WAY CLEARED FOR STREET PAVING WORK

BONDS ARE EXECUTED AND TURNED OVER TO BANKS FOR COLLECTION

TRACTION COMPANY

Getting Ready to Sign Up Contracts for Paving Between Tracks.

City council met yesterday afternoon and passed an ordinance directing street paving work to proceed and ordering the mayor and city clerk to sign a contract with the Southern Paving Construction company. This meeting was a short one and nothing save the passing of the ordinance was done. This is one of the last steps before the actual work is commenced. The contract is signed, and the work will start as soon as the company can get the men in the city to do the work.

In the presence of Mr. Ernest F. Cochran, acting city attorney, Mr. Lee G. Holleman, president of the Peoples bank, Mr. J. H. Anderson, president of the Citizens National bank, Mr. J. L. Brownlee, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants bank, and Mr. P. E. Clinkscales, cashier of the Bank of Anderson, the $80,000 of street paving bonds were executed at noon yesterday by Mayor Godfrey and Clergy Clerk and Treasurer Scott. These two officials affixed their signatures to the 80 bonds, the bonds being in $1,000 denomination, to mature in 30 years, interest payable semi-annually at the rate of five per cent per annum. The seal of the city was then affixed to each bond, and the execution was complete.

The purchasers, H. T. Holz & Co., Chicago, directed that the bonds be sent to the Illinois Trust company, Chicago, to be delivered to them on payment of the purchase price of $82,024 plus accrued interest, dating from May 1st. The four bankers present cast lots to determine which of the local banks should make the collection, and Mr. Anderson of the Citizens National bank won out. The bonds were turned over to this bank yesterday afternoon, and the bankers agreed, before casting lots, that the winner should use all means for hurrying the collection of the money in Chicago, using the telegraph wires in advising the Trust company of the shipment of the bonds and requesting settlement for them by wire the winning bank to bear the expense incident to making the collection.

As soon as the bonds are delivered and payment received by the Trust company, the money is to be distributed among the banks of this city, an agreement having already been reached between the executive committee of the street paving commission and the bankers as to distributing the deposits. The commission, according to the agreement entered into with the bankers, is to receive interest at the rate of three per cent per annum on the average deposit every 30 days after the money has been on deposit for four months. According to the contract to be signed with the Southern Paving Construction company of Chattanooga, the contractor is to receive monthly settlements on the paving to the amount of 80 per cent of the work done. The contractor in submitting their bids, stated they would be able to complete the entire job in six months.

Mr. H. A. Orr, local manager of the Southern Public Utilities company, stated yesterday that he has received a wire from the headquarters of the Southern Paving Construction company at Chattanooga, stating that Mr. Craney, general superintendent, would come to Anderson as soon as the contract is signed. The paving between the car tracks will go on at the same time as the other street paving. Everything going off on schedule time, the work should be started not later than the middle of next week.

CUTWORMS APPEAR

Cutworms have made their appearance and are doing considerable damage to young cotton in many sections of the county. In some sections the damage has been greater than in others, and in the southwest part, or the places of Messrs. Paul R. Earle, Elias McGee and others, the damage has been as much as the destruction of the first and second plantings.

The present cool spell seems to be very favorable to the worms and their work of destruction increased. They are literally stripping the cotton from the fields, and leaving nothing at all, not even the small stalks.

The acreage which is infested by this pest is several hundred acres in extent, though only a few hundred acres are very badly damaged. Over one hundred acres of land, planted with cotton on Mr. Elias McGee's place have been stripped twice. The first planting was destroyed and so was the second planting. Mr. McGee planted the third time and the worms have attacked that now.

Just about this time last year the country was infested with the cotton caterpillars. These insects destroyed cotton and did a great deal of damage. The cut worms infest the same lands and seem to be worse than the caterpillars. There is very little seed cotton in this section that is suitable for planting at this time of the year, and the farmers are very much worried over the prospects.

tory demanded by Italy prompted the proposals. It is reported King Victor Emmanuel has decided to pardon all railway employes punished for participating in last May's strike. This action is reported as designed to closer unite all parties of all Italy.

Reports from all Italian universities say students of each will volunteer in a body if war is declared. Genoa authorities have been ordered to watch closely German interned steamers. It is believed their captains may try to escape after war is declared, or dynamite their vessels.

FAMOUS COXSWAIN KILLED IN FIGHTING NEAR YPRES

London, May 20.—Included in the recent lists of killed at Ypres is the name of Second Lieutenant Stanley MacLagan, known to rowing enthusiasts as the greatest coxswain of recent years. He steered the Oxford crew for four years, 1899 to 1902, and later steered many winning Leander crews, including the famous eight which won the Olympic Regatta at Henley in 1908. At the time of his death he held the post of secretary of the Amateur Rowing association. He was a member of the London Stock Exchange and was 35 years old. He was killed in action on April 25.

WITH THE THEATRES

All of the theatres have good shows this week. The Paramount had a picture featuring Charlie Chaplin Wednesday and this was a scream. It was one of the funniest pictures that has ever been shown here, and being well advertised, drew a large crowd. The Exploits of Elaine, second section, is being run at this theatre and this picture is very popular.

The Bijou theatre, under the management of Mr. Jim D. McCullough is regaining its popularity, and several fine films have been shown there this week. There are no feature pictures run here. Two or three reels is the most at one time.

The Palmetto theatre is running a good line of pictures and high class vaudeville. This is the ever popular show. The comedian with this company is one of the best. He has a record of years of good clean fun-making, and his work is delightful.

HONEA PATH CONCERN CLOSED BY SHERIFF

Monroe Banking and Mercantile Co. Is in Financial Straits.

The store of the Monroe Banking and Mercantile company of Honea Path has been closed by the sheriff of Anderson county and bankruptcy proceedings are now under way. The principal claims against the company are filed by the Springfield Tire company, which amounts to $83.66 and by the William J. Oliver company for $79. The total claims now out against the company and in the hands of the sheriff amount to about $200.

This company was organized some 10 years ago with a capital stock of about $10,000, but five years ago, Messrs. J. F. and R. E. Monroe bought up most of the stock and have been controlling stockholders since that time.

Mr. Jerry McKenzie, the owner of the building occupied by the company has served a distress warrant for the rent due him, but this passed from the hands of the sheriff after Mr. L. A. Brock had removed some buggies and other things, he having a mortgage on one buggy. The firm members gave bond for the rent.

This concern was one of the largest of the town of Honea Path. The business has been doing nothing for the past several months, and Mr. Ashley says that though he does not know the amount of either assets or liabilities, the stock is very small, having been sold out to almost nothing.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Horton leave this morning for Highlands. Mr. Horton will return in a day or so, but Mrs. Horton will spend a week with her sister, who has a cottage there.

THE GIRL OPPOSITE

(By Beverly Slauson.)

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

Travers was looking backward over his life, as he sat, revolver in hand, before the mirror in the upper room of his closed house, and it was strange how all the interests of the mature man's life narrowed to those of the boy of long ago.

Pictures flashed across his mental vision, and he saw himself again, a little boy, standing before that same window and holding his father's hand. "Why mustn't I play with the little girl across the street?" he asked his father.

But it was long before he learned that the man across the street was a famous atheist lecturer, and shut out in horror by the narrow society of the little place, whose ostracism extended to the loyal wife and the little girl.

Later the little boy had gone to school, a boarding school in a distant city. There the interests of school-days drove the thought of the little girl out of his mind.

So completely, in fact, that, when he returned, he did not at first recognize the young girl of fourteen whose face he saw at the window opposite.

"Who are those people across the road?" he asked his mother, with an interest whose cause he was careful to conceal.

"The same," she answered. "That is Danvers, the abominable atheist lecturer, John. I hope that you will have nothing to do with any of them at any time."

Time passed. John Travers went to college. Now the whirl of life had caught him up, and only the most elusive memories remained of the girl at the window. Yet, when he came home with his degree, he found himself looking across the narrow street at a young woman who watched him from her window. And this time there was a look of recognition upon her face, though she made no sign of greeting, and neither spoke.

Then John Travers went into the world of business. Eight years had passed, and he had fought hard during those years. He had made a name for himself in the financial world; at thirty he was a rising power in the street. It was no wonder that his enemies grew numerous as his power grew stronger.

And as the years went by Travers began to realize that he was obtaining singularly little out of life. At thirty he seemed already an old man in experience. Life brought him no happiness. He did not understand the cause of this, but he realized that he had somehow missed something which all his wealth could not supply.

Then came the panic, and the fight for survival. Everybody was leagued against Travers to pull him down. For a whole week, during which time he hardly slept, John fought. Then the pack had him down, and his fortune, swollen to millions, crumbled to nothing in a single day.

So he had gone home to the little village, to the house which he had inherited after his parents' death, but never occupied.

At last he had resolved to end it, to plunge out of the life that had brought him nothing into one which could at least offer nothing worse to him. And, after long thought, he had drawn from his pocket the revolver which he had always carried since the beginning of his debacle.

A knock at the door startled him, and he thrust the weapon away and opened the door. He gasped to see, before him, the girl at the window opposite.

She came into the room impulsively. "Mr. Travers," she began, "I know you will resent this intrusion, but we are old neighbors. My name is Marjorie Danvers, and I often used to see you when we were children. I live opposite—I have lived there alone since my parents died two years ago. And I heard you were back and in trouble."

"You know how people gossip in this little place. We heard you were alone here and had not left the house. We were all afraid some harm had come to you. So I went to the door and knocked, and when you did not answer I came up. Is there anything I can do for you?"

Her eyes fell upon the revolver muzzle, protruding from the bookcase in which he had hidden it. She looked at it and at him wildly.

"You were not—not thinking of that?" she cried.

"Yes," he answered. "I was. But you have cured me now. Miss Danvers, I have lived a selfish life, solely for myself and I have had little pleasure out of it. But now I have come home, and—and I want life to begin to mean something to me. Do you know how often I have thought of you?"

"How strange!" she said. "I have thought so often of the little boy I used to see and might never know. And to think that after these years . . . but then you must let me help you, in any way I can. And you must come out of this old house into the sunshine."

Perhaps soul spoke to soul in that moment, for suddenly she felt that they were bound by a stronger tie than the few words that had been uttered.

"Yes," said Travers, taking her by the hands. "I will come with you—now—into the sunshine."

LEGAL NOTICES

INCOME TAX PAYERS TAKE NOTICE.

The time for making Income Tax Returns will close the 1st of July. All who fall to make income tax by that time will have to pay cost and penalty. This is from Carlton W. Sawyer, Comptroller General, at Columbia, S. C., so I would be glad to have you make these returns at once, so your Auditor will not be embarrassed.

Those who refuse to make Income Tax Returns will be compelled to do so at heavy cost. This is the law and so long as it is, I will have to enforce it for Anderson County.

Winston Smith, Auditor.

Columbia, March 13, 1915.

Mr. Winston Smith, County Auditor, Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir: This State tax commission of the State of South Carolina has sent me the following communication relative to the enforcement of the income tax law:

"The time for making returns under the income tax law of this State expired on the 20th of February last, and a very large number of persons liable to the payment of the tax omitted to make such returns within the time limited.

"The neglect to make the returns in time may have been caused by an erroneous impression that the returns and payment of the income tax to the federal government relieved these taxpayers from paying the income tax imposed by the laws of this State.

"The failure to make returns within time have been so general and widespread that we think further opportunity should be allowed such persons to make these returns before the penalties provided by law are imposed upon them."

In order, therefore, to save such persons who will now come forward and make the proper returns, I, Carlton W. Sawyer, under, and by virtue of power conferred upon the comptroller general, with the approval of the governor, in Section 707 of Volume 1, Code of Laws of South Carolina, 1912, do hereby extend the time for the making of returns and assessment of income taxes without penalty until the first day of July, A. D. 1915.

You will govern yourself accordingly.

CARLTON W. SAWYER, Comptroller General.

Approved. RICHARD I. MANNING, Governor.
