POLITICAL DIN AND ROAR.

A PEN PICTURE OF NEW YORK ON THE VERGE OF ELECTION.

Seven Candidates for the Mayoralty-Whispers of a Possible Compromise-Too Late to Patch Up the Differences in the Local Democracy-A Conservative Estimate of Cleveland's Vote-Curly-Haired Kyrle Bellew Bleats for "Blud"-Young Jimmie Blaine's Double Trouble.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 .- Two weeks before election. The air is full of the blare of brass bands. The streets are swarming with processions. Out of doors you can hardly hear your companion talk for the eternal din and roar. And as for line of crossing the streets, hardly anything short of a balloon would accomplish it while one of the seemingly endless processious is passing. Flags and banners and ban dannas are fluttering all about. A stranger might be pardoned for thinking that the only business done here at all is the business of politics. It has got to be virulently epidemic and is wholly undiscriminating. the bank president and the coal heave being equally subject to the contagion. Of course the greater part of this screeching and tramping is done on behalf of the National and State tickets; but the peculiar complications in local politics give this year's fight a zest which the traditional oldest inhabitant swears he has never known the like of before.

Just think of it. Seven full-fiedged candid." of a few katydids in the grass near didates for Mayor! Seven times twenty-six full-fledged candidates for Aldermen, me, and the wailing cry of a steppe hawk hovering over the nest of some field mice. It was a delight simply to and so many gentlemen aspiring to Congressional aud legislative honors that it ie on the grass amidst the flowers and would take an expert accountant to comsee, hear and breathe.-George Kennan pile a table that would do justice to the n The Century. situation! And then they have such queen ways of voting up here. It does not mat ter whether a man lives in his own district cr not. As a matter of fact, several of the Congressmen from this city would have to traverse two or three Congressional districts in going from their residences to the ones they represent.

Even now there are some lingering whispers of possible compromise on a candidate for Mayor who will bring Tammany Hall and the County Democracy together. It is understood that negotiations to this effect are being conducted quietly by a Mr. William Steinway, the head of the great piano house of that name, and of New York's wealthiest citizens, who has just returned from a European tour. Mr. Steinway, as you may recall, was until lately the New York member of the National Democratic Committee. He wants the warring factions to settle upon Mr. Herman Oelrichs, his successor in that position, for Mayor. That gentleman in turn thinks Mr. Steinway would fit the bill to a nicety. No doubt either would make a very ac ceptable Mayor, but it is a very late da'e to try to patch up the differences in the local Democracy. Nothing short of a miracle could accomplish it now. In the opinion of most of the Democrats whose views I have heard a union at this stage of the game would be of very dcubtful advantage to the National ticket. Nothing but wholesale slaughter of the ticket by one or the other of the factions can jeor. ardize the chances of victory in this State. To cut off all possibility of such an occur rence-which would be easily detected and which would inevitably crush forever the organization which might be guilty of it-Express. National Com its own at every polling booth in the city from which Democratic votes are run out. Any indication of trading will be instantly reported, and as there is no question of the loyalty of the men in the upper councils of both organizations they will hold themselves in readiness to suppress it at once. But there seems no danger of anything of the sort happening. A very conservative estimate of Cleveland's vote in this city is 160,000 against 133,000 four years ago, allowing 100,000 to Harrison against 90,000 of a peasant. cast for Blaine. The Democratic Commit tce, however, thinks that Harrison will fall short of this estimate. Again there is a fleck of war on the fashionable firmament, and a number of swallow-tailed astronomers have horrified 'sassiety" by reports of huge carmine blotches on the face of the moon. The great and only Kyrle Bellew, society's idol, has been indulging in a very sanguinary correspondence with Mr. Pierre Lorillard, whose snuff and plug tobacco have put him on the upper crust. The trouble all grew out of the refusal of the Tuxedo Club, Gotham's most recherche resort, to tivity .- Youth's Companion. admit the Appolloan Kyrle upon its premises, on moral grounds. The snub was painfully emphasized by the fact that Mr. Bellew had been introduced to the Club by the husband of Mrs. James Brown-Potter, the quondom head of New York's select circles, now exhibiting her handsome toilcase ets and her alleged histrionic abilities with the aid of the curly-headed Kyrle. Stung to the quick by the rebuffs, the actor singled out Mr. Lorillard, Tuxedo's presi dent, as the responsible party, and the talk is all horse pistol "bl-u-d." Gossips have another uncommonly sweet bone to pick in the lately revealed domestic difficulties of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr. The young wife's suit for $100,000 against Blaine, Sr., for alienating her husband's affections. will make a big stir if it ever comes to trial. The young lady insists that she never would have countenanced such summary proceedings but for the brutal way in which she was treated by the Blaine family upon her recent visit to Augusta, in quest of her husband, who, she says, was shut up against his will in the paternal household. In the meantime a number of tradesman of this city are clamoring after a very lively fashion for the settlement of sundry claims against the festive scion of the "Uncrowned King." There are butcher's bills, and grocer's bills and dress-maker's bills and bills for what not. As the amount in the aggregate is scarcely one thousand dollars. it was thought that the old man would meet the drafts upon his purse by his son, and when he was here recently, a number of creditors called on him for that purpose. But never a cent did they get, not even politeness they say, and a madder lot of neople one does not want to see.

He is an affatian. ble, well spoken young fellow, very re-

Go to Your Dentist.

When your teeth ache or 'trouble you in any way; don't consult a doctor. Go to your dentist and lay the him. Doctors will prescribe for an ulcerated tooth, for instance, a poultice on the outside of the face. This is really very dangerous. It is apt to draw the ulceration out to the surface of the skin, and very likely produce an abscess which will leave a disfiguring scar. The dentist has now small mustard plasters, which are to be applied directly to the troublesome tooth, and relieves it at once without any danger of disfigurement. Remember this, and you may save yourself no little uncasinees some time in the future, when you succumb to toothache, which is certainly one of the most distressing ills that flesh is heir to .- Boston Herald,

An English magazine lately told the story of the keeper of a wine shop in Paris named Drog who, in 1871, at the close of the war with Germany, found himself utterly ruined, and, with his family, on the verge of starvation. In his cellar was a heap of empty sardine boxes. It occurred to him that the solder might be removed from them and sold and the tin boxes themselves converted into little metal toys for children. He set at work, succeeded, and in a year or two had established a factory in which thousands of waste sardine boxes were bought, melted and sent out again, glorious in paint, gilding and varnish, as toy soldiers, animals, charicts, Venetian lanterns and buttons .- Youth's Companion.

When he went to invest in another supply he found that he could not make a purchase similar to his first one for less than $1,500. The financial fluctuations involved in the transaction knocked him so completely out that he retired permanently from commercial life and hired himself out as an agriculturist." When his hearers had finished laughing at this story, Mr. Grimes gave them the other one. "It was in the same town-La Grange -and in the latter part of 1864," he said "One old gentleman there who had persistently predicted the failure of the Confederacy, was one day deriding the currency that was then so plentiful and of such little value. He said that it was so worthless that nobody would even steal it or pick it up if found on the street. He pulled out a $1,000 bill, Confederate money, of course, and declared that he could tack it with a pin to the fence around the Courthouse, leave it there five hours and that nobody would think enough of it to put it in his pocket. His offer was accepted. The note was pinned to the fence, and at the end of five hours he and the man to whom he had been talking went out to see what there was to be seen." Mr. Grimes here

The Gallows in Edgefield. EDGRFIELD, Oct. 26.-Ephraim Mays, colored, who with Louise and Chainey Burt, was convicted at the last term of court of the murder of Jake Burt, was hanged today. The doomed man ascended the scaffold with a steady step, and met his fate with calmness and composure. The trap was sprung at thirty-two minutes past 12, and he was pronounced dead by the doctors in attendance in seventeen minutes thereafter, death resulting from a partly broken neck and strangulation. While on the scaffold he made a fervent prayer, expressing no doubt as to his preparation and readiness to die, and his soul's salvation. This was followed by a history of the crime, which was to the effect that he, with the two women above named and Dave Graham, who is now at large, by a preconcerted plan assembled on the night of the 4th of last December at the house of Jake, and there the aiready conceived. murder was committed, Dave inflicting the fatal blow, an axe being the weapon used. The only part Ephraim performed in the loody work was to assist in the burial. Dave and Ephraim lived in the stone house with the women, who were the wife and daughter of the murdered man. Of the women, one has been pardoned the other's sentence has been commuted to life-time in the penitentiary .- Special to

If the latter he can be pretty sure that the servants are all down stairs, and he can explore the upper rooms without much fear of interruption. This wouldn't be called in the profession tip top work, but it is a means by which householders lose a considerable amount of portable property, and it very rarely happens that the robber is caught in the act. As regards house fastenings there is, in my opinion, nothing safer for windows than a long thumb screw in a socket, going right through the frame and deep into the sash on both sides of the window. I don't know if there have been any wonderful inventions in that way since I took an interest in such things, but I never saw a door fastener except the thumb screw that should give a workman a minute's trouble. For the street door there is nothing so good as a flat bar fastened to a pivot to the center, so that it will extend across the jambs and drop into slots made on the plan of a watch and chain swivel. For window shutters the cheapest and best protection is a lightly hung bell on a coil spring. But better than locks, bolts and bars is a wire little dog that, roaming loose, will

An interesting development in photog raphy is in the use of clockwork in printing from negatives. By this means a continuous web of sensitized paper is drawn at suitable intervals under a negative exposed to a source of light. After printing, the paper is drawn, still by the mechanism through "washer," "toner," and "fixer successively, and appears finally as a series of finished pictures, ready for mounting, ard all alike in exposure, color, and tone.
