Danner, refereeing a girls' basketball game, penalized the girls for hugging. Modest fellow!

TO THE DEBATING COUNCIL

Carolina has a Debating Council composed of representatives from the faculty and literary societies. This body arranges the dates of the various debates and oratorical contest held by the University. They hold only call meetings and sometimes only give the dates of the contests a few days before they are staged. This does not give the contestants time to prepare their speeches and causes many men not to enter because they feel unable to get up their work in so short a time. Believing that every possible thing should be done toward urging men to enter these contests, we suggest that the Debating Council meet at the beginning of each scholastic session and make as many dates as possible. This would tend to urge men to write early on their speeches, and the result will be that more men would enter the contests. Too, according to present plans of the Council many contests are not scheduled early enough in the year; that is to say, that many contests ought to be held earlier in the year than in May. Many students do not enter these late contests because they have to prepare for examinations at this late date. They would possibly enter if the contests were held in February, March, or April. Otherwise the Council is to be commended for its good work.

BUILDING THE FENCE

The students of Carolina showed by their action, in saying that they would build the fence around Davis Field if the Legislature would appropriate the money for the material, that they had the old Carolina spirit which has been characteristic of the University since its beginning. Every man promised to do his part when he supported the measure. Man of us know but very little about the construction of fences, but we are not too young to learn. The old time college spirit can not prevail at Carolina until the fence has been duly built. We have shown fine spirit so far, and let us keep the good work up. At last, it seems that the students are going to support the athletic teams as they should. How long should it take 450 men to erect the fence? If enough tools can be procured the fence will be built in a single day. Of course, there are going to be a few fellows who will fall short of performing their duty because they are too nice or for some other trivial reason. Are you going to be one of these backsliders? Certainly not. We believe that the faculty would grant a holiday for the construction of this fence. This holiday
