervening years to the present generation.

Tuesday's Elections.
Several important State elections were held on Tuesday in different parts of the country. The News and Courier, in summing up the result, says: "The elections on Tuesday turned out as we anticipated, with the single exception that the Republicans increase their strength in New Jersey, a state that the Democrats can rescue next year. Maryland and Mississippi remain Democratic, and Wisconsin and Minnesota continue in the hands of the Republicans. In Connecticut the Republicans have a larger majority on joint ballot than before. In Virginia the Debt-payers appear to have a majority in both branches of the General Assembly. In Massachusetts the hero of New Orleans and Dutch Gap is handsomely defeated. In Pennsylvania the Republicans elect their candidate for State Treasurer. New York was the centre of interest. Governor Robinson is defeated, but the whole of the rest of the Democratic State ticket is elected." After commenting on the causes which led to Robinson's defeat, the same paper says "the National Democracy have no reason to be disheartened. They know where the rocks and quicksands are. They must make up their mind, in Congress and in the States, to raise no issue, on which they are not prepared to take the sense of the country, at the polls. As the party of the Constitution, prudent, liberal and economical, the Democracy can retrieve much lost ground by the spring."

Sanitary Movement.
The American Public Health Association will hold its next annual meeting in the city of Nashville, Tenn., November 18th to 21st; when the sanitary condition of cities and especially those of the South, will be discussed. In Great Britain and other European countries, sanitary measures have received the attention their importance demand; but in America, until recently, a fatal indifference as to all precautionary measures to prevent or to arrest the spread of epidemics, seemed to have reigned on the people. The fatality which attends yellow fever in the West and elsewhere, ought to make every sanitary movement a matter of interest to our entire people. With this view this notice is written, and with the hope that some representative of the medical profession may be induced to attend the proposed meeting. By communicating with J. Berrien Lindsley at once information as to railroad passes will be given.

The Fair.
The Orangeburg Agricultural and Mechanical Association opened its sixth annual exhibition on Wednesday, October 29th, at 11 o'clock A. M. The visitors in town, apprised of this fact by the ringing of the Company's bell, began to wend their way to the grounds on New Street, and soon squads and groups of men, women and children might be seen anxiously walking, and horsemen and buggies hastening to the point of attraction. The Democrat, no less anxious and curious, fell in line, and at twelve confronted the gate keeper, who, with a merciful smile, said "Pass in, sir," and we passed in proud that our importance had been recognized, and thankful that the inevitable half had not been demanded. A few plows were in line before the front door to arrest the attention, but, satisfied with a look, we entered the building. Bales of cotton, hay, peavines and jute are standing on either hand, seemingly as sentinels to guard the smaller parcels of corn, peas, rice, wheat, etc., that lay scattered on the floor and tables as representatives of the field crops of our county. In this department we would mention the jute contributed by Dr. J. C. Holman and Mr. Harpin Riggs, as samples of crops planted to test the practicability of cultivating this crop in the place of cotton. The great trouble of cultivation and the want of the proper machinery for its preparation for market will prevent jute, for years, from becoming a leading crop in the South. A sample of rice from a crop of forty acres, raised by Mr. C. J. Stroman, which averaged fifty bushels per acre, deserves mention from the fact that the crop was raised by water culture. An ingenious contrivance in the shape of an easy chair from the fertile brain of Dr. W. S. Barton, just suits a lazy man, and was consequently kept constantly employed. Mr. W. A. Mackay had on exhibition a sample of the Amber Sugar Millet from which he realized 150 gallons from an acre and a quarter. The seed of this millet is excellent food for all kinds of stock. Mr. J. L. Moorer is the champion turnip raiser, contributing from his large crop some of the largest we have ever seen.

Leaving the field and workshop we ascend to the second floor, and, turning to the left, came to the table on which were several specimens of tanning from the the works of Mr. H. Riggs, who deserves praise for the success attained in his new enterprise. Every kind of leather from the stout sole to the light calf and sheep skins is prepared here and in the best manner known to the art. Further on was a table literally loaded with bacon, butter and other products of a self-supporting farm which would reflect credit upon any community and praise upon the most progressive farmer. Passing to the housewife's department, the eye meets with an array of cake, biscuit, bread, etc., to be enjoyed only on very special occasion, and, in close relationship with these, stands the table with an incredible list of pickles, preserves, catsups, sauces, jellies, cordials, fruit, dried and crystallized, and wines of every description and quality. We paused here and wondered what mind devised and what hand manipulated such a muster of good things. Behind this is the department of fine arts, where Kortjohn's artistic taste lends beauty to the scene by a display of choice chromos. Above on the wall is a very significant picture of a little baby boy making an exhibition of his natural propensity for mischief by pouring a spoonful of cream on the works of his father's gold watch. In this department we found a newspaper, the "City Gazette and Advertiser," bearing date Saturday, July 14th, 1792, which gave some quaint but interesting news in the light of our modern progress and civilization. This interesting relief was contributed by Mr. W. C. Moss, of the Fork. Turning to the right we notice sets of most excellent furniture, placed on exhibition by Messrs. J. C. Pike, G. H. Cornelison and D. Louis, which proves the folly of our people going to Charleston or any other market to purchase their furniture. Adjoining the furniture we find some beautiful flowers clothed in all the beauty of mid-summer. In front of the product of the vegetable garden, rivaling in quantity and quality those of the field, are found; cabbage (as fine as those of the North or elsewhere), squashes, beets, radishes, etc. Indeed the good housewife would be at no loss to make up a first class Carolina dinner.

Turning now to the right we are in the midst of quilts, spreads, counterpanes, clothing, mats, rugs, and carpets suspended from lines, wall and piled on tables, all going to show that Orangeburg is ready for the frosts and ice of winter. Beyond are displayed the best variety of needle work we have ever seen, embracing the finest specimens of silk, worsted and cotton, tastily designed and skillfully executed. This department, always full, seems to surpass any previous Fair, and speaks volumes of praise for the ladies. They, in their department excel the gentlemen in theirs. Deserving special mention here is a most beautiful stand of feather flowers made with the plumage of our native birds by Mrs. W. J. Snider, also a specimen of needle work by Miss Wright, seldom undertaken by our ladies nor because of its difficulty and trouble. In this end of the building are some suits of ready made clothing by Miss M. A. B. Stokes, which compare very creditably with those manufactured by the best tailors.

The stock department in rear of the building, is scantier than any previous year; nor do we think the poultry department such as it ought to be. Indeed these and the farm and field must necessarily be scant—a fact that is due to the excessively severe drought which prevailed during the cropping and maturing seasons. Taking, however, all the disadvantages under which the President and Directors labored, the Fair was a decided and most gratifying success. We are informed that the income was greater than the outlay, for which Dr. W. F. Barton is congratulated, and we hope the success of this occasion may be but the earnest of a more gratifying success in 1880. Let us work and begin it now for the success of the next Fair.

LIGHTNING SEWER
THE NEW WILSON
Oscillating Shuttle
SEWING MACHINE
is wonderful in its conception, unpreceded for doing a large range of sewing in textile fabrics and leathers. Its motions are continuous, admitting of an extraordinary rate of speed, either by steam or foot power. Every motion of the treadle makes six stitches, thus producing about one-third more work in a day than other Sewing Machines. It has no stop motions, and tightens the stitch with the needle out of the fabric. It uses the well-known Wilson Compound Feed on both sides of the needle. It has two-thirds less parts than any other first-class Sewing Machine. Its arm is fully eight and one-half inches long and five and one-half inches high, and the whole Machine is very compactly and scientifically constructed in proportions, elegance, design and appearance. Its simple, powerful and perfect mechanism places it as far in advance of all other Sewing Machines as the telephone is superior to the tin speaking tube. THE WILSON MENDING ATTACHMENT, for repairing all kinds of textile fabrics WITHOUT PATCHING, furnished FREE with all WILSON SEWING MACHINES, together with a Tucker, Ruffler, Girdler, Set of Hemmers, Binder, etc.

These Machines are on exhibition and for sale by

CHICAGO LEDGER.
Established 1873.
The Leading Literary Paper of the West.
Only $1.50 a Year.

THE CHICAGO LEDGER is now approaching the close of the seventh year of its existence, having been established in the winter of 1872. The Ledger was started by its present conductors with the most judicious aims as to the success of the enterprise. Many literary ventures of a kindred character had been made in the Western metropolis, and miserably failed. The use of journalism was shown to be the work of stranded newspaper enterprises. Others that were living but struggling for a precarious existence, have since yielded to inevitable fate and ceased, leaving the Ledger to-day the only weekly story-paper published in Chicago. The Ledger has not attained the plane of success upon which it now moves, but it has not earned, well-directed effort. Its conductors have labored earnestly and persistently to-day the only weekly story-paper published in Chicago.
