MOSSY DALE.

It is a very easy job for those living on the Rion road to sit back on their "Jewclaws" and advise Mossy Dale and others to get out and work their roads when they have the Winnsboro Granite Co. and the energetic, public spirited Heywood to keep up their roads, besides if we must not wait for our commissioner to act what use have we for a commissioner, and if we have to go down in our jeans to have our roads worked why pay a road tax. I think I know the voice of him who would make you believe great things, although it is in ink. There is no other like unto him in the use of "big I and little u." This same Rion reporter was once seen to step behind a tree to look at his watch for fear some one would ask him for the time of day. That kind of a man is not going to work on the public roads unless he sees where his pay is coming from.

The Bethel correspondent notes that Mossy Dale and two gentlemen halted at his place the other day, but was afraid to get out. Did you catch that? He doesn't say Mossy Dale and two other gentlemen. Now, why were we afraid to get out? One reason is because we have a reputation to keep up and another is because of the fact that where two or three Methodists are gathered together there shall be a collection taken and there being three of us no sooner than we hit the ground he would have passed the hat.

Mrs. Smith had a fine cow to choke on a pear the other day. A handle was used to push the pear down, and as the handle was being pulled back about twelve inches of it was broken off and swallowed by the cow. Will some of these Sein Fein Catharts tell us whether the cow will live or die? If we knew that she would die George Perry could probably sell her to some one who has not heard of the accident.

R. J. Stewart brought back some bad news from town last Saturday. He says that the boss told him that everything had to be paid in full by the first of October. Now, such news as that, coupled with the boll weevil dry weather and the Beckhams, is enough to run a man crazy. If it was not for my little children I would leave from about here. I am getting tired anyway, cutting stovewood just to make a smoke to fool the neighbors.

D. Hamilton and Mr. Tom Haynes were visitors in this community one day, this week. The Doctor is going around squirting soda water in the arms of the children with his little

CHARM IN OLD GRAVEYARDS

Pleasant Spots Where One May Meditate on the Fleeting Procession of Life.

There is a charm about old graveyards. They are to us, says the Springfield Republican, what mellow autumn afternoons cannot express. They are deserted old houses, haunted by former owners. In them is the reminder of other days that makes up the atmosphere of old theaters where many famous Hamlets and Lady Teazles have trod the boards. There one can follow "the hourly chronicle of the ages" back to the beginning of time.

There are little graveyards by the sea with waving grasses and wild cinnamons where sea captains are laid to rest. There are others shut off from the business section of large cities by gates that close at sundown, where the founders of the city find peace after their labors. Into these secluded spots part Twentieth-century stenographers go to eat their noonday lunch and discuss their new hats and new beaux, with only an occasional one more imaginative than her friends to give a thought to the long dead and ponder on the fleeting procession of life. There are still other graveyards with clipped hedges and formal garden plots, reminiscent of the clipped and patterned lives that have been carefully laid away there to rest. Hedged in by convention all their lives and shadowed by cypress—hedges and cypress are their lot after death.

However graveyards differ, they are all a friendly resting place for the idle wanderer or the vagabond poet. A pleasant picture that of young Walter Pater going to the graveyard and singing Greek songs to the birds there. Pleasant, too, the picture of Thomas Gray writing his elegy in a country churchyard.

Beware, however, the modern graveyard. Where granite stands up glistening in the sun, where flowers are fresh on new-made graves, and funeral processions may be met, is not the place to wander in. There grief is too near and too new. Choose a God's acre where the grass is overgrown, where weeping willows and grinning cherubs decorate the stones, and where the last line of the epitaph is sunk into the ground. Every graveyard has at least its old part, mellowed by the passing of time.

Probably Fastest Running Animal.

One of the fastest as well as one of the most interesting animals known is the cheetah, the hunting leopard of India. These animals, on account of the great speed which they attain, are tamed by the Indians and trained to hunt antelopes. While the hunted antelope, which can clear a 10-foot fence without apparent effort at a single leap, is at the height of a burst of frightened speed the cheetahs are released. They stretch along the ground, gaining on the antelopes every second, and finally bring them down with a well-timed bound which places the fangs of the cheetah in the throat of the quarry. The hunters at once cut the throat of the antelope, and the cheetah drinks the blood. Next the thigh of the antelope is slit open and the cheetah tears away a small portion of the game he has captured. This is his reward. His muzzle is replaced, and he is placed in his cage until the next hunt.

While the cheetah is known as a leopard, he is not a true feline. He has the arching body of a greyhound and the feet of a dog, while his head is distinctly that of a cat. The animal is rarely seen in the public zoological collections for the reason that he soon dies because of the lack of exercise.

Great Hotel Is Uncompleted.

If our civilization passes, Martians of the future who explore the site of Twentieth century London will wonder at the steel skeleton of frames and girders, seven stories high that rises above Piccadilly.

The structure was started seven years ago. It was intended to be the Park Lane hotel and would have been one of the most elegant and best situated hotels of England. But since the outbreak of the war not a stroke of work has been done on the structure. Today it stands just as it stood when the last workman left it in 1914.

The year 1921, with tight money, labor troubles and high costs, is not a good time to start building expensive hotels. No buyers are in sight, and it is improbable that any will appear.

Chickens Singed With Acetylene.

One of the most recent uses for acetylene is for singeing chickens. It is said that the acetylene flame, properly used, performs this operation in a small fraction of the time usually required, that it removes the last vestige of feathers from the fowl, and that the burning off is accomplished without scorching the skin or heating the delicate flesh.

This is no more remarkable than the use of acetylene in removing paint from canvas, which is done without even the slightest injury to the fabric.—Popular Science Monthly.

Modernness of the Ancients.

We have only to turn back the pages of history to discover that the ancients had some very modern notions.

Mr. E. W. Hulme pointed out before the Newcomen society, recently organized in England to study the history of engineering and technology, that in the great Palace of the Two Axes in Crete there was a system of water-carried sewage and terra cotta socketed drain pipes that could not be par-

Indigestion

Many persons, otherwise vigorous and healthy, are bothered occasionally with indigestion. The effects of a disordered stomach on the system are dangerous, and prompt treatment of indigestion is important. "The only medicine I have needed has been something to aid digestion and clean the liver," writes Mr. Fred Ashby, a McKinney, Texas, farmer. "My medicine is for indigestion and stomach trouble of any kind. I have never found anything that touches the spot, like Black-Draught. I take it in broken doses after meals. For a long time I tried pills, which gripped and didn't give the good results. Black-Draught liver medicine is easy to take, easy to keep, inexpensive."

Thedford's

Hunger the Best Sauce.

Sauce is used to create an appetite or relish for the food. The right way is to look to your digestion. When you have good digestion you are certain to relish your food. Chamberlain's Tablets improve the digestion, create a healthy appetite and cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

We are proud of the confidence doctors, druggists and the public have in 366 Chill and Fever Tonic.

Billiousness and Constipation.

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.

Why the
so successful for cooking

THE present New Perfection Oil Cook Stove owes its success to its design and the care with which it is built. Early types of "oil stoves" cannot compare with it in convenience, economy and durability.

The New Perfection burner produces the hottest kind of a flame—white-tipped. This and the long blue chimney are responsible for the splendid results obtained by New Perfection users everywhere.

The chimney is made long for a distinct purpose. It assures the burning of every last drop of kerosene used. There is no fuel wasted in the form of soot on the bottom of utensils. Then, too, it drives the clean heat of the white-tipped flame forcibly against the pan or kettle. No flame is ever as hot as the area just a little above it.

There's no stooping over to the oven when you use a New Perfection. It is up where you can reach it easily. The New Perfection oven has a three-point locking device that keeps the door closed tightly and prevents the escape and waste of heat. You can look into it at all times through the glass door.

The large four-burner size with warming cabinet is most popular. There are also, however, five, three, two and one-burner sizes. Use Aladdin Security Oil regularly to obtain the best possible results. Always pure and clean—it's all heat.
