BEAUTIFUL HOME WEDDING LAST THURSDAY EVENING

FOR MISS LOUISA DUNCAN.

Miss Louisa Duncan, the popular bride of this week, is being signally honored; her friends are vying with each other to do her honor and many beautiful luncheons, teas and bridge parties have filled the days. Conspicuous among the charming affairs was the tea given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Lindsay McNally at her home on South street in compliment to Miss Duncan and the members of the bridal party. Sweet peas and garden flowers of many hues were used in the decorations and composed the centerpiece for the table which was covered with lace mats and held place cards of daring little Kewpies. The same little Kewpies guarded the tea glasses and the surprise of the afternoon came when little Miss Kathrin McNally and Master Lindsay McNally, two very much alive and adorable Kewpies, appeared in the room and showered the bride with gifts. The hostess served a delicious tea and was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Macbeth Young.

Miss Kathrin Layton, one of the maids for Miss Louisa Duncan, was hostess to the bridal party and a few chosen friends on Saturday morning at an elaborate six course luncheon. The table held a miniature lake surrounded with pink and white sweet peas and ferns and silver dishes held the mints and bonbons; the place cards were hand-painted Cupids with golden arrows and the fruit cocktail and ices were held in Dresden cups. The honoree was presented with a dainty piece of lace as a souvenir of a happy day, and cordial good wishes heaped upon her.

Mrs. Fred H. Garner and Miss Theo Young were joint hostesses at a luncheon Monday morning for Miss Louisa Duncan and her maids. The luncheon had a pink note in all its beautiful appointments and sweet peas in all the shades from palest pink to deep Killarney shade were blooming in the living room and dining room. The place cards were hand-painted baskets of roses and a tiny pink satin bag of rice was presented each guest. The bride was showered with gifts of lace and lingerie. The hostess served a delicious four course luncheon.

Miss Louisa Duncan was again the guest of honor at a delightful luncheon on Tuesday morning when Mrs. J. Clough Wallace entertained the bride-to-be and her party. Nasturtiums and yellow daisies were used in Japanese baskets and vases and the soles cards were tiny yellow slippers. The bride and her party were seated at a table covered with Japanese mats and a large basket of nasturtiums and ferns for the centerpiece. The hostess served an elegant luncheon and at the conclusion presented the honoree with a Japanese tray.

At six o'clock on Tuesday afternoon Mrs. C. H. Peake entertained at an afternoon tea for Miss Duncan and her maids and house guests. The Peake home was thrown en suite and the guests were seated in the parlors, library and halls for the musical program which was such an attractive feature of the afternoon. A clever floral arrangement of pink gladioli was used in the decorations and the same flowers were used in the table decorations. A tall basket of gladioli was on the bride's table and caught the shower of pink sweet peas which fell from the chandelier. Crystal candelabra burned white tapers at each end of the table and crystal compotes held the ices and mints. A delicious salad course with ices and cake was served and as the guests were invited back to the parlors, a messenger arrived with a package, liberally loaded with gifts for this popular bride-elect.

Miss Vivian Sarratt Becomes the Bride of Lieut. James Gillespie, of Ft. Slocum, N. Y.—Marriage Celebrated Thursday Evening, June 7.

Characterized by simplicity throughout yet pervaded with charm and true Southern hospitality was the nuptial ceremony Thursday evening of Miss Vivian Irwine Sarratt and Lieut. James Gillespie of Erie, Pa. The Sarratt home was embowered in greenery, Southern smilax and ivy, affording an ideal setting for the magnolia buds and choice roses effectively used. An improvised altar was erected in the parlor and banked with ferns and palms; tall vases held dozens of magnolia buds and the many branched candelabra shed a soft light over the scene. As a prelude to the ceremony an elaborate musical program was given by Mrs. B. F. Alston, Jr., Misses Nannie Ravenel, Lutie Jordan, Kathrin Thompson, Mrs. J. F. Walker, Otis Lancaster and D. L. Carlisle. The Methodist choir, of which the bride has been a loyal and efficient member, sang the wedding music as a compliment to her.

At the first strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. B. F. Alston, the ribbon bearers, Landy Hames, Jr., and little Miss Agnes Rice, descended the broad stairway and marked the pathway of the bridal party. Next to enter was the matron of honor, Mrs. Samuel Wood, sister of the bride. She was gowned in white chiffon over white satin and carried an arm bouquet of pink Killarney roses and ferns tied with satin ends. The maid of honor, Miss Elinor Gillespie of Erie, Pa., a sister of the groom, came next and wore a girlish gown of georgette crepe trimmed in Italian lace and carried a shower of white sweet peas tied with long tulle ends. Just preceding the bride was little Ethylinde Tolbert scattering rose petals and pink sweet peas from a silver basket and the ring bearer, Sam Wood, Jr., who carried the ring in the heart of a magnolia bud. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Sidney G. Sarratt, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, W. J. Sarratt. The impressive ring ceremony was used and the vows which united these two hearts were spoken beneath a wedding bell of magnolias. The bride's gown was of soft white satin, richly embroidered in seed pearls. The court train was held to the shoulder with a butterfly of pearls and the long tulle veil that fell in soft folds was caught to the hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. The groom's gift, a bar of pearls and diamonds, added beauty to the bridal costume and the flowers carried were bride roses with valley lilies tied with satin ends.

Mrs. Gillespie is the youngest daughter of the late A. A. and Mrs. Sarratt and is a descendant of one of Union's oldest families. She was educated at Converse college and besides possessing grace and charm is a brilliant musician. In this her girlhood's home she is universally beloved and it is with deep regret that she is given up to a distant State. Lieut. Gillespie is originally from Pennsylvania and is a member of the Fifth field artillery, located at Ft. Slocum, N. Y. He is a graduate of West Point and is a young man of attainments. Congratulations are being showered upon him for his rare good fortune.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at which several hundred guests were entertained. The bride's table had a mound of sweet peas in the centre bordered with a fringe of valley lilies and silver baskets held the white iced cakes embossed with the valley lilies. The cake was cut by the bride with the groom's sabre and the younger members of the party eagerly sought the fate emblems. The ring was found by Miss Annie Speake, who will be the next bride if the tradition can be relied upon; the dime went to Miss Theo. Young, who will always have an abundance of this world's goods; Miss Maude Garner drew the key of love and good luck and the thimble fell to Miss Elizabeth Arthur, dooming her to a life of single blessedness. The bride tossed her flowers into the midst of the merry throng and they were caught by Miss Virginia Lee Poole.

Lieut. and Mrs. Gillespie left for a honeymoon trip amid the good wishes and "God speed you" spoken with a fervor indicating the heartfelt interest of loved ones and friends for a life's journey of perpetual sunshine. Notable among the wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, Mrs. S. P. Palmer, Miss Elinor Gillespie, Erie, Pa.; Mr. Beverly Lewis, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Lewis, Jr., and children, Mr. Coleman Rice, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Anthony Sarratt, of Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.; Mrs. E. Byers, Miss Sara Byers.
