WOMEN
IN THE
News
BY JANET CUPLER

CO-ED TRAINING: Under plans now being completed, 100 coeds at the University of Illinois are beginning military training with the school's ROTC cadets. The Woman's Auxiliary Training corps, as it is called, will offer a two-year course following the general plan of the WAAC, but the corps is not an officially recognized unit of the army.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES: One of the five WAACs promoted from second lieutenant to captain after their arrival in North Africa was still wearing her lieutenant's bars when the news reached this country. She explained that they were "all out of captain's bars".... The man who invented the feather boa (remember?) has offered a reward of about $50,000 for the capture of Marshal Rommel, dead or alive. He is Charles E. Lee of London.

NEW INSTITUTE: The Elizabeth Kenny institute in Minneapolis, Minn., has been formally dedicated to the Australian nurse whose new conception of the symptoms of infantile paralysis has led to a revolutionary treatment of that disease.

QUESTION MARK: Anne Morgan, J. P.'s intrepid and fearless sister, has devoted much of her life to the welfare of France and the French people. She was there with her ambulance drivers when France fell. And for her work after the German occupation she received a citation from the Vichy ministry of war. Always a hard worker, she stood by France even in defeat.... Just before our troops advanced into French West Africa two officers were sent with a message to the French commandant. They traveled under a flag of truce, but the French fired on them. One was killed, the other taken prisoner. The one taken prisoner has been released, but many people are wondering what effect his capture will have on Anne Morgan's attitude toward France. The officer taken prisoner was her favorite nephew, Major Pierpont Morgan Hamilton.
