EMETINE cures PYORRHEA

THE DISCOVERY OF A DECADE

Pyorrhea has recently been shown by Professors Barrett and Smith, of the University of Pennsylvania, to be an amebic infection for which they have demonstrated EMETINE to be a specific. This finding has been confirmed by Professors Bass and Johns of Tulane University, New Orleans. It is thus a Godsend to those who deal with, and those who suffer from this distressing condition. Brilliant results are being secured.

Death of Mrs. Marybelle Feaster

Mrs. Marybelle Feaster, after a illness, died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Dickerson, of the Crosbyville community, on February 6, aged 48 years.

Her husband the late M. C. Feaster of Union, had preceded her to the grave by four weeks.

Interment was at Cool Branch church, the services conducted by the pastor, and the remains laid to rest in the church cemetery.

The beautiful floral offerings, and the deep feelings that pervaded the large assemblage, bore testimony to the high esteem in which she was held and to the sorrow felt at her taking away.

In early life Mrs. Feaster joined Cool Branch church, and at the time of her death held her membership with Beulah church. She was a devout christian, and bore her sufferings with fortitude and patience.

Besides her mother, she leaves one son, W. L. Feaster, principal of the Lancaster High School; also one sister and four brothers: Mrs. Viola Hodge of Union, Mr. Will Dickerson, Mr. Glenn Dickerson, Mr. Lee Dickerson, and Mr. Feaster Dickerson of Shelton, R. F. D.

Very Much Alive

Mr. T. K. Foster, who lives two miles north of Union, and who is also known as "Thad," Foster, is very much alive. Last week we chronicled the death of Mr. R. T. Foster, who was also called "Thad," Foster, and since that time many of Mr. T. K. Foster's friends have questioned him about his reported death; he says "some five hundred" people had made some remark about it.

A careful reading of the article reporting the death of Mr. R. T. Foster, would have revealed the identity of the man. Reading the heading and jumping to the conclusion, caused the confusion. We are pleased to have people believe what they see in our columns, but trust they may be able to get the heading and the article together. We have heard both men referred to as "Thad," Foster, and in fact, did not know the dead man had any other name.

Kindergarten Entertains

The Kindergarten at Monarch under the supervision of Miss Brown, entertained the "Mothers' Club" of the same place, and a few invited guests last Thursday afternoon at the Community house, and it was a pleasing and most delightful affair.

Miss Brown has about forty tots in her kindergarten and they entertained the guests for more than an hour with flower songs, sunbeam dances and various "cute" and fascinating ways. A little man dressed as a postman delivered valentines which had been made in the kindergarten to all the guests. Delicious cakes and candies were served. Several of the guests present have asked for an invitation to the next party, for fear they would be overlooked.

To this end distribute Home Mission literature, which can be secured from the Home Board, Atlanta, Ga.

Read St. Luke, 16th Chapter

Mr. Editor: One day last summer I was walking down the street in Union and I passed by two or three men talking, and I heard one say that he did not believe there was any hell. Now, Mr. Editor, such people as that do not go to church nor read the Bible, but as a rule, the most of them read the newspapers. Now, I will ask you to put this in The Union Times for this man to read. If this man will read the 16th chapter of St. Luke, it will tell him about hell.

Yours truly,

G. E. T.
