FALL OF WARSAW SICKENS POLES

Russians Destroyed Practically Everything of Value in Retreat Before Teutons.

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 15.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—Whatever military strategists may decide is the actual importance of the Russian loss of western Poland and the fall of Warsaw, by the Poles themselves it is regarded as nothing but the bitter tragedy. Six months ago, the Russian Poles, in spite of their losses and suffering and the complete devastation of the most productive portions of their country still clung hopefully to the promise which Russia had held out to them at the beginning of the war. But with the gradual encroachment of the German armies, this assurance has wavered—not so much because they doubted Russia's good faith as because they questioned her ability to enforce the Grand Duke's proclamation. With the loss of the Polish capital, it may be said that this waning hope which alone lifted Russian Poland out of absolute despair, has expired.

As Associated Press correspondent talked with representative Poles of all classes from the aristocracy to the peasantry, as they fled from Warsaw to interior points in Russia. The uppermost feeling was one of ill-concealed resentment against the Russians.

In the recent retreat from the region around Warsaw, the Russian army, having learned a lesson from Lodz, where the resources of the city were converted to German use, decided upon a policy of destroying all property, about whose use by the Germans there was the slightest question. It was hardly to be expected that the Poles, homeless, pauperized, and without any idea of where or how they were going to live, would preserve a judicially calm view of this action by the Russian army. Explanations regarding "strategical necessity" failed to impress men who had just seen their own homes razed by the Russian army and had received printed proclamations the very phrasing of which they considered an insult. This proclamation brusquely stated that "Polish cattle and men must immediately leave the regions along the front for points in the interior."

These wretched persons said that the Russian soldiers in their zealous execution of the orders they had received, had left nothing behind them except a blackened and scarred landscape whose very soil was ruined. Polish resentment has been increased by the reports of Germany's offer to peace to Russia, according to the terms of which Russia would cede a narrow strip of Poland in the neighborhood of Kalisz to Germany. "In this settlement," say the Poles, "Russia would lose nothing and Poland would lose everything for this would bring Germany one step nearer to her plan of Germanizing the Vistula which would mean the death of Poland, as a nation. It seems that Poland is not only to be the chief sufferer in the war, but that she is to constitute the prize which Russia is to pay to Germany."

In view of the present geographical boundaries of Poland, and the state of Polish feeling, the continuation of the session of the Russian-Polish commission appointed by the emperor to consider the question of Polish independence has the qualities of tragedy and farce almost equally combined. The commission has apparently come to a deadlock since the kind of independence which Poland wants and the kind which Russia sees fit to offer are, if not directly opposed, at least so remote from each other as to have little in common.

"I can see little hope of an agreement between the Russian and Polish members of our commission," said Roman Dmowsky, the Polish chairman of the commission and former leader of the national democratic party of Poland, in a statement to The Associated Press.

"I have been asked by the Russian emperor to give my views regarding the Polish government of the future, and I would be insincere and unrepresentative of my country if I modified them to suit the Russian members of the commission. If a compromise is necessary, it is certainly not my duty at this time to suggest it. You may be assured on one point. Poland will never be satisfied without a proper degree of independence."

"I mean a Polish legislature with both houses wholly Polish, complete financial independence, and the end of Russian officialdom in Poland. This is a concession Russia will never care to make, for Poland has been a most inviting garden for exploitation by Russian officials. "It is the presence of Russian administration officials which we find particularly intolerable. Poland knows that she can never realize her ideals as a progressive nation while she is being held back by a primitive, eastern civilization. Our civilization is a western civilization and to subject it to the standards of Russia or the caprices and methods of their primitive officials is absurd. "It must not be inferred, however, that Poland's resentment against Russia is accompanied by a growing sympathy with Germany. Whatever may be Poland's troubles under Russian rule, she realizes that German rule would mean the funeral of the Polish nation. We admire a great many things in Germany and under German rule western Poland has been much more prosperous than while it was in Russian hands. The revenues are now higher and the people as a whole are better off financially. It is

SOUTHERN TEXTILE EXPOSITION OPENS AT GREENVILLE NOV. 2

Is Expected to Compare Favorably With Great Exhibitors Association at Boston.

Greenville, Sept. 11.—The Southern Textile Exposition, the first textile exposition of its kind ever held in the south, will be held in Greenville November 2-6, inclusive. This exposition will compare very favorably with the great textile exhibitors association, which holds the greatest textile show in the world, biennially in Boston. Forty thousand square feet of floor space has been provided for the exhibitors, and practically all of this, or about 35,000 square feet have been contracted for. The exhibitors include the textile exhibitors association, the various trade papers of the south and other sections, and nearly 50 of the leading machinery and textile supply houses of the country.

The executive committee, having in charge the plans for the exposition, have been forced to enlarge the time and again the quarters for the gathering. Conservative estimates state that about 5,000 visitors will come to Greenville for this exposition. All hotel space of the city will be taken, the Chloro college dormitories will be filled, the Chick Springs hotel may re-open for the time, all boarding houses will be filled, and even then it will be necessary to quarter some of the visitors in private homes. The exposition is self-supporting. Greenville is asked to contribute nothing, save some $500 for decorating the streets.

This exposition was planned, following unsuccessful efforts to get the Boston show to come south. Machinery men have never before had an opportunity to display their wares in this section, and the readiness with which they have seized upon the opportunity has been very gratifying to the local textile men. It is possible, even probable, that this show will become a biennial event, and that Greenville will be selected as the permanent home for the Southern Textile exposition, just as Boston is for the great show of the north and east. Efforts to this end will be made.

The board of governors of the American Cotton Manufacturers association will hold their fall meeting in Greenville during the exposition. This meeting has been called by Scott Maxwell, president. The personnel of the organization includes the leading mill men of the south, and many from other sections of the country.

The executive committee of the exposition has designated the Otway hotel as headquarters for the exhibitors; and the Otway and Imperial hotels as headquarters for the Southern Textile convention which will meet November 4, 5 and 6. The convention will hold its meetings in Cleveland hall. The speakers will be announced later.

Those who attend the exposition here will include mill presidents, and other office officials; superintendents, overseers, bosses and men from all departments of the mills. Textile students from Clemson and the Georgia School of Technology, as well as from other institutions will be on hand. These schools will have exhibits in the show. Several mills will also have exhibits, and a special feature will be the exhibit of welfare work as carried on by various mills of the south. Each day will feature some particular points of interest to mill men.

This great gathering, the import of which is scarcely yet recognized in Greenville, was secured as the result of quiet effort. At the meeting of the Southern Textile association in Birmingham, Ala., last November, Greenville was selected as the place for the show. Railroads will give special rates to and from Greenville for this occasion.

Didn't Raise Him.

Here is a little story that was told by Congressman William C. Adkinson of Georgia, when the conversation turned to natural misunderstandings, says The Philadelphia Telegraph.

A young housewife who lives in a suburban town went to the village store to make some purchases.

"These chickens look very nice," remarked the customer, pausing before the poultry counter. "How much are they?"

"One dollar apiece, madam," was the prompt response of the obliging proprietor. "You can't find better poultry for the money in the whole country."

"One dollar," thoughtfully mused the customer, and then added: "Did you raise them?"

"Oh, no, madam," was the hasty assurance of the misunderstanding storekeeper. "That is the same price I offered to sell them for yesterday."

also true that our kinsman in German Poland have acquired a high state of culture and that in agriculture they have even surpassed the Germans themselves. "So perhaps from a financial point of view we would be better off under German rule, but this consideration will never be placed by Poland on a level with her ideals for self-realization and independence," and she knows that under Germany these ideals will have to be buried. "Poland is therefore still turning to the allies for the realization of her independence. Though at present she is utterly helpless, financially wrecked, torn and destroyed by a war in which Pole is forced to fight against Pole, if she emerges an independent nation, her sacrifices will not have been in vain."

VON HINDENBERG TAKES PETROGRAD ROYNO RAILWAY

Selkinka and is attacking in the vicinity of Skidel. In the south, von Mackenson on both sides of the Pink railroad is pressing eastward toward Pink, and these movements are resulting in the capture of several thousand Russians.

The final objective of the invaders is still a matter of conjecture, but General Ruzsky, the commander in the northern Russian army declares positively, that there is no danger that Petrograd will all this year.

On the other fronts there is little to report. It appears established that Bulgaria has struck a bargain with Turkey, and Premier Radoslavoff, in response to an appeal of the Armenians, stated that Sofia is now on the most friendly terms with Constantinople. English newspapers devoted much space to the announcement of a letter by King George, that England must increase her efforts very greatly, if victory for the entente allies is to be assured.

London, Sept. 13.—A French statement says that the artillery action, in some instances of a violent nature continues in many sectors of the western front.

The Austro-Hungarian sentiment regarding the request of the United States for the recall of Ambassador Dumba is divided, according to indications supplied by Vienna newspapers. One faction is convinced the ambassador acted without orders from the home government, and the other believes he acted properly.

The British parliament, which meets tomorrow, will take up the matter of increasing the national income. It is expected the scope of the income tax will be considerably broadened.
