Miss Lewis is not an unknown figure in this field, having directed the "Carolina Frolics of 1933," and recently "Green Stockings," the very clever play put on by students of the University high school.

In view of the fact that many of the prospective teachers will undoubtedly be called upon to sponsor and help with dramatizations in their respective schools, Miss Lewis gave some very helpful information, the result of her experiences. She stressed the importance of selecting good plays and making a long and careful study of the play before actual rehearsals were started. Three weeks preparation was given by Miss Lewis as being ample time for the production of a three act play. Some other helpful technical information was also given.

Asks Creative Activity

Declares That Creative Love in Action is a Matter of Evolution

"It is becoming more evident every day that only those groups and organizations which have at their founcivilization itself is to continue," de- ated. Smith's talk was very interesting. clared the Rev. Rufus Morgan, rector as a permanent institution.

> "All through history there have been individual men who have been touched by the life of Jesus and whose lives have been changed as a result," said the Rev. Mr. Morgan. Although men have known that only be brought about on earth. We have emphasized too much the idea of individual salvation in the past in a heaven to come to the detriment of the social teachings of Jesus about changing conditions of the organized society in which we live.

"In order for a Christian group to live, it must be a group that looks both backward and forward. Creative love in action is a matter of evolution. As life progresses, we see more clearly that organized selfishness cannot last. We need to look at the facts more closely to see whether the system to which we are as its basis or hate and selfishness.

"Many people now are saying that our system of economic cannibalism must come to an end and that we must come to the idea of social profits instead of individual profits. Whether those who want to live the Christian College. life must join together with other Christians to make creative love the motive of our actions in group activities as well as in individual activity. If we are to devote ourselves to Jesus's thoughts we must at the same life or it means nothing.

Alumni Plan Good Will Gathering At Florence

ni residing in the counties comprising the old sixth congressional district will gather at the American Legion Hut near Florence for a barbecue and get-to-gether meeting, Thursday evening December 14 at 7:30 P. M. The American Legion Hut is located three miles east of Florence on the Florence-Marion highway, it is large and roomy and will accommodate a very large crowd. The barbecue will be served Dutch style to those present and will cost 50 cents per plate.

In a letter sent out by the alumni office all former students of the University residing in the counties of Chesterfield, Marlboro, Dillon, Marion, Horry, Georgetown, Williamsburg, Darlington and Florence are cordially invited to attend this meeting. Those expecting to attend the meeting are asked to notify George W. Collier, chairman of the committee on arrangements, of their intention to attend. It is impossible to notify all of the alumni living in the counties mentioned above on account of so many changes of address, so all alumni are requested to assist in passing the word along. All that is asked is that the alumni write George W. Collier, Florence, S. C., notifying him in time so that he may know how many to expect.

The following will attend the meeting from the University: Dr. L. T. Baker, president of the University; John A. Chase, Jr., registrar, Robert L. Sumwalt of the department of Engineering, Prof. J. Rion McKissick, dean of the school of journalism, and other members of the faculty: Dr. R. K. Foster, director of student activities; Coach William L. Laval, assistant Coaches F. B. Rawl, A. W. Norman and Curran P. Hughey; Claud N. Sapp, president, and Barney A. Early, Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association; James H. Gressette, president of the student body; William B. > The University of South Carolina is well represented by its alumni in the Pee Dee section of the State, and it is a well known fact that the University has no more loyal alumni during its whole history than those who have lived in the counties of the old sixth congressional district. Many meetings have been held in that section in the past and they have always been well attended by alumni who were serious in their intense interest in the general welfare and progress of the University.

The old University is well thought f in this section of the State, the alumni residing there have always stuck to the University, in its darkest as well as brightest days. Many of the University's most distinguished alumni in all walks of life have come from the counties who will meet on Thursday evening, December 14. So it is an assured fact that this will be one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of alumni during the entire year.

After this meeting other meetings are planned for the winter months that will cover the entire State. The next meeting will probably be in the Piedmont Section and this meeting will be held in the early part of January 1934.

During the past three years the Alumni Association, like all other organizations dependent upon dues from members has suffered by a drop in membership which had its direct cause from the depression. The alumni office is glad to report that this year the worst has been passed and that it appears now as though there will be an increase in membership during this fiscal year over that of last

This increase in interest comes from the younger alumni who are beginning to be sold on the necessity of an organized alumni. This is very encouraging to the officers of the Alumni Association who have worked under severe handicaps for the past few oring the alumni living in the other years. They can now begin to see counties of the State in closer touch some results in spite of all the obstacles that the Alumni Association has had to confront and overcome.
