initiative in anything of importance. I trust this state of things may not continue much longer, as it militates seriously against the Jublic interest.

Crowds are now daily attending the move ment of the Jackson monument pedestal, block of marble, which is slowly wending its way along the avenue. It is, we may add the largest mass of stone ever attempted to be moved in a single piece in Washington, The motive power is eight large horses and the machinery employed is that known on board ship by the title of the "watch teakle" ringing. The statue of Mills, which is to be placed on it, is already au fait accompli. It is the greatest triumph of the arts known to the artistic history of our country. Up to the very hour of his success, it was very fashionable here to predict that to make his horse stand securely on its hind legs, he would, in the end be forced to resort to some one of the expedients common in Europe in getting up eques trian statues. He has practically demonstrated that "some things can be done as well as others," (to quote the renowned Sam Patch.) South Carolinian as he is, his achievement has earned him the reputation of being about the cutest Yankee among us.

According to my anticipation, expressed a few days ago, we are already in the midst of a struggle between protection and free trade. The renewal of this movement to day gave rise to an able debate, in which the speech was decidedly that of Mr. Woodward of your State, whose philosophical views upon the results of the progress of the country in the arts, and of the developments of her resources, were listened to with profound attention by the House and galleries. The representatives of the manufacturing interest appear anxious to do all in their power to stave off the approximation to free trade so eminently threatening just now. So far their arguments, coming from Messrs. Brooks, Cleveland and Duncan, have been feebly.

Blackword's Magazine.

We call the attention of the reading public to the British Periodical Publications of Leonard Scott & Co., an advertisement of which may be found in another column.

The high position which each of these-The London Quarterly Review the Edinburgh, the North British, and the West Minste: Reviews, and Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine-have attained, the great ability with which they are conducted, render them eminently worthy of confidence and support.

We conceive it unnecessary that we should say any thing more in their favor, as we are assured the public have long since determined this for themselves. It may be proper for us to add, that the early publication of Blackwood, containing much that is useful and entertaining of British Literature-"delivered in all the principal cities in the United States, free of postage, and forwarded by mail, under the provisions of the late Post-Office law, at merely nominal rates"-is a strong inducement why every gentleman should be furnished with it. By the rates published, it will be seen that a discount of 25 per cent. will be allowed to clubs ordering four or more copies of any one or more of these valuable works. The beginnning of the New Year is a good time to subscribe.

Illustrated Family Friend.

We call attention to this elegant paper which has entered its second Volume. Mr. Godman, its enterprizing proprietor, has spared neither pains nor money to make it "a choice companion for the home circle, the social group, the lonesome hour and the leisure moment." Certainly the intelligence of our people, and their pride of spirit will not suffer this enterprise to fall through for the want of proper patronage. Of Mr. Godman's merits as a writer and Editor, we have frequently spoken, and we have only to say that he has more energy than commonly fails to the share of one
