Corrections.

By one of those errors that cannot be avoided in a newspaper office, Mr. Jos. Sanders' name was omitted among the candidates for County Commissioner, in the account of the meeting at Santuck. THE TIMES is always more than glad to correct any error in its columns, and we feel sure that our patrons give us credit for never making an intentional error.

Mr. Sanders spoke forcefully in favor of good roads, arguing the quick repair of bad places and poor bridges, utilizing the stone and timber at our easy command. He does not favor the county going into debt for this purpose, but advocates this economical method of quick repair, and at the same time to build good permanent roads just as fast as the county's funds permit. Mr. Sanders is a good speaker.

Another correction is that Mr. Bentley "opposes" not "approves" floating the $100,000 bonds.

Still another is that Mr. A. A. Strock, who forged the name of Mr. L. B. Jeter on a note, did not secure the money for it.

Large Sunflower.

Old Uncle Mose Mobley who lives near town, and who, by the way, is an ardent admirer of THE TIMES, having been a subscriber for years and years, brought to this office the largest sunflower we have ever seen in the up-country. The disk alone is a little over 12 inches in diameter and 38 inches in circumference.

In connection with this notice, it might be of interest to recall the mythological origin of the sunflower. It is this: Clytie, a sea nymph, sitting day after day upon a rock in the sea, fell deeply in love with Apollo, the sun-god. She pined for him so that through pity, Appollo changed her into the heliotropium or sunflower; and thereafter she gazed with rapt admiration upon him throughout the day, ever turning her face toward him as he pursued his course through the heavens. Two lines from Thos. Moore concerning this are:

"The sunflower turns on her god when he sets
The same look that she turned when he rose."

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the co-partnership, heretofore existing between R. R. Berry and G. T. Keller, doing business as druggists under the firm name of Berry & Keller, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Dr. G. T. Keller having purchased the entire interest of Dr. Berry in said business, and assumes all past debts and liabilities of said firm.

Leitch and Marshal at Bogansville.

The Evangelists Leitch and Marshal will conduct a week or ten days meeting at Bogansville Methodist church in the West Springs section. The meeting will begin Sunday, 26th, at 11 a. m. and there will be another service at 8:30 p. m.. This will probably be the program throughout the series. Those who come late need not be surprised if they have to stand up, or even remain outside the house.

The public is invited.
D. E. CAMAK, Pastor.

Fair Forest Letter.

Mr. Editor—I will have to correct you; you made me say in my last week's letter that Mr. Bennie Mitchell is very sick, and hoped he would be again. When I wrote and the letter should read: I hope he will soon be well again. Of course we know it was only a misprint. But I feel that I should rectify said mistake.

Mr. Mitchell visited Mr. Bennie Greer Sunday.

Oh! such muddy roads through these parts at this time. Some of them have just been lately worked, and plenty of rain makes it "stucky mucky."

Mrs. Louise Littlejohn, of Jonesville, is visiting friends and relatives at this place and Cross Keys this week.

Mrs. J. B. Willis, of Spartanburg, is visiting Miss Emma Sparks and other sisters in our community, this week.

School opened here this morning with Miss Fannie Wilburn as teacher. We hope to see this school run on full time as Miss Fannie does her duty at all hazards. Success to her!

Mr. W. W. Greer has returned from Spartanburg where he has been visiting with his family for the past week.

There are lots of summer colds through this community just now. "Howdy! howdy! howdy you do? How are your wife and how are you? It pleases me as no other can, The smooth little hand of the voting man."

This is the candidates salutation these days. Its Harris, Going, Little, Hughes. We have heard the song of want, in the Keys; All want it if you please."
