COUNTRY WOMAN

Her life is this: A life of toil, Of close communion with the soil. The lifting sun each dewy morn, A flitting breeze in rustling corn. The scent of earth, of new-mown hay, A brook that ripples on its way. The beckoning hills, tree-bordered lane, The garden sweet with summer rain. A mockingbird in lilting rhyme, The lowing sows at milking time. The purple shades of drifting night, A peaceful couch at candlelight.

daughter, Helen Featherstone, to Doyal K. Burton, sergeant, Army of the United States, on Friday, the eighteenth of June, nineteen hundred and forty-three, Boston, Massachusetts.

Rainwater-Stewart Rites Of Interest Here

A nuptial event of beauty and holding cordial interest in Goldville was solemnized at 8 o'clock Saturday evening at the First Baptist church in Florence, when Miss Annie Marguerite Rainwater became the bride of Dr. John Siegfried Stewart of Erie and Warren, Pa. Dr. Howard L. Weeks, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony.

A beautiful bridal scene was created with slender white baskets of white gladioli, feverfew, peonies and fern placed with artistry before a background of lacy Southern smilax, and tall white floor candelabra holding rows of lighted white tapers.

A lovely program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Carolyn R. Pugh of Coker college, organist, Miss Annette Moorhead of Goldville, violinist, Miss Elizabeth Dickman of Florence and Greensboro, N. C., and Miss Mary Nell Hardin, Morganton, N. C., and Claude Putnam, Florence, vocalists.

She was head of the music department of the Joanna schools at Goldville the past year.
