Do Not Use Big Words.

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations, and in articulating your superficial sentimentalities, amicable, philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversational communications possess a clarified conciseness, a compacted comprehensibility, a coalescent consistency, and a concatenating cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of flatulent garrulity, jejuned bobbement, and asinine affectations. Let your extemporaneous expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity without rhodomontade or thronical bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, pompous prolixity, psittaceous vacuity, ventriloquial verbosity, grandiloquent vapidity. Shun double ententes, prurient jocosity, and pestiferous profanity, obscurant and apparent. In other words, talk plainly, briefly, naturally, sensibly, purely and truthfully. Keep from slang; don't put on airs; say what you mean; mean what you say, and don't use big words.

Whatever may be the cause of prematurely gray hair, it can be restored to the same color as in youth by Hall's Vegetable Siccilian Hair Renewer.

Why take Johnson's Chill & Fever Tonic? Because it cures the most stubborn case of Fever in ONE DAY.

A lone bachelor came to us a few days ago with consternation on his countenance. The reason whereof was this: he had been taking a census of the marriageable females on the street which he lived, and the aggregate was twenty of the fair sex, while he was the only available man to be divided out among them. He begs us to state that the cry is for "men," and he daily fears an insurrection which shall wipe him out of bachelor existence. Hence these lines.—Sumter Herald.

A prominent young business man of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. W. L. Baker, Jr., was cured of a severe case of chronic diarrhoea with Norman's Neutralizing Cordial. Three of Atlanta's best physicians gave him up, and yet some narrow brained people say all proprietary medicines are humbugs. Norman's Indian Worm Pellets are very pleasant to take. Price only 10 and 25c. Sold by all druggists.

Look Before You—

"Have you heard what happened to the Dillieum girls?"

"What was it?"

They had seen photos of actresses with the head through a torn newspaper, and were so delighted with the idea that they decided to get themselves taken the same way. They arranged it with a photographer, and the result was a charming picture. They were very proud of it, and sent copies round to all their friends.

"Well, what of that?"

"Only that they had chosen the advertisement page of the newspaper, and under their heads were the words, in big type, 'Our Pants are Double-Seated.'"

When a physician is called to a case of stomach trouble, the first thing he prescribes is opium or chloroform. Norman's Neutralizing Cordial fights all these poisons. Its composition is free from any thing injurious. It is very pleasant and childre like it. Price 25 and 50c. Dr. C. Few & Co., Hendersonville, N. C., say: Norman's Indian Worm Pellets give perfect satisfaction. Price 10 and 25c Sold by all druggists.

Here is either an able-bodied lie or else a very remarkable story that comes from Ohio. And it does not deal with Mark Hanna or politics. It is said that at Oak Harbor, a few miles from Toledo, Ohio, a 3-year old boy is living who is literally eating himself up. He has chewed his fingers so that several of them have had to be amputated, and has bitten off so much of his tongue that he can never speak. He is bright and handsome, and is a marvel to the many physicians who have seen him.

Everybody Says So.

The truth is there is much more war in the newspapers nowadays than anywhere else. Civilized people don't like war and civilized governments no longer seek it. Most controversies now are primarily commercial, and they are to be settled like disputes among gentlemen, by polite discussion and agreement, and not after the manner of rowdies, with bad language and ploys.—Philadelphia Times.

"Everybody," observes the Yarmouth (Mass.) Register, "knows how to run a newspaper and what to put in it to make it valuable and interesting. An exception may possibly be made in the case of the man who owns the plant and pays the bills." It is noticeable also that the men who is most profuse in advice either borrows his neighbor's paper or forgets to pay his subscription, says Newspaperdom. All of which is in line with every editor's experience.

Irl Hicks, the St. Louis weather prophet, predicted a very warm summer, and seems to have hit it. He says the heated term will extend through September, but will be broken now and then by light rain falls. He concludes: "I think August and September will be worse than usual."

Depression of Spirits

so common in summer-time, accompanied by loss of energy, lack of thought-power, means a deficient supply of nourishment. The vital force is lost. It isn't a question of muscle and sinew, but of resistance and endurance. At any age, but especially in youth, it involves the risk of lung disease. Loss of flesh and a cough are threatening signs.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil, with the hypophosphites, meets these cases perfectly. It tones up, fattens and strengthens.

In Scott's Emulsion the taste of the oil is fully disguised, making it almost as palatable as milk.

FIRST ROCK SALT MINE.

Its Discovery Was the Result of Accident Rather Than Design.

"I really believe that many of the greatest discoveries are the result of pure accident, and this applies not only to scientific facts, but also to more material matters," remarked General Dudley Avery. "Accident brought the great salt deposit on Avery's island to light after its croppings had been worked for nearly half a century. My grandfather sold salt years before the war, and my father in his youth followed the same methods of production, even after his father's time, but it remained for my brother John, then a boy of 16, to really make manifest the remarkable advantages which the island possessed in the matter of rock salt mining. It was during the war. Salt was selling in New Orleans for $11 a sack. This was at a period when the salt works of the island were not being made use of. You see, my grandfather manufactured salt by digging wells, into which the salt water flowed in great quantities, and this water he boiled, evaporating the moisture and causing a residue of fine salt.

"When my brother learned of the high price of salt in New Orleans, he went to my father, then practicing law in Baton Rouge, and suggested that he be given permission to work the then abandoned wells and make pin money for himself. There was no objection, and with the assistance of several slaves John proceeded to open the old wells by clearing out the accumulation of debris and boiling the brine, as his grandfather had done years before him.

"He opened a number of new wells and was soon selling salt at a great rate, but the demand increased, and he decided to open a big well some 10 feet square. The work proceeded, but the usual depth was reached with no result. The water did not flow. He concluded to dig deeper, and at 15 feet came upon what the negro diggers said was an old stump. Failing to chop the 'stump' with an ax, the negro concluded he had struck a bed of rock, and when my brother descended into the excavation he managed, with a cold chisel, to cut out a piece of what he thought was transparent rock. My father, however, who happened to be on the island at the time, knew what had been discovered, and in the course of a little while the wonder of the discovery had been noised all over the country.

"Thus was discovered the first rock salt deposit in the south, and a few months after that time a dozen shafts were being worked in a crude way, and we were shipping salt to Richmond in great quantities, at least great for that period in the world's history. Work has progressed almost steadily since that time, and we are shortly to begin a new shaft, which will go deeper than ever—in fact, drop beneath the old workings, although this is not necessary, because we can tap the deposit where we choose."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Tyranny of French Magistrates.

The Frenchman who believes himself to be independent, a reformer, and given to incredulity, still preserves a faith and a superstition—a superstition in the forms of justice as they are practiced in France; an absolute faith in every man who, temporarily or habitually, discharges the duties of a magistrate. The bourgeoisie and the people have brought about revolutions, erected barricades, poured out their blood in overturning four thrones within a century, but, nevertheless, submit without protest to the tyranny of some hundreds of men who are examining magistrates. These magistrates are answerable to themselves alone, and the law delivers into their hands, without any responsibility, the life, liberty and honor of their fellow citizens. Any man whose life may be blameless, should be accused by the most degraded of beings, comes under their jurisdiction. At a word from them he is cut off from the rest of the world, imprisoned in a dungeon, becomes a slave, the victim of an inquisitor with unlimited powers.

It is through this inquisitor that his friends are acquainted of the accusation against him, that the public press is informed and public opinion instructed. He can obtain no lawyer to defend him until the day of trial, when he appears in court to listen to a clerk read the proposal that he be condemned to isolation, or to examination by a crafty and unscrupulous cross questioner, the nature of whose office has destroyed in him all sense of morality.—Vindex in Forum.

Fully Formed.

"But you are too young," pleaded the anxious mother. "No girl should marry before her mind is fully formed."

"Oh," said the glad maiden of 18 summers, "my mind has been made up for more than a week."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
