THE HOUSEWIFE

We are happy indeed to introduce and to be able to make a clubbing arrangement that will enable our readers to have The Housewife the coming year.
 The stories are high-class in every way—stories that will appeal to and please you, many with gripping excitement and interesting holding qualities.
 Particular attention is given by The Housewife to reasonable, sensible cooking, household hints, and matters of particular interest to mother and child.
 The Housewife is a large, well printed magazine; subscription price, 50 cents per year. It is only because the publishers are anxious to develop their subscription list in the South that we have been able to secure a rate on these subscriptions that enable us to include it in this year's clubbing offers with The Progressive Farmer. We know you will be highly pleased if you decide to take the club, including The Housewife.

The Chesterfield Advertiser

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

Subscription, $1.00 a year.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Chesterfield, South Carolina.

PAUL H. HEARN
 Editor and Publisher.

F. W. Hanna, authorized representative.

A press despatch says shad and lobsters are rapidly disappearing from America. Guess we can spare a few lobsters without any serious loss.

Henry Ford has abandoned his peace mission and come home. When he started on that absurd trip we were about to quote the ditty:

"Three wise men of Gotham
 Went to sea in a bowl
 If the bowl had been stronger
 My story had been longer."

Henry has finished the story.

BILLY BRYAN'S BEE

Brother Billy Bryan is a good man in some ways but in other ways he is peculiar. He seems to be trying as hard to get up an issue with President Wilson as the Republicans are and with as little success. He attacks the President because of his preparedness and objects to his plans for raising revenue. He says the money should come from the income tax: that it should be raised and the rich made to pay more. He does not agree that the income tax should be widened so as to take in incomes that are not now taxed. That might interfere with Brother Bryan's income which is said to be by no means small.

If Brother Bryan would get rid of that presidential bee in his bonnet he would be more useful to his country in this crisis. Besides, that bee is getting old and ought to be out of its misery.

In Defense of the English Sparrow

Editor Advertiser:

I noticed in The Advertiser a few weeks ago where some one writing in the Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer had said the so called "pesty" English sparrow was a good means of destroying a certain detrimental forest insect. We were further advised by our Chesterfield editor that this was about the only compliment ever bestowed on this familiar bird in regard to his industry.

I would like to say that if our Editor will lay aside all other duties some time and prove himself an ornithologist for a few hours, he will readily find that the little English sparrow is filled with a most industrious disposition, especially in spring time. He is a very busy worker among garden plants—and delights in removing many a harmful insect that serves to destroy young plant life.

The writer has watched for hours, the real good of this little bird that is so much hated by the average, because they have never consumed time enough to turn the bright side of the little fellow their way.

When you are prone to dislike the cheerful English sparrow, just devote a few spare hours to his study and you will no longer abhor the presence of our little "feathered friend."

M. V. S.

The little visitor chanced to sit near a plate containing apple paring. After a long wait, during which no offer was made of hospitality, the child finally blurted out:

"I smell apples."

"Yes," said the lady of the house, "you smell those parings."

"Parings, nothing," exclaimed the kiddie, "I smell whole apples."

"My husband," remarked a Philadelphia matron to a group of friends, "was a confirmed smoker with a tobacco heart when I married him a year ago, but today he never touches the weed."

"Good," said one of the group.

"To break off a lifetime habit requires a strong will."

"Well, that's what I've got," said the wife.

In watch and jewelry repairing you want the best. Make no mistake.

SOREHEAD IN POULTRY

Extremely Contagious Disease of Fowls Can Cause Serious Loss Unless Promptly Checked.

Sorehead, a disease of chickens caused by spores of a common mold, appears when fowls come in contact with moldy litter or moldy grain. It seems not to be a constitutional disease. It is usually confined to the face, comb, wattles and ear-lobes, eyes, nostrils, and mouth, but is occasionally found under the wings in advanced or neglected cases. It is extremely contagious and may spread through a flock in two or three days.

Sorehead is of two kinds, dry and moist, according to the surface attacked by the spores. If it is on the mucous membrane of the eye, mouth, or nostrils, the moist type develops; if on the skin of the face or adjacent parts, it will be the dry or warty variety. The moist type is a most serious disease, growing rapidly. It soon closes the eyelids, which swell to an enormous size, blinds the fowl, and causes it to waste away and die.

When sorehead appears, it is not necessary to isolate the diseased fowls from the flock. Look for moldy litter or food and if it is found replace it with fresh. Check the disease by coloring the drinking water pink with a few crystals of permanganate of potash, and paint the face and comb of the apparently well chickens with equal parts of creolin and water, or a strong purple solution of permanganate of potash. Give appetizing food. It is advisable to mix the egg mash with buttermilk or sour skim milk and feed sprouted oats daily. Cook cheap meat, cut it up, and throw to the chickens.

The fowls that have the warts should be caught and the crust of each wart removed. The tissue underneath is red. Dip a clean feather in one of the remedies named below and touch the red tissue with the liquid. Next morning the treated wart will have a black scab over it, which dries and falls off in three or four days. A week later one cannot detect where the wart was.

In treating the moist variety, it is necessary to drop the remedy into the eye, nostrils, or whatever organ is attacked. This seems cruel, but it saves the fowl.

The remedy the writer prefers is pure, undiluted creolin. We have not lost a chicken from sorehead since using this remedy. It will eradicate the disease from the eye and, if used in time, will save the sight. Other good remedies are iodine, cresol or similar disinfectant, zenoleum, all used undiluted; purple solution of permanganate of potash, liquid shoe polish (black), and solution of copperas (as much as will lie on a 25-cent piece, dissolved in a cup of water). A clean feather is best for applying the remedy.

CONTROL SAN JOSE SCALE

Do Not Let Winter Pass Without Making Effort to Get Rid of This Fruit Pest by Spraying.

The time to spray San Jose scale is in winter when the trees are leafless and dormant, because the materials that have to be used are so severe that they would destroy the foliage if applied when the leaves are on. The most satisfactory spray is lime-sulfur wash. When purchased from a reputable house it is more uniformly effective than when boiled according to the old method. Directions for preparing the home-made wash, however, will be furnished on request.

To prepare the spray from commercial wash, dilute one gallon of the wash with eight and one-half gallons of cold water. Ordinarily, one spray is enough. In bad cases, spray as soon as the leaves are off and repeat in February. We do not recommend spraying with this material after the buds have started.

Lime-sulfur wash will not successfully control the gloomy and cottony maple scales so common to maple trees, nor will it successfully control oyster shell scale of the orchard. For these we recommend heavy oil emulsions at the rate of one part of the oil to twenty parts of water. Owing to the variety of oils now being tried out, any one wishing definite information about oils for these pests should write us. Oils bought from standard houses are generally well emulsified, but it is always well to make a separation test as follows: After making up the spray, set one-half tumbler of the mixture in a quiet place for an hour. If no separation shows in the form of light oils coming to the top, the oil is safe to spray according to directions. When a separation takes place the manufacturers are always willing to adjust the matter.

NEW YEAR "NEVER AGAIN'S"

Suggestions for Husbands, Wives and All Lovers, Married or Single, That Are Timely.

If you haven't thought up any, here are a few timely suggestions:

For hubby: Never again to spend a moment out of the presence of the wife unaccompanied by a trustworthy guardian appointed by her, who will report faithfully all of your doings, even to the irregular quiver of an eyelash, or the drinking of soda instead of buttermilk.

Never again to be such a brute as to want to stay at home when the wife wishes to go out, or to wish to go out—by yourself—when wife desires you to stay at home in the bosom of your family.

Never again to growl, grumble or swear, or pretend to be asleep when the wife pokes you in the back and asks you to walk with the baby in the middle of the night.

Never again to threaten to forbid tradespeople to allow the wife credit if she and the girls do not cease their extravagance—when the monthly bills come in.

Never again to forget to peck wife on the cheek upon leaving her in the morning and coming home at night, to tell her that her frightful new bonnet is a perfect gem, and that her "fourteen-year-old" short dress is altogether too old-looking for her youthful figure.

For wife: Never again to make biscuit for breakfast until you have tried them on your own digestion for a few weeks in the absence of the rest of the family.

Never again to notice pa exchanging glances with the pretty girl across the aisle all the way downtown.

Never again to keep the lights turned on when pa has been detained downtown "on business," in order to see what time he gets home, or to insist on his kissing you that you may smell his breath.

Never again to come to the table with hair in curlers and wearing a soiled kimono.

Never again to subject pa to spells of lachrymose reproaches, telling him that he doesn't love you any more.

For lovers, married or single: Never to miss an opportunity to tell the dear old story over and over again.

Never to lose the coquettish elusiveness that makes lovers so delightful to each other.

Never again to spend the sweets of young lover souls in cheap flirtations when there is such a world of real happiness at your command.

Never to become insensible to the delicious tremblings and flutterings of your own heart, or to become lax in all of those lovely attentions and givings that help to keep a keen response a-thrill in the heart of the beloved.
