THE FARMER'S DATEUTER.

The may not in the mazy dance, Wich jewelled maidens vie; She may not smile on courtly swain. With soft, bewitching eye:

She cannot beast a form and incin That lavish wealth has brought her, But, ah! the has much fairer charms: The Farmer's peerless daughter.

The rose and tily on her cheek Together love and dwell; Her laughing blue ey's wreath around The heart a witching spell; Her smile is bright as morning's glow Upon the dewy plain : And listening to her voice we dream

That spring has come again. The timid fawn is not more wild, Nor yet more gay and free, The lily's cup is not more pure

In all i's purity; Of all the wild flowers in the wood, Or by the chrys al water,

There's none more pure or fair than she The Farmer's peerless daughter. The haughty belle whom all adore,

On downy pillow lies-While forth upon the dewy lawn The merry maiden hies; And with the lark's uprising song, Her own clear voice is heard— Ye may not tell which sweetest sings, The maiden or the bird!

Then tell me not of jewelled fair The brightest jewell yet Is the true heart where virtue dwells, And innocence is set.

The glow of heal h upon her cheek-The grace no rule has taught her-The fairest wreath that beauty twines Is for the Farmer's daughter.

AGRICULTURE.

SMALL MATTERS IN AGRICULTURE.

From all sections do we hear the erv of short provision crops, and there is an alarming touth in the cry who can doubt when he steps into a provi ion store of one of our cities and learn that bacon sides are fi teen cents per pound, corn one dollar per bushel, and all other catables in proportion? | Why is this? The drought, no doubt, has much to do with it, but it is not entirely owing to the drought. Our farmers and planters have not given sufficient attention to the small matters of agriculture. Who cares for corn, potatoes, peas, and the thousand little garden laxuries, that all may have, when the great staple commands good prices? But alas! the great stample is down, and the small matters are up. If the Apostic meant what he said, when he declared that those who provided not for their own household-were worse than infidels, we fear one people are in a bad olight. "Despise not small things," says maniantion-but how few heed it. the world: let us talk more of the hum- be was honorable .- N. O. Delta.

Who has planted the gouber and the cow pen-who has fine fields of potatoes; who is well stocked with carrots, rutabagas and turnips; whose corn crib is fulls who is well supplied with died fruit for the year; who has a supply of herbs for medici al and savory purposes; and, in short, who have any of the comforts of life around them that they do not expect to pay for from the proceeds of cotton, at its present low prices! Again, we say, "Despise not small things." Were there gouber pens in abundance, bacon would not being fifteen cents per pound. Were the root crops properly attended to, fat beef and mutton might grace our tables. Were fruits cultivated, preserved and dried, a healthfull condiment might accompany our bacon and greens through the winter. Were the herbs culti-ated and saved, dimes and dollars would remain at home, that now swell the Shakers' purses; and were the innumerable multitude of small matters properly attended to, that grow almost spontaneously here millions of dollars would stay at tleman. A Produce of his as home to build colleges and school houses, that now are scattered over the world-and our peo; le feeling and reali iag their independence, would then indeed, "g eatly independent live: s."-Again we say, despise not the small things of agriculture .- Soil of the South.

SOUTHERN GENTLEVEN. Sel'-prase is no praise, the adage is vulgar, but true. But we may sometimes say a word in justice to ourselves, which cannot be considered as the result of a vain or boasting temperament. We only echo the sentiments of every enlightened traveler, when we say that the population of the Southern States of this Union, is the best educated, and most refined, which our country contains. It would be difficult to assign the reason, but the fact stands selfevident. A Southern gentleman is a gentlman every inch-brave active, clear headed, honest in public affairs, straightforward in business, and noble hearted in his family. True, in mere mercantile affairs, there is a dash of the rough readiness about him which is the distinguishing charactertic of our people, but when the work of the day is over, no one can better appreciate the amenities of private lie; music poetry, painting the "fine forest thoughts," of our olden bards, the bold words and deeds of the world's heroes are dear to him, and while he never shi ks the more severe pursuits of lie, he cherishes a sincere affection for the glories and triumphs of art.

Southerners have been called fire-eaters and Hotspurs; indeed the latter name is a favo ite with our calmoniators. Well, why not accept the fitle ! Better be Hotspur than Pasolles-inen of deeds than words Courage is not a quality to be ashamed of; let us rat er, be proud of our warm blood, which would feel an insult like the searing of hot icon, and sooner flow in gallant contest, than stagate in mean intri-
