BRILLIANT YOUNG POET VISITS CITY

William D. Robinson, student-poet, author of "Lyrical Heart throbs" in this paper, and editor of the Literary Department of the "Palmetto Leader," leading Southern Negro newspaper, is spending a few weeks of his vacation in our city. Mr. Robinson, a senior classman at Benedict College, Columbia, S. C., is widely known all over the South as a poet of excellent talent. He is the adopted son of Dr. Matilda Evans, leading female specialist of the South. While in Pittsburgh Mr. Robinson will give several readings and recitals of his original works in dramatic cast, combining poetry, dramas and music in beautiful lyrical melodramas. His first appearance will be Ethnan Temple, corner Center avenue and Morgan streets, Tuesday night July 14, at 8:30. As the program is given as a church benefit, an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged. This promises to be one of the most delightful entertainments ever given by amateur talent. Everyone interested in the development of the literary talent of our race should attend this program.

Before returning home, Mr. Robinson will visit several of the larger cities of the North

LOCALS FROM THE FRIENDLY CITY

The regular monthly meeting of Board No. 2 of the St. James Auxiliaries met at the home of Mrs. Eula White last Friday at 4 P. M. The business of the board was dispatched with ease by the president, Mrs. Mary Henderson. There were 92 members and visitors present. Among the visitors from other churches were Mesdames Amelia J. and Leonie Davis and Mrs. Ellen McIntosh. Each of these ladies gave very helpful talks, especially Mrs. McIntosh who spoke from the subject "Peace" her remarks were indeed inspiring and enjoyed by those present. A course of ice cream and cake was served to the delight of every one present. Collection $16.65. Thus ended one of the best meetings we have held in quite a while.

Following the morning services Sunday the W. H. and F. M. Society of St. James held its monthly meeting. It was a harmonious meeting everyone was in good spirits. The following ladies were elected delegates to the District Missionary Convention which meets in Glover's A. M. E. Church, Calhoun Falls, S. C., on the 30th inst: Mesdames Josie S. Wright, Emma R.
