

MEAT RATIONING WILL REMAIN ON A WEEKLY BASIS

Washington, April 18.—Meat rations will continue on a weekly basis in May, officials said today.

When steaks, cheese, butter and allied products went on the coupon point system March 29, OPA expressed hope that the weekly allotment would be temporary and that as soon as meat stocks both on a national and store-to-store basis became adjusted to rationing it would be possible to put rations on a monthly basis, giving the public more flexibility in purchases.

This is still the hope of officials, but they said that the meat inventory situation still is not good enough to permit people to spend meat coupons two or three weeks ahead of time if they choose.

Details of the May meat rations are due to be announced early this week, but are expected to be about the same as they were in April.

An Announcement

I wish to announce to the public and my customers that I have volunteered for Navy service and beginning Tuesday, April 27, will be connected with the construction department, my place of assignment for duty not yet being known.

By volunteering my service, I will no longer be able to meet the Plumbing and Heating needs of my customers. I hope, however, to re-open my shop and serve the public after the war ends.

I appreciate the good-will and patronage of all my friends whom I have been privileged to serve in the past.
