Must Come South.

Commenting editorially on the subject of immigration, the Jacksonville Times-Union says: The resources of the South are far more varied than those of any other part of the country. Its climate is the best. It has hardly a natural disadvantage when compared with other sections, and had the social and political conditions been the same all over the country from the first, it would now, we have no doubt, be the seat of the greatest population and wealth. The presence of a large negro population in the South will still have a tendency to keep out the immigrant who is a mere laborer, and we are inclined to think this fortunate for the South, whose supply of rude, lowpriced labor is ample for her needs. But it will no longer keep away men of some means seeking opporturnites to use their capital and labor to the best These are the kind of immigrants the South needs, and we expect her to get them, mainly not from Europe, but from the North and

ETHNOLOGICAL FACTS REGARDING INDIANS AND WHITES.

The Red Man. Though Being Eapldly Decimated, Is Well Fixed and Happy Withal.

Not long ago some writer from the west told us that white people were marrying Indian girls more trequently than ever before. "Indeed," he said, "the dusky maidens seem to prefer the pale faces to their own race and

This provokes me to write a letter about Indians for the special pleasure and benefit of our young people. Boys and girls like to read about them, I know, but most of the stories that appear are more romantic than true. During the war our brigade camped one night on the Chickahominy river. about thirty miles below Richmond, and we were shown the very stone on which Captain John Smith laid his head for Powhattan's club when the beautiful Pocahontas rushed wildly in the circle and threw herself upon his bosom and saved his life. About the stone I have my doubts, but it is historically true that Powhattan lived there, and that his daughter, a lovely lass of fourteen, did save John Smith's life, as he in his letter to the queen of England says, "at the minute of my execution she hazarded the beating out of her own brains to save Rolfe, with her father's consent, and from that union came the Randolphs of Virginia, and a little strain of that same Pocahontas blood flows in my wife's veins, and she is proud of it, and loves to tell the story to her numerous and lovely offspring. That little strain isn't bigger than a cambric needle, but it has never lost its strength. She would make a right good Pocahontas now if anybody that she loved was in danger. In fact, she has some Indian traits still lingering in her bosom, and should have been named Indiana when she was christened. But it seems that ever since Pocahontas married a white man the Indian maidens of all the civilized tribes have been willing to do the same thing. It is well known that the daughters of the Creeks and Cherokees in Georgia always said yes when a good-looking white man proposed marriage; but such unions were not hasty nor deceitful; they had to be in earnest and from honorable motives. If an Indian maid was betraved by a designing white man, he could hardly escape for the whole tribe became avengers of blood. Her virtue was her dearest ornament, and if she lost it the third finger of her left hand was dismembered at the second joint, and that left her shame always visible.

Now it seems to be settled by the men of science that the Indian belongs to the Caucassian or white race, or else he is aboriginal and is a race of AND HAY FEVER his own. He is neither Mongolian, Malay nor negro. He was first found here on this continent, just as the negro was first found in Africa. As the elephant was found in Asia, the kangaroo in Australia and the llama in Peru, so the Indian may be a native of the manor born, for geologists sav that this continent is the oldest by several thousand years. But where he came from or how he got here is a question too deep for me. The existence of Aztecs in Mexico is still an unsolved problem, and who were the mound builders is a matter of doubt and speculation. One thing, however, seems certain, that the race is doomed to extinction. The command "be fruitful and multiply" does not belong to them. According to the United States census reports, in 1853 there were in by a lazy vagabond, and it said: the United States and territories 400,-764; in 1860, 339,421; in 1870, 313,712; in 1880, 306,543; in 1890, 248,253. Of these 58,806 are classed as civilized. The Cherokees and Creeks were sent from Georgia to the Indian Territory about sixty years ago. The former then numbered near 15,000; they number less than that now. What is the matter with them? They have fine lands, both for pasturage and cultivation, and the bounty of the government would nearly support them. They have good framed houses to live

Stepfather is counted for two words and grandmother as one by the British ostal telegraph counter as one by the British and cook and eat as nourishing food as we do. What is the matter? I asked one of their educated ministers. "God knows," said he. I mingled with their people and talked with them. They did not seem to be sad or distressed about anything. It was not that the children died before maturity. | hety. but that the mature died faster than children were born to take their places. The exception to this decline of the race seemed to be in the families where white men had internarried with Indian maidens. These unions were alific of children who were healthy and handsome, and always bred after the mother, having her cinnamon color, her straight black hair and high cheek bones. There is no apparent mixture of blood as that which appears in the mulatto who is the half breed of whites and blacks. But these Indian types weaken in succeeding generations of quadroons and octoroons, and if ever the tribes are saved from extinction, it will be by this increasing amalgamation with the white race. These unions do not seem to shock the sentiment of mankind as do the unions of whites with negroes. Even stricken at the discovery of an octoroon among her pupils. Indian students may be found in many of our colleges and are not rejected at hotels or boarding houses or theaters or churches or on railroads. In some of the tribes, as in the Creeks and Cherokees, their features, their beauty and their traits of character approximate the Angle-Saxon. Schoolcraft, who is the highest authority, says their features are regular, their expression noble; they are taciturn and stoical to the last degree, cunning and watchful, mine." pressive man even in his old age. I met him at Fort Smith some years ago. He was educated at Princeton. He was a Cherokee and was born in Vann's valley, near Rome. His mother was buried on a hill that overlooks Cave Spring. When but a lad he was taken west with the tribe in 1837. Not long after that he was sent to Philadelphia to school and was adopted by Elias Boudinot, a wealthy philanthropist, and took his name. While he lived he stood high as a learned and eloquent advocate, and was the agent and ambassador of the tribe in all matters connected with the United States government. But now these tribes do not have to send their children so far away to get an education. What our government does is always well done, and handsome school houses are found all over the territories. In 1877 the policy of educating them was organized and $20,000 appropriated. In 1880 it was increased to $75,000; in 1885 to $992,000, and in 1890 to $1,364,568. I reckon it is two or three millions by this time. And besides this large amount, the different religious societies of the United States give largely to the cause, the Roman Catholic church giving near half a million annually and having charge of more schools than all the other denominations put together. Then, again, just think of the land they have got-160 acres to each head of a family, 80 acres to each child 18 years old and 40 to those younger. Just think of all the old and decrepit ones being supported by the government and all the young ones educated free. Why, it would seem that with all this fraternalism and private benefactions a child is fortunate to be born an Indian. The wards of the nation, whether red or black, are having a good time.

There was an old song that was sung

Oh. I wish I was a goose All forlorn, all forlorn; Oh. I wish I was a goose, Lating worn

But now the song for our thousands of tramps to sing is:

"Oh, I wish I was an Indian." It used to be that in our college text-books that population increased in proportion to the comforts of life that the common people enjoyed. This theory fits the southern negro pretty well, for they continue to multiply like rabbits, in spite of all the barbarity that the Boston Transcript accuses us of, but it does not fit the Indian, nor does it fit the average Boston family, that never has more than two children and wouldn't have any, but for somebody to inherit the estate. But the Hartford, Conn., Times knocks the black out, and goes further in defense of the south than our own papers and and preachers. Verily there are many men of many minds. - BILL ARP in

"Shall the cow observe the Sabbath and rest from being milked on Sunday?"

Sabbatarians, not a sarcastic query, as might be imagined, but a question under serious consideration by the Scottish Sabbath Alliance. That such a question should be seriously considered by a zealous body of Sabbatarians is essentially Scotch. In no other time ner country would such a thing have been possible. Not even our own Puritans, who forbade the kissing of one's wife on Sunday, would ever have evolved such an idea as this. Leaving out of the question the fact that mankind from babyhood to old age stands in need of fresh milk on Sunday as much as on other days, every dairyman knows that nothing will ruin a cow for milking purposes more quickly and surely than irregular milking. This obtection was urged, but the fanatical promoters of the scheme met it by a proposition to dock the cow its feed on that day, so that it would not produce milk, and hence would not suffer from not being milked. The pangs of hunger to be endured by the unfortunate cow were not considered. The idea was suggested by an old habit of the Welsh berders of resting their cattle on Sunday when driving them to market. Begun by pious herders and drovers, it was soon discovered that the scheme was profitable. The cattle reached their destination in better condition for the rest and brought better prices. Then the ungodly adopted the practice and it became universal. But this does not apply to the non-milking scheme, the only pleasing feature of which is that the level-headed were in the majority and voted down the further agitation

Philiadelphila.

[From St. Louis Republis. July 4, 1883.]

"The Supreme Court of Tennessee on June 30 decided the most important trade-mark case that has ever been tried in that State and one of the largest ever tried in the Union affirming and enlarging the opinion of the court below. The court held:

1. That Dr. M. A. Simmons, the predecessor of complainant, by extensive advertising of his celecomplainant, by extensive advertising of his cele-brated remedy known as "Simmons Liver Moul-tine," made it a standard remedy for liver diseases long prior to the acquisition by J. H. Zeilin & Co. of cine, "made it a standard reflect," made it a standard reflect, and it is consistent by J. H. Zeilin & Co., cfrough whem they claimed the right to make the fraudilent packages enjoined, never derived any tule from A. Q. Simmons to make the medicine nor to use his name or picture, and that such use by Zeilin & Co. is a fraud upon the public, and is therefore enjoined.

3. That Zeilin & Co. purposely, fine definedly labeled their medicine in imitation of complainant's medicine to unfairly appropriate the trade of the Simmons Medicine Company, and the execution of this fraudillent purpose and act is encoded.

4. Enjoined Zeilin & Co. from the grade competitor's trade-name, trade-marks, or symbols, or immitteens thereof, to deceive the public and unfairly appropriate to themselves the trade of the C. F. Simmons Medicine Co.

5. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., from deceiving and practicing a front lument the public and unfairly appropriate to the medicine under the name of "Simmons Medicine Co.

6. Enjoined Zeilin & Co. from the manufacture and sate of the medicine under the name of "Simmons Liver Medicine." or "Liver Medicine the name of "Simmons Liver Medicine." or "Liver Medicine of A. Q. Simmons in connection therewith.

7. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., their assignees, agents

7. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., their assignees, agents and employes from deceiving and practicing a fraud upon the public by the sale of packages thus falsely labeled, either upon orders or calls for the genuine. Simmons Liver Medicine. Vo of capiniant, or in any package thus falsely labeled.

8. The court stated that it was the jurpose of the court to entirely destroy the frauctiently labeled packages above described, and cause their removal from the market, and ordered Zeilin & Co. to differe to the clerk to be destroyed, all cuts, dies, electroypes, engravings and other paraphernalia used in impressing either of the above names or the picture of A. Cheap Medicine.

As a rule, "cheap medicine" is inert, worthless, or dangerous. In Zeilin & Co. "anniwer to our bill they said the packages enjoined were designed as "cheap negro medicine for the negroes of the Mississippl Valler." Now, as Zeilin & Co. 'sadvertisements asy, and their manager swore, that all the liver medicine which they make is made by the same formula, is this not consultivity exidence from their sworn testimony and advertisements, that all the liver medicine emanating from them is "Cheap Negro Medicine?" Question: De the sick of America desire "Cheap Negro Medicine?" Let the afflicted answer by their future purchases. Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, established in 1840, is not "cheap medicine." It is "no cure all," and is only recommended for those indispositions caused by inactivity of the liver.

The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of
