

SMILES

A Limited Journey.
Ed—"He seems to be wandering in his mind."
Fred—"Well, he can't stray far!"

Paradoxical Infection.
"I think it very queer the water on my place made you folks sick."
"Why so?"
"Because it is well water."—Baltimore American.

Go Easy!
Two things break gently,
We earnestly beg—
Bad news to a friend,
And an over-ripe egg.
—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Distressing.
Dear Sweet Thing—"Aren't you feeling well?"
Steady—"No; I ate German noodle soup and French fried potatoes for supper, and they won't arbitrate."

Translated for the Cook.
Customer—"Here, waiter! Where are the olives? Hold on! Bring me half a melon and some cracked ice."
Waiter (loudly)—"Dumdums, half a bombshell and a bowl of shrapnel."

Devotion.
(Philadelphia Public Ledger)
She—"Would you leave your home for me?"
He—"I'd leave a baseball game in the ninth inning with the score a tie."

A Real Smart Alec.
(Woman's Home Companion)
"What are the two sexes, Alec?" asked the teacher.
"Masculine and feline," answered Alec.

In Excellent Form.
(Buffalo Express)
"My boy, I must congratulate you on your consistency."
"Thank you, sir, I—er—"
"Yes, sir, you've worked here three weeks and you haven't done anything right yet."

Friend in Need.
The ferret-eyed little man stepped across the street car aisle and whispered into the ear of the tall chap in a gray suit:
"You'd better wipe that bit of egg off your chin. The income tax man is just two seats in front of you."

One of the Three.
Susie's grandmother had been scolding her. Susie felt indignant, but had been taught never to "answer back." However, she got even. Taking her kitten in her arms, she thus soliloquized:
"Kitty, I wish one of us was dead this minute. Not you kitty, nor me kitty, but one of us three in this room."

Stingy.
(Kansas City Post)
Mrs. Gordon was spending some time at Palm Beach, and during her stay she wrote her husband, saying: "Dear Will: I enclose the hotel bill. Will write back: 'I enclose the check, but please don't buy any more hotels at this price. They are robbing you.'"

Patient Search.
(New Orleans States)
A man entered the cloak room at the end of a banquet and began to smash in silk hat after silk hat.
"Hold on, boss! Wot fo' yo' smashes'n' all dem high hats?" demanded the attendant.
"I'm looking for my own," the gentleman answered. "It's an opera hat—collapsible, you know. None of these seem to be it."

His Only Chance.
"Why do you carry that umbrella little boy?" asked the passer-by curiously. "It's not raining and the sun is not shining."
"I know," said the youth, "but when it rains Pa wants it and when the sun shines Ma wants it, and this is the only kinda weather I can git ter use it at all."

Interested Advice.
"I am bothered," he said: "I can marry a wealthy widow whom I don't love or a poor girl that I do love intensely. What shall I do?"
"Listen to your heart," advised his companion, "and marry the one you love."
"You are right my friend. I shall marry the girl."
"Then can you give me the widow's address?"—London Opinion.

Pat's Precaution.
During the preparation for battle Pat emerged from his tent wearing his uniform hind side before. This soon attracted the attention of his superior officer, who demanded an explanation.
Pat scratched his head and seemed oath to comply, but finally replied with a sheepish grin: "Well becorra Oi wore it this way, thin when Oi had to retrace Oi wouldn't get shot in the back."—Life.

The Test Supreme.
"You say that women haven't the endurance of men?"
"They haven't."
"That they cannot successfully resist unusual mental strain, or physical fatigue—that they lack nerve and patience and endurance?"
"Yes."
"Do you see that little woman over there?"
"Yes."
"You have never known a man who could endure what she has endured."
"Eh! Why what is she?"
"She's the reader of the love stories submitted to a popular magazine."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DEATH CALLS
CAPT. CHAS. PETTY

Was Veteran Newspaper Man, a Confederate Soldier, Member of Famous Wallace House and a Christian Gentleman.

died at his home at Spartanburg Tuesday morning of last week after an illness of less than a fortnight. Though extremely weak from the infirmities of old age, Captain Petty was conscious until the last and during the early hours of this morning he conversed with his loved ones about the bed.

Death was due to a general physical breakdown, though, a few days ago he fell and suffered a shock, which probably hastened the end. Five weeks ago he celebrated his 80th birthday.

The funeral services will be held from the late residence some time tomorrow, the hour and more complete arrangements to be announced later.

Confederate Veteran.
Charles Petty was born January 15, 1835 on the farm of his father, James Petty, two miles west of Gaffney. His father was from Orange county, Virginia. His mother was Ruth Cannon, sister of the late Gabriel Cannon. When a young man he began teaching in the Spartanburg Female College and in 1859 married Julia Davis, of Wilkesville, then in Union county.

Shortly after "The Star of the West" was fired a call was made for a certain number of companies. Several in this county were organized. One was known as Company C. 13th, S. C. V. Of this company, Charles Petty was a member, T. Stobo Farrow was captain. D. R. Duncan, J. W. Carlisle and A. S. Douglas were lieutenants. When the regiment was organized, Capt. Farrow was elected major, D. R. Duncan was promoted to captain and Charles Petty was elected lieutenant. Those four officers went through the entire war together, neither being seriously wounded.

Lieutenant Petty was with his regiment during the several days around Richmond and was engaged in the battles of Gaines' Mill and Cold Harbor. He was with the Confederate army in its advance up the Rappahannock river and was with Gen. Jackson in his great movement to Manassas Junction in the rear of Gen. Pope's army. He was in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Falling Waters, Nine Run, Wilderness, Spotsylvania Court House, Jerico Ford, Second Cold Harbor, Riddle's Shop, attack at Petersburg in front of line, Deep Bottom, Fussell's Mill, after which he was in all the battles and marches in which his regiment was engaged until the surrender at Appomattox Court House.

Member Wallace House
After the war Capt. Petty farmed at Wilkesville until 1872, when he became the head of Limestone Female college at Gaffney, then in Spartanburg county. In the memorable campaign of 1876 he was elected to the legislature from this county and became a member of the historic Wallace house. During the trying days of the conflict between the democrats and the republicans for the control of the state government, he took a prominent part. He wrote some spirited letters to President Rutherford B. Hayes, in which he told the president that unless Wade Hampton was recognized as governor of South Carolina, there would be another war. President Hayes replying in his own handwriting assured Captain Petty that Governor Hampton would be recognized. These letters are still in possession of the family—Spartanburg Journal.

Foresee Sky Battle.

A battle in the clouds between the aerial fleets of the German and the allies may take place at any time and the Germans will be beaten, in the opinion of Glenn H. Curtiss, of Hammondsport, N. Y., manufacturer of aeroplanes and himself an aviator. Mr. Curtiss has been watching reports from the war zone in Europe regarding the aviation operations, and has had many private reports of these operations.

"It is generally understood among aeroplane experts that the Germans are preparing to make an aeroplane raid on the English coast and that the English reinforced, perhaps by the French, will rise to meet them," said Mr. Curtiss. "I can see only one result of such a fight—the defeat of the Germans. I believe this will be the case, because the English aeroplanes are most efficient in every respect than those of the Germans. They are faster, better constructed and can rise to greater heights. Thus far in the war the Germans have suffered far more in the air battles than have the allies. But it seems certain that there will be a decisive battle in the air before long."

"This war has demonstrated the utility of the aeroplane in war, and has proved that it is superior to the dirigible or Zeppelin. The Zeppelin undoubtedly would have been a great menace to England and France had it not been for the aeroplane."
"One striking feature of the war has been that the aeroplane corps has been found to be the safest branch of the service. This is easily accounted, as I view it, for the very good reason that aeroplanes, when out for business are not dangerous. It is only when aviators are joy riding that they become dangerous."—Washington Post.

GUESTS ENJOYED A

Presence of Monkeys at Formal Dinner by Mrs. Longworth Made a Decided "Hit."

It happened that Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the daughter of former President Roosevelt, and wife of the distinguished Ohio representative, had presented to her among many hundreds of other gifts, two little monkeys, who lost no time in sustaining their reputation for mischievous antics, and kept the Longworth household in a panic as to what was going to happen next.

They were too nimble and quick to be punished for the evil of their ways, and so, week in and week out the monkeys had a lovely time of it. When Mr. and Mrs. Longworth entertained, the little creatures were shut up behind lock and key, and usually wore themselves out in their effort to break through, and went to sleep in consequence, from sheer exhaustion.

This had always insured the success of a party, without any disturbing interruptions, until one fateful night when Mrs. Longworth looked up to discover a monkey grinning at her from the top of a picture. It was only a second until the other one climbed up the corner of the cloth, and snatched a few nuts from some of the panic-stricken guests. His partner in crime leaped from the picture and perched himself upon the shoulder of a guest, and the details of what followed are not laid down in the directions given to polite society as how to entertain.

"But," laughed a guest not long ago, "I shall never forget how utterly funny it was, nor how we all enjoyed it, just as soon as we were assured the monkeys would not eat us."

WAR NEWS FROM KANSAS

Up to 1 A. M. the Situation in Jenks' Home Was Reported as Remaining Unchanged.

The battle at Short Jenks' home continues unabated, says the Atchison Globe. At eleven o'clock this morning Mrs. Jenks made the following official announcement: "With a brilliant charge about breakfast time I flanked my husband with my stalwart foot and he doubled up and then retreated in haste. It was almost a rout." At one o'clock this morning Mr. Jenks officially announced: "The situation remains unchanged. There have been attacks and counter-attacks on both sides, with no decisive results. I'm now well entrenched and confident behind a tub in the cellar. I believe I will ultimately triumph. The enemy is making many claims, and making those things is the easiest thing in the world to do. If she had a cannon that was as rapid as her mouth I would be compelled to admit that my position is serious. At it is, I concede nothing. I will conserve my strength and forces, with the view of getting out of the cellar and consulting a lawyer. I urge American newspapers to judge not until the real situation is known. History will vindicate me and declare that I did not start hostilities. My sister-in-law urged my wife to start them. My wife didn't need a great deal of urging."

Off to the Front.
A theatrical woman went into a Broadway drug store and leaned upon the show case. A drug dispenser advanced precipitately and stood smiling expectantly before her.

"Have you got any smokeless powder?" inquired the woman sternly.
The young man backed off in fear that the war news from the other side had unsettled the woman's mental balance.

"Smokeless powder?" he gasped.
"No, madam, we haven't any. You will have to go to a gun store for that."

"You haven't got any then?" she persisted, piercing him with her deep, dark eyes.

"No, ma'am," he said, all of a tremble by now.

"What do you call that in that box in the show case?" she asked, pointing at the article in question.

"That's ordinary face powder, lady," he explained freely.

"Well, that's smokeless, isn't it?" she said with a silvery laugh, and the drug dispenser was nearly overcome by the reaction.

Joffre's Nickname.

In a note on General Joffre, London Truth says: "A man of bourgeois family, very much the soldier, very much the mathematician, very much the man of action, and quite as much the man of thought. His family belongs to the eastern Pyrenees. An auctioneer founded it about a hundred years ago. This ancestor went from village to village in a showman's van laden with goods. They were trumpeted by him as bargains, 'Joffre such or such an article at such and such a price!' he cried, when he drew up in the mayoralty square or marketplace of burg or village. He began at a high figure and went down gradually. His Catalan name proclaimed him a foreigner, and he adopted the nickname county folk had given him of Joffre—le pere Joffre."

Germany's Sources of Wealth.
In 1912 Germany produced a mineral output of $592,260,000 in coal, lignite, iron, zinc, lead, copper, rock salt and potassic salt. Her foundry products that year were: Pig iron, $212,627,750; zinc, $28,589,750; lead, $11,638,000; copper, $11,003,500; tin, $8,874,000. Two years ago the fisheries of Germany yielded $108,916,990.

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown ups, plainly printed on the bottles. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Latinized.

Jack returned home from college, where he had won high honors as a student of ancient languages, but he pleaded ignorance one day when his young sister asked him to translate a sign she had seen of an optician which read thus: "Con sulito sabo utyo urey es."

Jack struggled manfully with it for several minutes and gave it up.

"It isn't good Latin," he said.
"There are some words in it that are Latin. The others aren't anyhow. It doesn't make sense."

"That is what I said," replied the sister; "but cook translates it without any trouble. She says it means: Consult us about your eyes."—Tid Bits.

Atlanta's Dry Sunday.

Atlanta, Ga., March 1.—Atlanta today is recovering from her first really dry Sunday in several years, and the early morning attendance at the clubs was notably large. But the men who must have their Sunday today did not suffer if they had forethought, for Chief Beavers' warning enabled them to carry home a package Saturday night. Some carried their package in bottles and some internally.

The chief sprung a surprise by digging up an old state statute against tipping on Sunday, instructed the chief of detectives to have plain clothes men watch the clubs and make cases where any drinks were served, dispensed, sold or given away.
