"I have found a sword, sahib. You left me no cartridges."

Jenks told him that the clip and the twelve packets were lying at the foot of the rock, where Mir Jan speedily discovered them. The Mohammedan gave satisfactory assurance that he understood the mechanism of the rifle by filling and adjusting the magazine. Then he went to examine the corpse of the man who lay in the open near the quarry path.

The sailor stood in instant readiness to make a counter demonstration were the native assailed. But there was no sign of the Dyaks. Mir Jan returned with the news that the sixth victim of the brief yet fierce encounter was a renegade Malay. He was so confident that the enemy had enough of it for the night that, after recovering Jenks' revolver, he boldly went to the well and drew himself a supply of water.

During supper Jenks told Iris so much of the story as was good for her—that is to say, he cut down the casualty list.

It was easy to see what had happened. The Dyaks, having missed the Mohammedan and their water bag, searched for him and heard the conversation at the foot of the rock. Knowing that their presence was suspected, they fled by a more and more advantageous route along Turtle beach.

Iris would have talked all night, but Jenks made her go to sleep by pillow-ing her head against his shoulder and smoothing her tangled tresses with his hand.

He managed to lay her on a comfortable pile of ragged clothing and then resumed his vigil. Mir Jan offered to mount guard beneath, but Jenks bade him go within the cave and remain there, for the dawn would soon be upon them.

Left alone with his thoughts, he wondered what the rising sun would bring in its train. He reviewed the events of the last twenty-four hours. Iris and he—Miss Deane, Mr. Jenks, to each other—were then undiscovered in their refuge. The Dyaks were gathered around a roaring fire in the valley, and Mir Jan was in the hunt as the keenest among them. Now Iris was his affianced bride, over twenty of the enemy were killed and many wounded, and Mir Jan, a devoted adherent, was seated beside the skeleton in the gloom of the cavern.

A period of reflection could hardly pass without a speculative dive into the future. If Iris and he were rescued, what would happen when they went forth once more into the busy world? Not for one instant did he doubt her faith. She was true as steel, knit to him now by bonds of triple brass. But what would Sir Arthur Deane think of his daughter's marriage to a discredited and cashiered officer? What was that poor Mir Jan called himself—"a disgraced man?" Yes, that was it. Could that stain be removed? Mir Jan was doing it. Why not he—by other means, for his good name rested on the word of a perjured woman? Wealth was potent, but not all powerful. He would ask Iris to wait until he came to her unsoiled by slander, purged of this odium cast upon him unmerited.

"What is he saying about me?" inquired Iris, who had risen and joined her lover.

"He says you absolutely staggered the Dyaks by opening fire the moment they appeared."

"How did you come to slay one, Mir Jan?" he continued.

"A son of a black pig followed me into the cave. I waited for him in the darkness. I have just thrown his body outside."

"Well done! Is Taming Sahib dead by any lucky chance?"

"No, sahib, if he be not the sixth. I will go and see."

"You may be attacked."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A rush of dollars to the pocket frequently causes an ooze of sense from the head.

Only one kind of advice is of value—the kind for which you pay a high price.

The young man looking for red ears at a husking bee is apt to be color blind.

The Canadian Line.

The boundary line between Canada and the United States is marked with iron posts at mile intervals for a great part of its length. Cairns, earth mounds and timber posts are also used, and through the forests and swamps a line a rod wide, clear of trees and under-wood, has been cut. Across the lakes artificial islands have been made to support the cairns, which rise about eight feet above the high water mark.

—Exchange.

Lunching in Congress.

Visitors in Washington nearly always call upon the congressman from their district, and the latter, if of hospitable turn, frequently invites them to luncheon in the congress restaurant, a privilege highly prized by the average visitor. Once a number of women called upon a wealthy congressman and were duly invited to have luncheon with him, which they promptly and gladly accepted, and when seated proceeded to order a luncheon substantial enough for day laborers. When the check for the luncheon was handed to the congressman and he handed a bill for the amount to the waiter, one of the women remarked that she thought congressmen did not have to pay for their meals there or she would not have ordered so much. The congressman, says the narrator, explained that paying for luncheons was one of the pleasant privileges which were still permitted to the congressmen by an indulgent government and that it was one which they especially enjoyed. "And visitors help us enjoy it, too," he added.—Baltimore American.

Contagion and Infection.

The terms contagion and infection are too often used promiscuously, though they are by no means synonymous. The dissemination of mycotic diseases takes place in different ways. There are those which cannot be communicated from person to person, but spread only by the microbe cause invading the individual. To this class belong material fevers produced by spasmophilia. There are, secondly, those which are not communicable from person to person, but through external carriers only, such as soil, water, food, air, clothing and utensils. To that class belong yellow fever and Asiatic cholera. They are infections. There are, finally, those which may be transmitted directly from a person or indirectly through carriers. To this class belong scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, variola, influenza, erysipelas and varicella, perhaps also whooping cough. They are contagious and infectious.

Counting Customs of Siam.

In Siam the lighting of a cigar indicates a betrothal. In that country a person wishing to become engaged to the girl of his choice offers her a flower or takes a light from a cigar or cigarette if she happens to have one in her mouth, and thereupon, provided there is no impediment, steps are at once taken to arrange for the payment of the dowry. The families of the bride and bridegroom have each to provide a considerable sum. In Calabaria, as in many parts of India, a lighted taper or a lighted pipe betokens the acceptance of the suitor for the hand of a lady in marriage. In Siberia it is the custom that when a suitor has been accepted, he is to bring to the bride a pair of cigars and a pair of slippers as a sign that he is to be master in the house.

Japan's Pancake Women.

One of the familiar sights on the streets of a Japanese town is the pancake woman, who, with her little brazier of coals and her tiny frying pan, is usually found on a corner not far from a school. She has a bowl full of delicious batter, a ladle and a cake turner, and there is apt to be a hungry crowd around her little stand as soon as school is out, for not many of the children are able to resist the smell of the crisp pancakes, at least if they have any money. For a small coin worth only a fraction of one of our pennies a child may fry and turn his own cakes, and happy is the one who has a number of coins in his little kimono sleeve and can fry and eat to his heart's content.

Official Correspondence.

A fourth class postmaster—and he doesn't live in Billville—sent the following to headquarters in Washington:

"This will make three times that I've told you I'm laid up with a bad leg, havin' shot myself in the left leg—the one that was wounded in the war—while I wuz tryin' to kill a squirrel for my breakfast, and I will not be besides, I don't git much holiday now!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Scotland Yard.

Scotland Yard, widely known as the headquarters of the London police, is a historical place, said to have been the site of a palace where kings of Scotland were received when they came to London. It is near the banquet hall, Whitehall. The Scotch kings retained possession of it from 959 till the rebellion of William of Scotland, Milton, Sir Christopher Wren and other notable lived in Scotland Yard.

Why?

The following advertisement appeared in a prominent London newspaper: Wanted.—Experienced business woman as manageress, floorwalker, supervisor; not necessarily experienced in hairdressing, but must be tactful, reliable and born about Sept. 22.

Two Kinds of People.

There are two great promoters of social happiness—cheerful people and people who have some reticence. The latter are more secure benefits to society than the former. They are the non-conductors of all the heats and animosities around them.

A Mean Insultation.

Miss Ingenue—Aren't you nearly ready to go to the ball? Miss Passy—I haven't made up my mind to go yet. Miss Ingenue—Oh, do you have to make that up too?—Cleveland Leader.

In proportion to population, mate drinking is more common in those parts of South America where the plant grows than tea drinking in the tea districts of China.

You too would have to build bigger barns if you would only listen to reason and "increase your yields per acre" by enriching your soil and feeding your plants with that wonder-worker, Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer.

It has been the tremendous success of many farmers all over the South, who started life with only a few acres and a one-horse plow. Now, after using these fertilizers for many years, these farmers are rich. Read what they say in our columns. Ask your dealer for it, or send us in stamps to pay cost of wrapping and postage on a copy. Be sure and ask for Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers, and accept no substitute.

Curious Fishing.

Very curious is the method of fishing followed by the Chinese in the strait of Malacca. The fisherman lets down from the side of the boat a screen of white canvas stretched on wood. The shoal of fish mistake this for some floating obstruction and try to leap over it, with the result that the fish jump into the boat and are thus captured. This method is employed by Malays in their waters.

Ventriloquism in the Bible.

Ventriloquism, which is described as "speaking from the belly," has its first historic mention, as far as we are aware, in Isaiah xxix, 4. "And thou shalt be brought down and shalt speak out of the ground, and thy speech shall be low out of the dust, and thy voice shall be as one that hath a familiar spirit, out of the ground, and thy speech shall whisper out of the dust."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Resourceful.

"Here!" roared the old lawyer to his son, studying law with him. "You told me you had read this work on evidence, and yet the leaves are not out."

"Used X rays," yawned the versatile son, and the father chuckled with delight as he thought what a lawyer the boy would make.

Comforting.

"Our clergyman preached a sermon to widowers today."

"What was his text?"

"Sorrow not as those that have no hope!"

Notice of Registration.

In obedience to an Act of the General Assembly Entitled an "Act authorizing an election in Town of Union, South Carolina, for Mayor and Wardens," Notice is hereby given that the books of Registration are now open by D. W. Mullinax, Registrar, at Mr. Jacob Cohen's store; and all male persons possessing the necessary qualifications; namely, having paid poll tax and street tax for Town of Union for previous year and possessing all other necessary qualifications and not laboring under the disabilities of the Constitution of 1905 for this State may register for the election to be held on the 5th day of June, 1906, for Mayor and Wardens for Town of Union by applying to Mr. D.
