Is Money the Greatest Goal

A banker's own experience teaches him to despise the lust of mere money—and more truly to appreciate the man who values money according to its worth.

Money is the supreme servant of mankind. Its power is surpassed only by the influences of religion and love. And a goodly share of wealth is a mark of character that leaves no doubt of its quality.

Big Circus Here Tomorrow

Get out all of your surprise adjectives and polish them up, for tomorrow you will need them. Tomorrow there comes to town the Big Sparks Circus for a one day's stand on the Base Ball Park grounds. The big show is to come here on its specially constructed train cars ranging from seventy to seventy-six feet in length. It will arrive early tomorrow morning and by 8 o'clock the wagons will be on the lot and the putting up of the circus, from the horse tents to the menagerie top, will begin. By noon not a detail will be lacking for the giving of the performances that are to follow.

And many promises are made this year for these performances. There will be the Madge Fuller group of elephants, Captain Tiebor and his troupe of musical and acrobatic seals, the Sparks dancing horses, Hurd's performing pigs, Laverne Venable and her group of fantail pigeons, Holman's riding baboons and monkeys; Minnie Thompson, "America's foremost horsewoman," introducing Caesar, champion high jumper of the world. Then there will be the daring Walters troupe of aerialists, the great Koban troupe of Japanese acrobats, the Charbino Brothers, equilibrist extraordinary, the intrepid little Kai-chi who walks up a flight of twelve steps while balanced on his dome; then there are the Riding Guises and the Hollis family, all of wide repute.

Of course there will be clowns and plenty of them, while three bands of music and two shrieking calliopes will dispense the newest airs from the classic to ragtime in the street parade, which will traverse the following route at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning: Through the principal downtown streets of the business district.

Mississippi Has Largest Cotton Plantation

The world's largest cotton plantation is located at Scott, Miss., on the Illinois Central System. It comprises 65,000 acres and represents an investment of $20,000,000. The property is owned by the Delta & Pine Land company, of which L. K. Salisbury is president.

According to an article in the Illinois Central Magazine for October, 300 white persons and 10,000 negroes make up the population of the farm. The mules and saddle horses on the place are alone valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars. Cotton is the principal crop, but, as an example of the other crops raised, it is noted that this year there are 600 acres in alfalfa, 600 acres in oats, 2,000 acres in pasture and 6,000 acres in corn. A sawmill has a capacity of 12,000,000 feet a year. Educational facilities are provided for the children, both white and negro. Successful experiments have been made in producing an early long-staple variety of cotton.—Lexington (Miss.) Advertiser.

Withdrawal Card

Some of my friends were kind enough to announce me a candidate for election as trustee of the Union graded schools. This was done without my knowledge and consent. Upon due consideration, I beg to withdraw the announcement. While deeply grateful for the good will which prompted my friends to make the announcement, I feel that I have already served as trustee, giving much time and attention to the schools. My pressing business responsibilities now require my entire time. I appreciate having been privileged to serve when elected, although I had even then scant time to give to the office. My services were cheerfully rendered. I feel that others should have the responsibility. There are numbers of well qualified men and women who may be chosen to serve, and who will fill the responsible place thoroughly well.

Again thanking my friends for their interest in me, with best wishes for the progress of our city schools, and declining, I am,

Respectfully,

R. P. Morgan.

Case in Court Overwhelmed by Rhetoric

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 10.—The trial of the members of the Radislav Cabinet which brought Bulgarian into the war on the side of Germany, will soon enter its second year. Two hundred and fifty witnesses gave testimony during the first six months. Then it took one month to read the indictment. The Crown Prosecutor spoke for seventeen days; and then D. Tonchev, former Minister of Finance and one of the accused, spoke for 20 days to explain his part, and has not yet completed his introduction. Ten more of the accused cabinet ministers and about 20 barristers are yet to speak.

The defendants already have been three years in prison where they have been preparing their speeches and other features of their defense. The judges are mostly peasants and some of them have remarked that if they listen another year or two, they will be able to pass their first examination to the bar without attending the university.

It pays to advertise in The Times.

Do it And Do it Quick

The Pageland Journal.
Just off hand we do not know whose business it is to regulate the matter of appeals from decisions of courts. We do not know, however, that some regulation is needed for it has been worked for the past year or two to the limit and to the hurt of the state. There seems to be no limit to the number of times a criminal may thwart justice by appeals and motions for new trials. It is at times just going round in a circle, no end to it. Note the Bigham case, a crime too diabolical to even think of and yet by the use of money and with a lawyer ready and willing to do anything, the verdict, of the jury, the sentence of the court, the ruling of judges, have been made of no effect and now on the ground of a plea already judged to have no merit he is given a new trial. Fox, Gappins, Kirby have been executed for a crime all too horrible but not as bad as that Bigham, while this living fiend time after time is able to outwit the law and cheat justice. Why? Because something is wrong with our system of laws.

Some change is needed and if our legislature is the body to regulate or mend things in the name of law and order get down to it, gentlemen, and do something before the people lose all respect for the law and are found taking the matter of punishment into their own hands. If the matter rest with our supreme court, let the court do what should be done in order to save our good name from becoming a reproach among the other states of the union.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 11.—The writer of the music to "Marching Through Georgia," F. A. Winter was the youngest band master in the Civil War, holding that rank when he was but 17 years of age. He was with the sixty-third Pennsylvania heavy artillery. In more recent years, he has been
