HOUSEWIVES MUST SHOW INGENUITY IN PREPARING MEALS

War-time restrictions and shortages of many food items are taxing the ingenuity of every home-maker in these United States.

First of all, home-makers must keep informed as to what foods are being restricted and just what foods are available. Then they must plan their meals accordingly, keeping upmost in their minds the necessity for good nutrition.

In the second place home-makers must take full advantage of the particular qualities in every food item which they may buy.

In the third place—and here's where the cook comes into her own—every trick of flavoring and serving known to woman should be brought into play.

The art of combining foods in delicious dishes makes it possible to stretch the limited article by adding to it a quantity of a non-restricted article.

When the same foods must be used over and over again the manner of serving them as well as the seasoning must be varied. Vegetables can be served in innumerable ways hot as well as in salads. Fish, poultry, and the "variety" meats that are non-restricted lend themselves to salads as well as to main dishes. Fruits, too, can figure as desserts or salads. Even the cereals can be converted from plain breakfast porridges to attractive desserts.

Baked Fish

One pound fish fillets or small fish, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, cracker or bread crumbs; 1 tablespoon oil or melted margarine.

Cut fish in pieces for serving and dip in milk seasoned with salt and pepper. Roll in crumbs and put on an oiled baking dish or heat-proof platter. Pour over the melted margarine or oil and bake in a very hot oven (550 degrees) until brown, about 15 minutes.

Broiled Fish

To broil whole fish, split and clean and remove head and tail or not as desired. Wipe as dry as possible and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Be sure the broiler is well greased and put the fish, skin side down, on broiler. Place broiler about three inches from heat and broil until tender and a golden brown. Turn and broil skin side just a few minutes until skin is crisp and brown. Place platter over fish and invert platter and broiler together after sliding a spatula under fish to loosen it from the broiler grids.

These are two simple ways to vary the cooking of fish and if there's a member of your family who can't eat fried foods I'm sure you'll welcome these suggestions.

A Soldier's Prayer

An unknown soldier attended services at the First Presbyterian church of Greenville last Sunday. The following prayer, written on notepaper in a masculine hand, was found in his pew after the service:

"Our gracious Father in Heaven, I come to You in humbleness, asking forgiveness for all my sins and all my faults. I pray Thee grant what I am about to ask of Thee: please, God above, make the terrible war to end soon, hasten the day when we can once again live in peace, happiness and harmony with our brothers the world over.

Bless _____, my wife, and keep her safe from all harm and evil; bless Mother and make her well again; bless Dad and keep and protect him; and bless all earth's inhabitants.

Father in Heaven, I know I am not worthy of Thee, but please help me to be a man. Grant me the wisdom and the courage and the strength I need not only for the present time I am a soldier but for all the days to come.

Make me a Christian like Paul and Christ, who trod the roads of Galilee. Bless this church I am in today, bless the minister and all persons connected in the work of it. I know no one here but I feel at home because it is the House of God.

In closing, God, I thank Thee, if it can be done, and through You all things are possible, grant and help me in the things I have asked of You.

I ask this in the name of Jesus Christ, who gave His life so that we might have life eternal. Amen.
