Last week a cross-tie was removed from the C. & D. track, on Mr. W. R. Davis's place just above town, that was placed there when the railroad was first built far back in the early fifties. THE COUNTY DISPENSARY.

TO BE IN THE FASHION WE MAY HAVE AN INJUNCTION.

A Movement to Show that a County Dispenser Has Been Illegally Appointed—Will it Succeed?

Darlington is always up with the times. Whatever is the thing some of her people try to be in it. Injunctions are now the fashion and it is, therefore, possible that Darlington will have one of her own. This is way the story runs: Some of the citizens of the town think that a dispenser for this county has been appointed in an irregular manner and they believe that the irregularities are sufficient to vitiate the appointment. Therefore, they have started the ball rolling to keep the appointment from opening the dispensary, but the question is, will they succeed?

The county board of control met on Saturday. Mr. J. P. Kervin's commission came in time for him to serve. Mr. J. J. Brown was elected chairman in place of Mr. J. O. A. Moore, who had resigned from the board. The petitions of the three candidates for dispenser, Messrs J. Buckner Floyd, Frank R. Rhodes and G. A. Bland, were taken up for consideration with the result that Mr. Floyd was elected dispenser. The successful applicant is the son of Capt. John Floyd, the trial justice.

The citizens who are at work to prevent Mr. Floyd from opening the dispensary have employed C. S. Nettles, Esq., as attorney. To a representative of THE NEWS Mr. Nettles said yesterday that he was giving the matter a thorough investigation, but had not up to that time reached a conclusion. He said he did not propose to make a fanciful fight, but would only pursue the matter in the event that he could make a bona fide case, such as he thought would stand the test of the law. If, after careful examination, he found good grounds to fight upon he would petition a Circuit Judge, probably Judge Hudson who lives nearest here, for an injunction forbidding the county dispensary being opened with Mr. Floyd as dispenser. If an injunction is asked for it will be in a day or so. In the meantime the people will await anxiously the outcome of the matter.

Despite this new movement the board will meet again to-morrow (Friday) and will then decide where the dispensary will be located. It is probable, too, that at to-morrow's meeting the board will elect a clerk to the dispenser. For this position the following are applicants: Messrs Jule S. Floyd, Sr., Dave Williams, F. E. Stokes and O. M. Rhodes.

THE ART EXHIBITION.

The Work of the New Home Machine Displayed at Blackwell Bros.

On Friday, Saturday and Monday the New Home Sewing Machine Company gave a wonderful art and embroidery exhibition at Messrs Blackwell Bros' store. The object of the exhibition was to show what can be done with the New Home machine and the many people who visited the store on those three days were certainly convinced that the machine can do great things. Raised and arranged embroideries, portieres, elegant curtains, table scarfs, lamp screens, etc., all beautifully finished with this machine, were displayed to the admiration of everybody. Difficult patterns in embroideries were worked on the New Home by a representative of the company, who was present during the exhibition. Pictures of birds, animals and pretty landscapes were remarkably well executed. The whole exhibition was a novel thing for Darlington and was certainly worth seeing. It attracted very many people, all of whom were greatly pleased.

"A NYMPH OF THE WEST."

A Lively, Breezy Tale to Begin in Our Next Issue.

Our readers should look out for the new story which will begin in our next issue. It is Howard Seely's best work, a breezy tale of the frontier, entitled "A Nymph of the West." It is a delightful story of "how they do things in Texas"; is well worth reading and this is probably your only chance. Take advantage of it. The scene is laid in a country full of nerve and reckless daring and the story is humorous, tender and thrilling. The liveliest interest is maintained to the end and we believe our readers have a treat in store which they will readily appreciate.

The handsome needlework in the exhibit was done on the popular New Home, found only at Blackwell Bros.

Obituary.

Died, on May 13, 1893, at the residence of her youngest daughter, near Savage, Florence county, Mrs. Caroline M. Napier, relict of Rev. W. R. Napier, who preceded her to the grave by about two years. The deceased was twice married, her first husband having been Mr. James F. Killen. She was born on February 15, 1829, and was all her life a consistent Christian. She was a member of the Methodist Church until her second marriage, when she joined the Baptist Church, the church of her last husband. In this faith she was called to her reward. She was a true, noble hearted lady and was beloved by all who knew her. She leaves four children and several grandchildren to mourn her loss. God be with us until we meet her again. K.

Bear This in Mind.

Now that there are so many bicycles in town the danger of collisions between pedestrians and wheelmen is necessarily increased. The wheelmen wish to avoid this danger as much as possible, so they ask that the pedestrians in every instance take the inside of the pavement and they will take the outside. If this rule is observed there need be no collisions.

Mr. C. W. DuBose, of Darlington, attended church at this place on Sunday morning.

Cypress was well represented at the "Children's Day" exercises at Hebron on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Mamie DuRant, of Bishopville, spent last week at this place, visiting the family of Mr. W. M. Butler.

We have had fine rains and General Green has made his appearance in full force. Unless some of our farmers reinforce their troops and get a move on them, the General will compel them to raise the white flag.

Wash Williams comes to the front with the first cotton boll. It was handed in on the 14 inst. Mr. C. B. Pate also reports blooms in his fields on the 14, while Mr. O. S. Huggins says that he has had them earlier than the 14.

Our boys have played two games of baseball with the club at DuBose's bridge. The first game was played at this place and resulted in a victory for our boys by a score of 18 to 10. The second game was played on the grounds at DuBose's bridge and we were again victorious by a score of 26 to 13. We are now satisfied that our boys can play ball.

We are requested to ask the Jasper correspondent what is the meaning of that mammoth building at Jasper. A gentleman wishes to know if it is the million dollar cotton factory Columbia was to have or is it a government building and whether it is fitted up with water-works and electric lights. He did not go into it and does not know what it means.

GREEN PLAIN.

Chicken cholera has made its appearance and is proving very fatal. Can some friend give us a good remedy?

Mr. W. D. Young has painted and otherwise improved his house, which adds much to the appearance of his place.

Mr. Henry Melton was recently kicked by a mule and his life was at first almost despaired of, but he is fortunately now better.

Early peaches have rotted very badly, but we have enjoyed some very good pears and, with apples, whortleberries and briarberries plentiful, we can get bacon.

Well, Mr. Editor, we have been so busy for the past two weeks with sickness, rain, grass, oats and other things that we have not until now had time to write you a letter.

Crops are almost clean and are growing very fast, but they are still some two weeks behind. We notice some very fine corn, Messrs C. H. Powe, H. J. Coker, R. H. Boswell, J. T. Howle and W. D. Young having the best. Mr. Young's is considered ahead of all.

We have had a great deal of sickness. Those who were probably the more seriously indisposed were Mrs. E. W. Boswell, Mrs. J. W. Moore, Mrs. Turner and Mr. Josey Taylor. All are now improving we are glad to say though Mr. Taylor is still quite sick. Our doctors were, of course, kept very busy.

We do not want to get into trouble with any of our brother correspondents, but, if a certain one does not stop bragging on the pretty girls of his section, we will invite our friend to visit Green Plain. That this section can beat any other in regard to the beauty and the number of girls, we will wager the finest basket of fruit.

The reception given on Friday night at the residence of Mr. O. D. Turnage was attended by greater success than any affair of a similar nature ever given here. To the committee having the reception in charge is due the complete success of the occasion. Here gathered the youth and beauty of the Pee Dee's fair maidens and their none the less fair sisters from other sections of Carolina. The Society Hill string band furnished delightful music. OATS.

We had plenty of rain during the past week, and crops are looking well.

Miss Lou Miller has returned from La Grange, Ga., where she has been attending the La Grange Female College.

Rev. L. M. Hamer, a former pastor of Wesley Chapel, has been among us recently. He preached a good sermon for us while he was here.

The Lydia base ball team played a game with the Mt. Clio club at the latter place on last Saturday. The score stood 8 to 5 in favor of Lydia.

The time for closing the bars is near at hand. July 1 is on Saturday of next week.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

If you are we want to say a few words to you about paints in general and The Averill Paint in particular.

Our long, hot season makes ours one of the hardest and most trying climates on paints. Cheap paints are worthless. The best white lead will "chalk off" in a very few months.

A paint to give satisfactory results here must be especially adapted to our climatic conditions.

The Averill

Is just such a paint. It has been used in this locality for 25 years, and has always given satisfaction. It

IS GUARANTEED

To give you perfect satisfaction after time sufficient to thoroughly test it has elapsed, and we are authorized to protect this guarantee. Please call at our store for color cards (free), and see book of 30 elegant designs for house-painting.

DR. W. J. ALEXANDER.

His Sudden Illness and Death—A Sketch of his Life.

We stated in our last issue that at the hour of going to press the death of Dr. W. J. Alexander, who was stricken with apoplexy, was momentarily expected. It occurred on Wednesday night, a few hours after the paper was printed. It is probable that no death has ever caused more gloom in Darlington than this, for the deceased was held in such high esteem. Of strictest integrity, kind hearted and gentle, he was honored and respected by all and beloved by those who were his closest friends; of remarkable ability he easily occupied a prominent position which so few men obtain. The loss occasioned by his death is incalculable.

Dr. William J. Alexander was born in Georgia in 1848 and was graduated from Mercer University, at Macon, with high honors. He entered the Baptist ministry, after completing a course at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He was called to Edgefield, in this State, about 1875 and in 1877 he was called to the pastorate of the Baptist Church at Darlington. It was then that our people became first acquainted with him and this acquaintance soon ripened into the warmest affection. While serving as pastor here he drew the people, irrespective of denominations close to him. They recognized in him a good man with a great mind.

By 1882 Dr. Alexander's ability had become well recognized and he was in that year elected professor of philosophy in the South Carolina College. During one of the vacations of the College he took a trip to Germany for the purpose of perfecting himself in the branches of study which he taught, for he was not a man who was satisfied with doing things half way. In 1891, on the reorganization of the College Dr. Alexander's chair was combined with another, so he was left without a place in the institution. He returned to Darlington and was made president of the phosphate company, of which enterprise he was the chief promoter. He held this position at the time of his death.

It was during his service at the College that Dr. Alexander's religious views underwent a change and he connected himself with the Unitarian Church.

Dr. Alexander had a most remarkable mind, clear, logical and forcible. His intellectual superior would have been hard to find in this country. The friends of the College have always regarded him as one of the ablest of the many able men who have been members of the faculty of that old and historic institution of learning, and his retirement from the College caused universal regret. His mind was broad and his information great, consequently his death was a public calamity.

He leaves his wife and three children and to these a sorrowing community extend sincere sympathy.

The remains were interred in the Baptist cemetery on Thursday afternoon, Capt. Henry T. Thompson reading the burial services. The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: Honorary—G. W. Dargan, J. J. Ward, C. W. Hewitt, J. G. McCall, G. K. King, Waddy Thompson; Active—W. C. Coker, C. B. Edwards, J. E. Normont, G. C. Walsh, A. C. McFall, M. T. Lide.

A NEW SCHEDULE.

The Up Train on the Coast Line Arrives Nearly Two Hours Earlier.

Another schedule went into effect on the Atlantic Coast Line on Monday. The passenger train going South leaves Darlington at 7 in the morning, the same as heretofore, but returning it now arrives here at 7.53 in the evening instead of 9.23 at night. The Hartsville train arrives at the same time as heretofore, 7.30 in the morning, but it leaves at 6.30 in the evening instead of 8.30 at night.

This change enables the people of Darlington to receive the State, the Register and the Columbia Journal in the evening before they go home from work. For sometime past the News and Courier has been received here on the 11.45 a. m. train on the C. S. & N. Railroad. With the leading morning and evening papers of South Carolina reaching here on the day of publication Darlington is in great luck.

THE COST OF THE WAR.

The Money Spent in Keeping the South in the Union.

A contemporary, figuring upon the money cost of the civil war to $8,426,185,017. This includes current war expenses, $3,144,975,087; bounties, $285,941,128; private contributions, $50,000,000; war claims, $140,000,000; interest on war debt, $2,355,829,102; pensions, $1,431,198,500; and a doubtful item—$1,017,241,200 for estimated "loss of soldiers' productive labor." This is what it cost to keep the Southern States in the Union, exclusive of the vast squandering of the public domain, the losses caused by carpet-bag rule in those States after they were brought back into the sisterhood of States and the increased expenditure for government purposes induced by the demoralization of politicians at Washington during and after the civil war.

As the "true valuation" of all property in the eleven seceding States in 1860 was altogether but $5,202,166,207, it is seen that the civil war has already cost some $3,225,000,000 more than the money value of all of the property in the South, and will cost us in pensions, interest, etc., several billions more. Estimated in the same way and taking account of the destruction of the value of Confederate notes and bonds and of the capital of financial institutions in the South in consequence of the civil war, the loss of that section to date must be reckoned at hardly less than $8,000,000,000. Sixteen billion is, perhaps, not an overestimate of the sum somebody's political misconduct has cost us.

THREE FLORENCE CONVICTS

Slip the Guard—One Well Known about Darlington.

[Florence Times, June 15.]

Three of the city convicts that were in the chain gang made their escape on Tuesday while under the shelter at the school building from the rain. Among the number was Mr. Eugene Pugh, [colored] who, it will be remembered, poured forth his wrath and slanderous abuses on the mayor and policeman on Front street sometime ago and who was sentenced to 150 days labor on the streets. Pugh was lucky in escaping and not getting shot, but to his sorrow he was captured at Mayesville yesterday morning and was brought back last night. He will be bailed and chained and put to work. If the others are caught they will be done likewise.

POPULAR ELECTIONS.

THE STEADY GROWTH OF INTEREST IN STATE ELECTIONS.

Lessons That May Be Drawn From the New York State and National Elections.—The Percentage of Voters to the Population Greater in the Country.

A comparison of the election returns at the end of the last century, about the time of the adoption of the constitution of the United States, with the returns for the last presidential election, shows how widely the suffrage has extended in the United States. In Massachusetts, between 1778 and 1794, the proportion of votes cast to the population varied from 2 to 5 per cent. In several counties of the state of New York there were cast at the election of 1802 almost one-third as many votes as there were inhabitants.

It is the habit of many people to take it for granted that the earlier institutions of the United States were more democratic than the present ones, and that the tendency of these times is to put the political power in the hands of a few men and to take it away from the multitude. No such theory is borne out by the election returns. At one of the most hotly contested elections in Virginia, when Chief Justice Marshall's father was a candidate for membership in the house of burgesses, or what would correspond to assemblyman here, there were only one vote cast to every 10 inhabitants, a ratio smaller than that cast in any county in this state for a great many years. There was a property qualification for electors in this contest, and it was frequently the case that the voting, instead of being by secret ballot, was vis a vis. There were so few electors that they would all come together on election day, and their names would be called, every man naming his choice.

With all the talk about the large vote of the city of New York and the power of its majorities to settle the result in the state, it is somewhat contradictory that the election figures should show that New York has the smallest ratio of voters to inhabitants—less than half as large as the ratio in many of the rural counties. Brooklyn comes next and Buffalo third. Throughout the state it is general that the Democratic counties cast fewer votes to the number of their inhabitants than the Republican counties. In New York the number of inhabitants to each voter is 6.89, in Kings 5.95 and in Erie 5.06, while in Cortland and Otsego the ratio is 8.11 to 1; 3.16 in Yates, 3.35 in Genesee, 3.38 in Delaware, 3.35 in Allegany, 3.26 in Madison, 3.37 in Ontario, 3.22 in St. Lawrence. This shows a ratio twice as large in New York and almost twice as large in Brooklyn and Buffalo as in the rural counties.

There are two main reasons to account for this. One is the difference in the election laws in the cities and in the counties, and the other is the difference in the character of the population. It cannot be a difference in politics, for Schenectady, one of the few rural Democratic counties, shows a ratio of 3.13, and Greene, another Democratic county, has a ratio of 3.86. The percentage of voters is lower in the cities than in the rural districts. The two counties of Schenectady and Schoharie are Democratic and contiguous. Schoharie is a purely agricultural county, while a great part of the population of Schenectady county is in Schenectady, which is a flourishing little city. Schenectady has 6,000 more population than Schoharie, but it casts several hundred fewer votes, and there is a difference of a third in their ratios.

One reason for the high ratios in New York, Brooklyn and Buffalo is the large number of aliens in those cities. The aliens count in the population, but they do not count in the number of voters. According to the state census New York's population is one-fourth alien, and the ratio in Buffalo is almost as high.

Another thing is the difference in election laws. In the cities a man has to go to the polling place twice to vote—once to register and once to cast his ballot. In the country he has to go only once and that time to vote. His name may be put on the registration list by his friends. A comparison of these returns with the election returns at the time of the Revolutionary war and the adoption of the constitution shows that political interest is increasing every year, and that the percentage of those who participate in elections is also increasing. In Massachusetts toward the close of the last century, when discussions respecting the federal constitution were going on and when there had been an actual rebellion in one part of the state, not over 6 per cent of the population voted, although the census of those days shows that about three times that percentage of men were entitled to vote. In New York state at the last election the census and registration lists were almost identical in many districts, and there were some districts where there were more votes cast than the census showed of residents in the district in the spring when the census was taken.

It may be that to the rich men and men engrossed in the management of large business affairs politics and political matters are not relatively so important as they were when the United States began, but a comparison of the election returns shows that aside from the widening of the franchise the proportion of those who vote is greater in this state than ever before.—New York Sun.

Strange Acts of the Apostles.
"Mamma," said 5-year-old Nina, just returned from Sunday school, "I don't like the disciples. I think they were silly."

"The dreadful child!" said mamma to papa. "What does she mean?"
"What makes you think so, Nina?" asked papa.
"Why," replied Nina, "our lesson today said they went through a cornfield on Sunday and pulled each other's ears."—New York Tribune.

What He Forgot.
Little Johnny—Can I have some more pie?
Mamma—Do not say "can," say, "May I have?"
Little Johnny—I forgot.
Mamma—Forgot what?
Little Johnny—That I have to be particular about grammar when I ask for pie.—Good News.

The Ballet and the Opera.
As early as 1790 the ballet had been separated from the opera and given an independent dramatic form. Later on in the century the ballet assumed the form of a great rhythmic pantomime, and for many decades was kept in the theater of Milan in most excellent style.—Music and Drama.

Alcohol as a Food.
And now a word about alcohol. Of all the substances that enter into the dietary of man that are used for stimulation, to check waste and promote repair, none is superior to alcohol. So great is its reconstructive power that strictly speaking it must be classed as a food. Whenever the powers of life are waning, be the cause whatever it may, alcohol ranks first among remedies to check it. Like opium, it is good if properly used and baneful if abused. It is scarcely necessary to say much for or against alcohol. It is too well known to all of us to need much comment, and I shall confine myself to speaking of its use medicinally by those who never tasted it before a physician prescribed it for some disease.

Alcohol is unquestionably par excellence a food adjunct in this severe form of fever where nutrition is urgently required to keep up life, but where the digestive organs have lost their assimilative function.

Here, as long as the actual waste is compensated for, alcohol does good. Beyond that it is worse than useless. Unfortunately such restricted dosage does not satisfy the careless doctor of easy conscience. He gives it by the oft repeated tablespoonful without stopping to discover that the result wished for has been attained in the slower, fuller pulse and stronger heart.

Hundreds and hundreds of men and women in all walks of society contracted their tipping habit by regarding as unrestricted the advice of their physicians that wine or stimulants of some kind are necessary for them to take. The advice in itself is justifiable, but the lack of restriction is culpable. And so these poor, deluded convalescents go on taking stimulants, which they find not only agreeable, but desirable, until they become slaves to drink.—New York Herald.

An Apparent Paradox.
"I had always been taught that cold contracts and heat expands," said Harold Burwell, "but I have had an experience that is different. In my office I use incandescent lights, and on my desk I have an upright bulb, with a standard. The shade was broken on it, and I placed it on top of the desk in a corner between the wall and a cabinet of pigeonholes. The other morning on entering the office I hung my derby hat on this bulb. Later on I went into an adjoining room, which was dark, and needing some light pushed the button in the wall that set the electric lamps aflame. The lights gave the place such a cheerful aspect, it being a stormy day outside, that I did not turn them off. At noon, when I was going out to lunch, I reached for my hat, and it was baked. The incandescent lamp, which had been aglow all the while, had made it very hot, and the leather band was so drawn and contracted that I couldn't get my hat on my head. It simply sat on the top of my cranium like those tiny hats that variety comedians sometimes wear. I held it on as best I could and went out. The wind caught and carried it long enough to give it a thorough cooling. It was long before the band relaxed and the hat was all right again, so far as fitting my head was concerned. If that wasn't a first class case of heat contracting and cold expanding, I'd like to know what contraction and expansion are."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Dull Boys and Mechanical Ability.
Great has always been the comfort that the parents of boys dull at their books have had in thinking that they would probably be particularly bright in some other direction. If there was any doubt about it, the fact could always be proved by stories of artists, writers and musicians, who have been thought dullards at school. But mechanical genius and dullness at books do not, it is said, go hand in hand. The director of a large western school of manual training says of such cases: "As a rule, such a boy fails to show marked ability of any sort. A boy who comes to us with a passion for machinery, who cannot be kept away from engines, the rattle of cogs and the snapping of belts, never gets beyond a sort of morbid, simple curiosity to 'see the wheels go round.' He develops no curiosity nor the ability to do good, accurate work. His book work is of a very similar character."—New York Post.

Breeding Two-tailed Goldfish.
It is the general belief of many leading ichthyologists that the goldfish really belongs to no genera or species—in fact, they believe it to be a monster brought about through breeding. This belief has been strengthened by the fact that it is now well known that the ingenious Celestial has actually bred a whole colony of goldfish, each having two well developed tails and two sets of anal fins. Biologists of national reputation in this country say that it would be equally as easy a task to breed quadrupeds with eight legs.—St. Louis Republic.

Planet Shadows.
There is no doubt that some of the most brilliant planets, such as Venus and Jupiter, are capable of casting distinct shadows, as may be seen any fine evening in the tropics. Not long ago M. L. Guio observed that Jupiter threw a distinct shadow of his waist upon a wall, and that he was able to read a newspaper by the light. M. Moysé also finds that Mars is able to cast a shadow, but a much fainter one than Jupiter. He was also able to count the number of words in a newspaper placed in the light of the planet entering by a window, but he could not read them.—Exchange.

Two Recent Inventions.
The varied trend of men's minds is well illustrated by the recent invention of two policeman's billies, one of which contains knife blades that shoot out from the interior if the prisoner grasps the instrument, while the other is fitted with a rubber cap to prevent the infliction of unnecessary pain. President Angell of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals prefers the latter.—Boston Transcript.

The Music Lesson.
"Your little daughter, as she went out awhile ago, seemed the very picture of misery."
"She was going to take a music lesson."
"And your oldest daughter, who is now going out, looks even more miserable."
"She is going to give a music lesson."
—New York Press.

LET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR.

How a Widow Made Use of What She Heard Railroad Directors Say.

A few years ago a widow and her daughter were occupying a section in a Pullman sleeper on the Missouri Pacific railroad. The section next to this lady happened to be occupied by a couple of the directors of that railroad. The partition between the two sections was so thin that it was not difficult for a conversation carried on in one section to be heard in the other. The lady traveler heard the two directors discussing a plan of consolidation whereby the stock of the Missouri Pacific was bound to be greatly enhanced in value.

It was then worth but 2 or 3 cents on the dollar. She was on her return trip to her home in Hartford. The conversation of the two directors preyed on her mind. She revolved it over and over again until her home was reached, about which time a $5,000 note due her was redeemed. She sent for her attorney, detailed to him the conversation she had heard and said she was almost resolved to invest the $5,000 in Missouri Pacific. The attorney, mistaking her announced resolution for irony, laughed, but the woman of wealth persisted.

"It is but $5,000," she said, "and if I lose I shall have just as much to eat as I have always had and just as much to wear. If the plans betrayed by these two directors work out, I shall make a good deal of money buying Missouri Pacific."

The attorney obeyed the instructions of his client, invested the $5,000, and in less than a month the proposed consolidation was consummated, and the Hartford widow realized for her $5,000 investment $250,000. At the first blush this incident is set down as proof of luck.

It was simply an unexpected exhibition of what in Wall street vernacular is termed "nerve" on the part of a quick eared and quicker witted woman. Not one person in 10,000 would have given any heed to the conversation referred to, and not one of a thousand who might have heard and heeded and who happened to have the money, as the widow had it, would have dared invest it. These incidents and illustrations might be expanded until volumes were filled. The evidence would be cumulative that eyes and ears and brain make what the thoughtless term luck.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Walter's Good Joke.
The party at the corner table had ordered four beers and a thin one and invited the waiter of the German restaurant to "have one yourself." Warned by the hospitality and the jokelets that followed, Jacob felt bound to reciprocate. "I will tell you a good story," he said, "and don't do happen true mit mineself here der other day. Dere was a veller gomes in here mit some jag on und set him down at dot dable und zay, 'Vat haf you?' I zay 'Shower,' und he zay, 'Pring me some,' und den he leans pack in der chair to sleep mit himself. 'I yells 'Shower' to der cook, und ven it comes oop und I carries it to der man he was sound asleep. I zay, 'I haf some fun,' und I dakes der empty bowl dot some oder veller had und set in front of der veller mit der jag. Bretty soon he vakes oop und looks at der bowl und zay, 'Gif me a beer, und how mooch was all?' 'Twenty cents,' I zay, und he zay, 'Ees dot all?' Vell, dot vas as goot shower as I efer did eat.

"Und I laff like a man ven you gif him some beer for nodings und jokes mit him. Den I say to dis veller: 'Dot vas all right. You haf another shower on me eef you like it. Dot vas a goot von.' 'Und I laff efer since. It vas a goot choke, you bet.'—Boston Herald.

"Address as Above."
There is one lawyer in the city who will never again make use of Latin phrases in writing business letters. A short time ago he had to write a letter to a client in a neighboring city regarding an important lawsuit that was to come up before the court in the course of a few days. The information he solicited was highly essential to his case. In writing this epistle he made use of a letter head with his printed address at the top. In closing his letter he signed himself thus: "John Langdon, Address ut supra." After waiting several days for the reply, which did not come, he again wrote his procrastinating client and asked why he had not sooner answered his first letter. The next day he received a reply in which the client said that he had answered the letter and addressed it to "John Langdon, Ut Supra, N. Y."—Buffalo Express.

to others? Are there not persons dependent on your earnings for their support? Are they provided for in case of your death? The simplest and safest way of assuring their protection is life insurance. DR. W. J. ALEXANDER.

The death of Dr. W. J. Alexander, which is announced in another column, makes a void in the community. A personality has been withdrawn which gave strength, purity and lustre to everything around it. A worthy coadjutor in the task of life, the upbuilding of the community and the people, has been lost to us. His influence was vast because he was a great man, morally and mentally. The esteem which everybody had for him gave unusual force to his hold upon the community. That so strong a personality has been closed to the world, closed suddenly while giving promise of a long future with still greater achievements, is cause for universal regret and it is natural that the people should lament the loss. It will be difficult to fill his place.

It is not the old and wise counsel, "naught but the good should be said of the dead", that prompts us to give the highest praise to the memory of Dr. Alexander. We knew him; all those around us knew him—and to know him was to know that a better man never lived in Darlington. As a man he was noble, as a friend, faithful, and as a scholar he had few equals in these parts. In every relation he bore to his people, whether of public or private nature, he had as his only guiding stars honesty of purpose and a desire to be true. These imbued in him the highest conceptions of honor, which, combined with his great natural ability, made him a valuable member of the community in which he dwelt. With his departure a light went out, whose absence will be missed but whose influence for good will continue forever.

It was the good fortune of him, who writes this too feeble tribute, to have known him in the class room, to have seen him every day and to have watched him under the severe strain of moulding the minds of the youth entrusted to his care. How well he performed this difficult task is shown in the warm affection in which he is held by those whom he taught. There are many of his former pupils throughout South Carolina. These were his young friends and they will be greatly grieved to hear of his death.

THE NEW DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

The President on Monday appointed Hon. W. Perry Murphy, of Colleton county, United States District Attorney for South Carolina. This is the most important federal office in the State and the people were naturally concerned about the President's selection. A number of good men were applicants for the position and this added considerably to the interest felt in the matter.

The President, as is usually the case with him, has made a capital selection. Mr. Murphy is one of the best known lawyers in South Carolina and his ability is recognized everywhere. For a number of years he was solicitor of the Second Circuit, filling the office with marked success, and his promotion to the District Attorneyship will keep him in the line of work, for which he has shown so much fitness. In our last State campaign Mr. Murphy was the candidate of the Conservatives for Attorney-General and the members of that faction are glad that the President recognizes his capability. Raised as a poor boy, with but few advantages, all the success Mr. Murphy has attained in life is due entirely to his pluck, energy and merit. We congratulate him on his latest good fortune and feel sure that he will fill the office of District Attorney acceptably to the State and nation.

THE DISPENSARY SIGN.

If there are any who still maintain that the dispensary law does not convert the State into a rum-seller, they will certainly be convinced when they read the sign which has been placed at the State dispensary in Columbia. This is the way it reads: "State Commissioner, Rectifier and Wholesale Liquor Dealer." It is said that the sign had to be put up before a drop of liquor could be bottled and we presume that this is in accordance with the United States revenue laws. The sign is very small and an exchange tells us that "it is way up on the front wall" and "is wofully insignificant." The State authorities do well to put this little sign almost out of sight for it points to work of which they should not feel very proud.

Harris Lithia Water,

HARRIS' LITHIA SPRINGS, S. C.

After a long and varied experience in the use of mineral waters from many sources, both foreign and domestic, I am fully persuaded that the Harris Lithia Water possesses efficacy in the treatment of affections of the kidney and bladder unequalled by any other water of which I have made trial.

This opinion is based upon observation of its effects on my patients for the past three years, during which time I have prescribed it freely and almost uniformly with benefit in the medicable maladies above mentioned.

When failure to relieve has occurred, I have imputed it to insufficient use of the water, for my experience teaches me that from one to two quarts daily should be taken from two to four weeks, to secure its full remedial effects.

A. N. TALLEY, M. D.

Columbia, S. C., October 8th, 1892.

J. T. Harris, Esq., Waterloo, S. C.: Dear Sir—I find great benefit from the use of your Lithia Water. I consider it a fine tonic and general regulator of the digestion, as well as very efficacious in those diseases for which Lithia is considered somewhat of a specific.

My wife has been using your Lithia Water and is very much benefited. I consider it in every respect equal to the famous Buffalo Lithia Water, Abbeville, S. C.

Having spent last summer days at your Springs, and having since used several cases of the Harris Lithia water, I am glad that I can bear willing testimony to its valuable qualities. The analysis made by Dr. Doremus ought to attract to your place many visitors, and send the water to every part of the country.
