

"CAROLINIANA" IS MOVED INTO NEW QUARTERS

"Treasure House" of South Carolina Writings is Placed in Fire-Proof Room

LIBRARY STAFF CREDITED

Misses English and Rion Realize Need of Collection of S. C. Material

Collections of "Caroliniana" which were previously crowded into an alcove in the main part of the library, have since the completion of the fire-proof wing on the west, been moved into new quarters, a room about 25 feet wide and 65 long, located on the third floor of the building over the museum room.

This room, which is equipped with steel shelves and arranged conveniently for the various material of the collection, will accommodate a vast number of books and periodicals, many of which will be added from time to time.

In a bulletin compiled by Miss Elizabeth English, assistant librarian, entitled "Caroliniana in the University of South Carolina Library" the preface states:

"The University Library has long been regarded as a treasure house of material relating to South Carolina, but much of this reference matter has been inaccessible to the student who would specialize in the life of our state. There was no attempt made by the older librarians to assemble in one place everything relating to South Carolina, so the books and pamphlets on this, to us, very important subject were mixed with those in the general library. Miss Margaret H. Rion, a former librarian, realized the value of a collection of "Caroliniana" and began to put aside in a special location all that she came across. The present library staff has continued this separation until it is hoped that all of the library's "Caroliniana" is in the South Carolina alcove. It can never be said definitely that all of this material has been removed from the other classes of books, for whenever any are rearranged, a bit of "Caroliniana" is very apt to come to light."

In this room will be found every type of literature and references pertaining to South Carolina. Various newspapers of the state, bulletins and catalogues of this University, records of the general assembly, as well as biographies of legislators, and various printed matter is being compiled into orderly fashion. Here will also be found histories of the state, and the two noted histories of the University of South Carolina—Green's and LaBorde's. Fiction and poetry by the writer of the state will also be found among this valuable collection of "Caroliniana."
