HOUSE AND HOME

By MARY E. DAGUE

With work crowding our time, we must be more than ever interested in getting as much work as possible from our household equipment. Furthermore, the continued use of appliances should be kept in mind because they will be obliged to last for "the duration."

Ranges of all types must be used wisely and well cared for. When this is done we save time, labor, metals and fuel. The direction book which the manufacturer supplies with the range will help to a high degree in the use and care of the range, be it gas, electric, kerosene, coal or wood.

In the first place, see to it that your range is in the most convenient location possible in the kitchen. This is where you will save yourself time and steps which add up to labor.

Be sure that the range is perfectly level. Both top-of-stove and oven cookery are influenced by the levelness of the range, but particularly the oven. Things just can't bake evenly in an oven that isn't level. Even if the range was meticulously leveled when it was installed its own weight may make it settle a bit on one side so that it may need to be re-leveled for perfect performance.

All the savers that apply to electric ranges hold true with the other types too.

If you range has a timer, be it minute-minder or oven-timer, make a practice of using it to do the watching and regulating.

Plan oven meals for especially busy days. If you use an electric range make full use of the deep well cooker. The cooker is ideal for dried beans, the less tender cuts of meats, soups and cereals. Oven meals and cooker meals save current as well as time and work. When you use the oven for cooking a meal, bake food for use at another meal. Use a time and temperature chart in baking in order to prevent opening oven door and wasting heat or fuel.

Be careful to prevent foods from spilling over. Adequate utensils and the correct amount of water are precautions against boiling over.

Both gas and electricity are saved if heat is turned to low after food has been brought to boiling on top of range. This is one of the first points to learn in operating an electric range.

Another electricity saver is to form the habit of turning off the current a few minutes before food has finished cooking, thereby using the retained heat in the unit. The type of unit determines how much heat is retained and how long the food will cook.

Texans Lose No Chance To Spread 'Gospel'

Washington, Aug. 3.—Before World War II ends, it's quite possible that many North African Arabs will be singing "Deep in the Heart of Texas," sporting ten-gallon hats and roping dodges.

The war department reported today that 54 Texans of an army air service squadron are currently indoctrinating every Arab and native who comes in sight with some of the pertinent "facts" of American history, geography, and current events. Among these are:

1. Texas is the United States and the other forty-seven states are only satellite territories.
2. These territories have banded together to help Texas win the war.
3. The national anthem is "Deep in the Heart of Texas."
4. The United States capital is Austin, Texas.
5. Texas has the most beautiful girls in the world; crops never fail; the sun always shines; oil and riches abound, and it's the Promised Land.

No Texan overlooks an opportunity to carry on his evangelistic mission. Texas appears everywhere. If an Arab can read English, he sees the word "Texas" printed on the men's caps, and such legends as "Take me back to Texas" on the backs of their fatigue jackets.

This wholehearted allegiance to the "Lone Star" state has a purpose. It spreads good-will; the men go about their work with gusto; morale is exceptionally high, and the creeping paralysis of homesickness doesn't have a chance.

Most members of the squadron, which was activated at Victoria, in 1942, are native Texans, and the few outsiders, such as Corporal Tom Coughlin, of Peoria, Ill., have long since been "converted."

Captain Manuel A. De Bontencourt of Houston, is commander.

U. S. BOMBERS HAMMER FRANCE

London, August 2.—United States medium bombers hammered German airfields in northern France and other er fleets of Allied planes headed toward Europe to continue the heaviest air offensive of the war against the continent. The afternoon targets were not announced immediately.

The Eighth air force medium bombers, escorted by British air force, British dominion and Allied Spitfire fighter planes, hammered the airfields at Merville and St. Omer, France, without suffering losses. Those fields were among seven battered by the British and Americans on Saturday.

A joint communique of the United States army and British air ministry said crews reported bomb bursts in both target areas where intense anti-aircraft fire but no enemy fighter opposition was encountered.

During Sunday night, presumably because of bad weather, the RAF's big bombers were grounded for the second straight night after having dumped some 8,000 tons of bombs last week in the German port of Hamburg.

Mrs. M. H. Hunter, Sr. Passes In Laurens

Laurens, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Mary Jeanes Hunter, prominent woman of this city for the past 38 years, died Sunday morning at her home on North Harper street after an illness of two weeks.

She was an active member of the First Presbyterian church of Laurens, and also a charter member of the Kings Daughters, American Legion Auxiliary, and of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Hunter was the daughter of the late Thomas Perry Jeanes and Ida Simpson. She is survived by her husband, M. H. Hunter, Sr.; one son, M. H. Hunter, Jr., Laurens; three daughters, Mrs. J. K. Gruber, Jr., of Charleston, Mrs. C. G. Roberson and Mrs. Yancey E. Peele, both of Laurens; four brothers, M. G. Jeanes of Laurens, J. D. Jeanes of Clinton, P. C. Jeanes of Greenwood, and T. G. Jeanes of Waycross, Ga.; one sister, Mrs. G. F. Benjamin of Dry Branch, Ga., and three granddaughters.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Kennedy mortuary with Rev. J. J. Hayes officiating. Interment followed in the Laurens city cemetery.

SAY, "I SAW IT IN THE CHRONICLE." THANK YOU.
