A VERY SAD DEATH

Mrs. J. H. Spears Breathed Her Last Monday Night at 11 O'clock.

A peculiarly sad death was that of Mrs. J. H. Spears which occurred at her home on South street in this city about 11 o'clock Monday night. She became the mother of a child Sunday morning, which child only lived about four hours. Mrs. Spears was sick about one week before she died, and her illness from the beginning until the end was quite severe and gave faint hope of her recovery. She was the picture of robust health before she became ill and no one who saw and knew her would for a moment think that she would so soon be among the dead. Truly "in the midst of life we are in death."

Mrs. Spears was before her marriage Miss Lena Kelly, a daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Kelly, who lived near Kelton in this county. Mrs. Spears was a good woman and all who knew her liked her. She was the second wife of Mr. John H. Spears and was a good wife, kind and good stepmother to the children of Mr. Spears, which is always an evidence of a truly good woman. She leaves two children, husband, mother, brothers, sisters, and a great many friends to mourn her untimely death.

In the bloom and prime of her young life, wife of an affectionate and devoted husband, mother and stepmother of clinging, trusting, confiding, loving, bright and interesting children, a kind and thoughtful friend and neighbor, she was taken from this earthly paradise to that great world of eternal bliss.

The funeral and burial services were conducted by her pastor Rev. L. M. Rice and the interment in the city cemetery at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

"THE DISHONORABLE SON."

To be Presented at the Opera House by the Union Dramatic Club, Wednesday Night, February 7th.

The pretty four act play, "The Dishonorable Son," will be presented by the Union Dramatic Club in the opera house Wednesday, February 7th. This play, which is for the benefit of the Confederate monument, has 15 parts with caste of characters by some of our best local talent, and they have been trained by Mr. Berlin, of Baltimore, who has played with the author of the play for two years.

Dots From Elzie.

The beautiful snow of Friday is now the slush of Monday; in the meantime, however, our people have had much amusement rabbit hunting and snow balling. We think the most of the stock was properly housed and enjoyed the feast, which they had helped earn, from the well filled barns of their owners.

Rev. John Farr met his appointment yesterday at Bethlehem, but as the congregation were absent he went on to his next appointment at Lockhart. We trust they were more faithful ones there. This ought to wake up the people of God to be more zealous and to be at their post—shall we say duty? No! Privilege.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Foster from below here was buried at Bethlehem last week.

Mrs. M. E. Britton is now in charge of her school at Bethlehem. The roll call is somewhat over fifty.

Miss Mary Wood, of Asbury, who taught in Mrs. Britton's unavoidable absence has returned to her home, having faithfully discharged her duties and made many warm friends among our people.

Mr. Sam Going, who went to Raleigh, N. C., with Mr. Mason Gallman who was returning to King's business college, after spending the holidays at home writes that he is very much pleased with the work.

The following is the honor roll of the Bethlehem school to date of the twenty-sixth of January:

First grade, Robt. Gallman.
Second grade, Maggie Going.
Third grade, Nannie Gault.
Fourth grade, Irving Garner.
Fifth grade, Jesse Gallman.
Sixth grade, Mae and Belle Gallman.
Seventh grade, Henry Going.

Mr. John Gallman's little boys, Olin and Clarence, have been quite sick this past week but are up at this writing.

Our mail is getting quite irregular. We suppose so many "wrecks" and "off the track" is the cause. Much success for you and THE TIMES force for this year.

The South's Educational Opportunity.

Adding to its wealth at the rate of $3,000,000 a day, the South has an opportunity for educational investment unparalleled in American history.

Infinitely greater in value than its mineral and timber wealth is the South's wealth in its undeveloped boys. There are tens of thousands of poor white boys throughout the South in whom there are latent abilities which, if quickened and developed and utilized would make them great leaders in Southern upbuilding. The finding of a boy who has such abilities and the development of that boy into a real man, a leader or men, is far beyond the discovery of a new ore or coal or gold mine. The opportunity which the South will henceforth afford to such boys is greater than can be found in any other section of this or any other country. How shall we find the boys and how shall their abilities be utilized to their own good and to the blessing of the South?

A few years ago the Manufacturer's Record suggested that in view of this situation business concerns and the people of means throughout the South should undertake to aid in the technical education of poor white boys. The rich need no help; the poor boy needs no charity, but he does need assistance. In every technical school in the South there are a number of boys who are paying for their tuition and board by working their way through college. Some do this by work on the farm connected with most of the schools, often up at 5 o'clock in the morning milking or doing other farm labor in order to secure the opportunity to get a technical education, while others are employed in the dining-room or about the building doing other manual labor. Fortunately for the honor and good sense of the scholars in these schools, those who work their way through do not in any way lose social caste or position. On the contrary, it very generally happens that these boys are of such force and strength of character that they are leaders and men of honor in the schools. Where a dozen or maybe 15 to 20 boys can find employment in this way and be able to work their way through college, there are hundreds of others seeking similar opportunities who cannot be accepted, because in these schools there is only a certain amount of work to be done and only a limited number of boys can thus be employed. Some of the presidents of these technical schools to whom applications are made have said to the Manufacturer's Record that their hearts have ached at times because of having to refuse so many who desired only the privilege of working their way through college.

No longer can the people of the South plead financial inability to do this. No longer can they shirk the moral responsibility to carry on the broadest educational campaign that may be needed to fully equip the rising generation to meet the opportunities which are already at hand. Providence has blessed this section with a vast increase in wealth. Within the last five years the real wealth of the South has increased by at least $3,000,000,000, of which over $1,000,000,000 has been added in the last 12 months. Thousands of men are well-to-do and other thousands are rich who a few years ago scarcely dreamed of ever getting beyond the immediate needs of the day. Wealth is accumulating everywhere, but this wealth will prove a curse unless the people of the South utilize it for the development of manhood by the training of the boys who should become the leaders in the material advancement of the next quarter or half century.

The responsibility is upon us, not upon our neighbors. It is upon the South not upon outside philanthropists. With an increase of $1,000,000,000 a year in the South's wealth it would be a disgrace to our manhood for the South to be begging for alms from the people of other sections to carry on its educational campaign.—Manufacturer's Record.

Death of Mr. Giley Bobo.

Mr. Giley Bobo, age 23 years and four months, died at the home of his mother Mrs. Sallie Bobo near Sedalia Monday morning at 5 o'clock. The remains were interred at Padgett Creek cemetery Tuesday at noon. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. L. M. Rice of this city, assisted by Rev. Landrum Ezell, a former pastor at Padgett Creek.

The following people from the city attended the funeral: Miss Bessie Estes, Messrs. Arthur Estes, M. W. Bobo, M. C. Ray.
