Female Impersonator Faces Sanity Test

GREENWOOD—Sanity tests were ordered for a Greenwood female impersonator arrested after a stabbing death in the city Monday.

Officer J. H. Smith, of the Greenwood police department, said the woman, who was arrested Monday, was found in a rooming house in the city.

Youths Charged In Cop Beating Held For Court

CHARLESTON—Four teenagers charged with the beating of a city policeman were ordered Friday to be held for General Sessions Court action.

One of the youths, originally set at $2,500, were reduced to $1,000 each by Magistrate James H. Harvey. The four are charged with assault and battery with intent to kill.

Harvey identified the youths as Leroy Franklin Brown, 16, of Simmons Court; James, Richard Cummings, 15, of Payne Court; Earl Wright, 15, of Boyer Court; and Ples Gregory, 15, of Gadsden Court.

The four boys allegedly attacked Patrolman Jerry Harlan Aug. 26 while Harlan was investigating a complaint of disorderly conduct by youths at King and Poplar Streets. The patrolman later was admitted to Roper Hospital for treatment of multiple bruises and shoulder and arm injuries. He remained in the hospital two weeks.

At Friday's preliminary hearing, attorneys for Wright and Cummings objected to the hearing, holding that the two were juveniles. Harvey denied their motions that the case be referred to juvenile court, however, and said jurisdiction for the hearing had been granted by Circuit Solicitor Theodore D. Stoney.

Nabbed in Georgia

ROME, Ga.—A man wanted in connection with an Aiken, S. C., slaying was arrested here Saturday night as the result of a remark he made to a White youth who hitched a ride with him.

Sheriff Joe Adams listed the man as Marion Bell, 39, of Aiken and said he was wanted for questioning in the death of his wife.

Columbia Man Killed in Gun Battle with Police Officer

A man identified as Caleb Eggo Furtie alias Eddie Jackson, about 28, was killed in the gun battle with a Columbia policeman Sunday afternoon.

Police said the gun fight started when Patrolman C. K. Campbell and Det. W. H. Rawlinson went to a house at 710 Hampton Street to investigate a complaint about gambling and illegal liquor.

According to officers, the two policemen found a group of men shooting dice on the floor, and a partially empty pint bottle of unstamped whiskey was sitting on a table.

Officers said when Detective Rawlinson attempted to search Furtie, the man shouted "this is it" and began firing. Det. Rawlinson attempted to take the gun from Furtie and a struggle ensued and Patrolman Campbell came to the detective's aid as Furtie continued firing.

One of the bullets lodged in Patrolman Campbell's right jaw. The other hit him in the chest and circled toward his back and lodged under the skin. The bullet did not penetrate his chest. The patrolman's condition was not thought to be serious.

Despite being shot in the face, Patrolman Campbell emptied his revolver. Officers said Furtie's .22 caliber revolver was fired three times.

Detective Rawlinson had powder burns on the front and shoulder of his coat. One bullet went through the coat near the middle button on the front.

No Motive Seen In Slaying Case

Solicitor T. Pou Taylor told Richland County General Sessions Court yesterday he could find "no motive" for the slaying of Brister Charles Ross at 1006 Lady Street last June 29.

But Jake Shuler, a 37, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the case, had his own reason. Shuler said he was in his room and Ross was coming at him with what he thought was a knife.

"I couldn't jump out no windows. He kept coming at me. So I shot him," Shuler told Judge Steve C. Griffith of Newberry.

Judge Griffith sentenced him to five years after learning he had no prior record.

"Satisfied?" queried Defense Attorney Gary Paschal. "That's all right," Shuler grinned. And he added as he was escorted from the court room, "Thank you, Judge."

State Board of Education Acts to Block Mixing at Negro College

Allen University officials were told Thursday as to his acceptance of two arts scholarships they will take in the scholarship offered by Allen.

The In State of International Education in New York through which the scholarship was offered, said Allen's other preferences for the scholarship were in the field of education and social sciences. This scholarship was offered by anyone who could find a Negro student who was a member of the National Association of Negro College Students.

Notice of Allen's education board was given to the state board of education on Monday.

The notice was sent to the university by special delivery Monday afternoon, following a special meeting of the education board with Gov. Thomas.

The notice said the board would continue until the board decides "it is in the public interest" to again recognize the courses.

This statement was taken to mean the ban would remain in effect until the integration policy is changed, and Allen is again an all-Negro institution.

When public notice was given nearly two weeks ago that the university was planning to admit the five Hungarian students, South Carolina Atty. Gen. T. C. Callison said state laws could not prohibit such integration but that such mixing of white and Negro students was against "public policy."

Other state officials tactfully refused to comment when questioned about the Allen integration plan. Then, on Monday, the board sent this notice to the university:

"Approval of Allen University for teacher training is withheld until such time as the board may determine that it is in the public interest to grant approval, and the State Department of Education is directed to withhold certification of its (Allen's) graduates until approval is granted."

Another point of speculation in regard to the teacher certification matter was that it might stem from the fact that the names of three Allen professors appear in the files of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The three, who have been given a year's notice of dismissal, are Edwin Hoffman, John G. Rideout and Forest O. Wiggins, Hoffman and Rideout are white.

Meanwhile, one of the five Hungarian students, Andre Toth, 24, said he accepted one of two arts scholarships they will take in the scholarship offered by Allen.
