Great Fishing Preserve.
 Our greatest fishing preserve is a reputation that is assured to the Yellowstone park, for the park service, aided by the bureau of fisheries, last season restocked its lakes and streams on a larger scale than ever before. Eggs of native trout collected in the park numbered 5,996,000; 2,871,000 of these developed to the stage of eyed eggs and fry, were returned to the waters there; to these were added from outside hatcheries sufficient to bring the total planting to 4,051,000, or double the number planted in 1920.—Scientific American.

Praise is due the man who makes good when conditions are bad.

No More Tethering Pigs.
 The natives of the island of Guam are learning that there is a better way of keeping their pigs at home than the common practice of tying them to a tree or stake by a short rope fastened about the fore leg, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. A pen of bamboo which will accommodate one sow and litter, or three or four growing pigs, and may be moved frequently, has been introduced by the local federal experiment station and is gradually supplanting the tying method on the island.

Mother Says Babies Never Get Real Sick

That Teethina, the famous baby laxative and stomach corrector, is the greatest medicine on earth for keeping little children well and happy all the time is conclusively proven by the statement of Mrs. R. B. Bogart, of 80 Lindsey street, Atlanta, Ga., who says:
 "I have three boys, the oldest five, the next will soon be four and the baby is eighteen months old. I have given them all Teethina whenever they showed the slightest sign of feeling bad, and not only have the results been wonderful, but none of them have ever been really sick in their lives. I believe their good health is due entirely to Teethina."
 Teethina is sold by all druggists, or you can send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a regular size package and also a copy of the valuable Baby booklet.—Advertisement.

Popcorn and Pink Lemonade

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"Well," said Uncle Jack at the breakfast table, as he unfolded his napkin with one flick, "I suppose next week I have to make a sacrifice of myself, neglect my business, and waste the whole of a rare June afternoon. How about it, Billy?"
 His young nephew, at the sound of his name, lifted uncomprehending eyes from his maternal egg-toast-cocoa combination. "What you say, Uncle Jack?" he asked.
 "Oh, nothing. Nothing at all. At least, nothing of importance. I merely remarked"—here this exasperating young man paused, then added impressively—"that the circus, the really, truly circus, stupendous, unparalleled—"

"Circus, Uncle Jack? Circus? Oh, gosh, Uncle Jack, going to take me?"
 Now the reader must be immediately disabused regarding Uncle Jack's apparent reluctance to go to the circus. Uncle Jack would rather go to the circus than do almost anything else, unless it were to spend the equivalent hours in the company of Miss Caroline Prescott—an alternative, however, which was out of the question.
 For only yesterday Jack with considerable vehemence for him, had told that tantalizing young woman that he was beastly sick of being fifth vice president in the firm of devoted Fetch & Carriers for her ladyship and was ready to sell out all shares at once to the latest comer. Caroline had returned a retort discourteous, and, another one of the vice presidents arriving inopportunely, Jack had taken an abrupt departure.

Now the question reasonably arises as to just why Jack should have expected any special consideration. He did so on the grounds of having squired Caroline ever since he had first held her miniature umbrella over her head on the way to kindergarten and of having asked her to marry him semi-annually ever since she was seventeen and he nineteen—some five or six years ago. But with each passing year she had added new charms and piquancies which attracted new admirers until it looked as if her old-time companion would be crowded out of the running.

So much for the preliminaries which helped to bring about Billy's circus trip. Sallor-sulted and exuberant, he trotted along by his uncle's side and explored the dusty environs of the grounds, poked peanuts at the trunk-waving elephants, gazed rapturously at South American antenators and Australian marsupials suddenly and unscientifically become neighbors, and finally in the awed silence of expectancy, entered the big tent and headed for grandstand seats.

"Wait, uncle. There's Jean. Wait, Uncle Jack!"
 "Now Bill, if we expect to get our seats before someone else does—never sit in my own seat at a circus yet, Bill!"
 For Billy was tugging backward at his uncle's hand. "Wait for Jean. She's hurrying like everything. Her Aunt Caroline—"

At the name, Jack halted abruptly, and somewhere in the back of his mind an association of ideas began to form. Jean—Caroline's niece! Yes, there they were, sure enough, although from Caroline's unconscious he felt sure she had not seen him. Fresh and cool in green linen and wide hat. Lord! how attractive she was and what a darn shame he couldn't follow his impulse to rush wildly over. Yet dignity demanded that he stick by his guns.

ON THE GREAT BERKELEY CAMPUS

Scene Presented at University of California Has Been Likened to Musical Comedy.

On the University of California campus the sun blazes on a white campaign, on the white faces of huge new buildings, on the mountainous, smooth brown hills that climb up behind the campus, and far out through the haze, on the blue of San Francisco bay. Instead of sober New England elms, are altitudinous, half tropical eucalyptus, with rustling, gray green leaves and aromatic scent that somehow reminds one of Australia or Kipling's India and saddle horses and slightly arrogant "colonials" in riding clothes.

The lawns are spotted with curious, low spreading, Japanese-looking trees, and under these trees students squat on the grass with their books—boys and girls from California orchard and vineyard country, Filipinos, Russians, Japs and Chinese. The campanile bells chime, and out of the white buildings they pour in droves—there have been phere. People who had been patiently waiting space to move, pressed forward. Common sense indicated that in a moment the place couldn't help but empty itself. Yet in that moment how much could happen!

Somehow, Jack got Billy on his shoulder, elbowed a bit ahead, and slipped his arm about a figure in green linen. "Keep tight hold of the youngster," he urged, and managed to draw the two of them out on to a row of seats.

"There! That's better!" he said. "Although the trouble's over, I imagine." Then he began to feel embarrassed and avoided looking directly at Caroline, whose own cheeks were rosy.

Billy unintentionally increased the tension. "I guess," he began importantly, "you're glad, Miss Caroline, I told you my Uncle Jack was going to take me to the circus, I guess—"

"Caroline! Did you—did you know—"

"It was a satisfactory circus," said Caroline. "Wasn't it?"

"Oh, Caroline," said Jack humbly, so low that the children couldn't hear, even if they had not been comparing notes. "I'm sorry for all I said that afternoon. Take me back and I'll be office boy!"

But Caroline, who still retained a thrilling memory of the feel of Jack's arm about her waist, shook her head gently. "Let's go into partnership," she murmured, "and freeze out the others!"

"Don't forget, Uncle Jack," reminded Billy, whose upbringing was dietetically perfect. "I can have some popcorn and pink lemonade. It's a special occasion, you know!"

"A special occasion? I'll say it is, old man!" exclaimed his uncle fervently.

Giant Butterflies.

It is said that in the northern part of New Guinea there are butterflies so large that the natives hunt them with the bow and arrow. They belong to the species Troides chimaera and they are not only among the largest, but among the rarest butterflies in the world. Some specimens measure eleven and one-half inches across the wings.

The males, which are very shy, are found only at certain hours of the day and at the tops of lofty blossom-bearing trees. The natives sometimes shoot the butterflies with four-pronged arrows, and sometimes capture them in nets made of spiders' webs. The first specimens were taken to London not so long ago by Meek, who had spent more than twenty years in New Guinea hunting rare varieties of birds and insects for American and European collections.—Washington Star.

Monosyllabic Language.

In the monosyllabic languages the words are composed of simple monosyllabic roots isolated, and, as a rule, independent of one another. In this elementary form of language, the root words correspond in their essence with general conceptions only, and are unrestricted by any notions of person, gender, number, time, mood, or relationship.

Never Refuse to Make Discoveries.

"Never refuse to see what you do not want to see or which might go against your own cherished hypothesis or against the views of authorities. These are just the clues to follow up, as is also emphatically so the thing you have never seen or heard of before. For the thing you cannot get a pigeonhole for is the finger point showing the way to discovery."

Water Creatures Live Long.

Among fishes and creatures that live in the water, great age is sometimes attained. The carp has been known to live 200 years. Common river trout have been confined in a well 30 to 50 years and a pike was caught in 1497 in a lake near Hellbroon in Swabia with a brass ring attached to it recounting that it was placed in the lake in the year 1230.

SENATOR FOR A DAY

Mrs. W. H. Felton, the lady from Georgia nominated to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Watson, being assisted down the steps of the United States capitol by a newspaper man. Mrs. Felton claimed the right to be sworn in and seated, and Senator-elect George agreed to waive the presentation of his credentials for one day, in order to enable Mrs. Felton actually to serve.

HER VOICE AMAZES

Marion Talley, the fifteen-year-old daughter of a railroad telegraph operator of Kansas City, Mo., who had her voice judged by Otto Kahn, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York, and Director Giulio Gatti-Casazza, and amazed the opera conductors by her wonderful lyric soprano. She was advised not to appear before public audiences for at least three years and to study under a good teacher.

Kisses by Mail Convict.
 Sending kisses by mail is held by a divorce court in Los Angeles to be as definite evidence of disloyalty to one's wife as delivery of the same by lip contact. Mrs. Joseph A. Green charged this offense against her husband, and produced letters to show that the other woman in the case sent kisses in return to Green. Separate maintenance and alimony was the decree of the court.

Case of Arrested Development.
 When a woman was summoned at Folkestone, Eng., for neglecting her child, a police inspector said the girl, although eleven, behaved as if she were seven. The woman told him the girl, who had not been out for a year, was entirely fed on malted milk, eggs, and fresh milk from a bottle, as she could not feed herself.
