BISHOP WILLIAMS

IN CHARLESTON Nothing has inspired our proud city by the sea in all its history as the illustrated lectures of Bible Lands by Bishop Noah W. William head of the A. M. E. Church in South Carolina. Beginning at Mount Zion the Rev. R. S. Lawrance, helped us all, in that he conferred with the proper authorities and found out that the bishop's outfit came up to the requirement of the city ordinance. St. Luke, of which we pastor was out in full despite a wild cat rumor started by a "Negro Judas" in the city that the entertainment would be cancelled by the police and fire departments. But the allegation proved false, and the alligator censured and severly criticized. After all, what was lost at St Luke was more than gained at Mor ris Brown where Dr. J. E. Beard came near giving the bishop a packed house. It was a sight to behold. Its acknowleded every-where that the bishop's Bible Land scenes are the best that have ever appeared on the screen, and his lectures are equally as great. Wherever this program is staged the church should be crowded with people. I agree with the people of Charleston that there is nothing like it in America. Long live Bish op Williams, to inspire the people not only of his denomination but the race irrespective of church and

CHURCH POLITICS

As the time draws near for the electoral colleges the number of aspirants seem to increase daily. We thought once of giving free space in our column to the lay aspirants of each district in the state. But now it appears to be impossible as every one of them seems to be running. At one the district meetings, an aspirant asked the support of the voters, and did not know what kind of meeting to which he wanted to be elected nor where it would convene. I have no doubt but that some other aspirants are in the same "ship." Seemingly they are taking the church's highest legislative body as a mere joke. Some laymen running around asking to be sent to the General Conference when they have not atended a dozen official board meetings in all Missionary, were called upon and of their lives. And the few they met was compelled to adjourn quickly because of the confusion raised by them. They ought be plowing instead of campaigning, for they will get no further than their corn field. The fine lay mem bers of South Carolina have too much sense, and are too well organized to send a bunch of people to New York simply to eat and sleep. Such a crowd would hardly be present at voting time, for they would be somewhere lost in the city trying to find their way to General Conference sest,

Dr. Brogdon, is indeed a great She was accompanied a young leader. He is well trained and a preacher of no mean ability. The district is blessed with a grand and loyal set of ministers and lay members. All the pastors made good reports and the presiding Cain. elder was highly pleased with them. Dr. J. L. Benbow, head of Kingstree District delivered a strong address to the conference, at the conference, at the close of which he asked the ministers' support for the General Conference. Dr. T. J. Miles, head of the George town District and the Palmetto Conference endorsed candidate was at his best in his speech to the conference. Seeming he has the lead on all the rest and his supporters are losing no time in their efforts to make him bishop next May. Other visiting aspirants among the lay delegates were Fred Green, E. L. Thomas E. W. Lawrance, and Dobbins, the latter was from the Georgetown District. Those of visiting ministers were Revs. E. P. Butler, J. C. James, W. P. Carolina and the writer. The district has a number of candidates aside from the presiding elder, Revs. C. S. J. Mollette, W. T. Murray, M. A. Hollins and J E. Beard's friends say he would have been elected years ago, had he entered the race. District lay aspirants W. H. Simmons, Frank Woodbury, Dr. W. M. Evans and many others including a female from Mount Pleasant Station. We were not able to get the names of all of these good pastors as this was our first, meeting with this district but in connection with those already mentioned there are Revs. William Taylor, E. D.
